Organist Gives Concert of Sacred Music in Observance of Anniversary.

By the Associated Press.

VATICAN CITY, May 31.—Pope Pius today celebrated his seventy-third birthday. The Pontifical banner was broken out from several edifices within the city-state, while the Swiss Guards hoisted their own standard from their principal post near the famous bronze door, and with the Palatine Guard, appeared at all formations in full dress uniform.

Achille Ratti, now Pius XI, was born at Desio, not far from Milan, May 31, 1857, of a family of textile mill operators. The town of his birthplace was then under Austrian domination. He was crowned Pope on Feb. 12, 1922.

This evening Maestro Fernando Germani, organist of Augusteo, gave a concert of sacred music in celebration of the birthday anniversary.

MALT, HOPS, KEGS AND CAPS SEIZED IN TWO RAIDS HERE

Three Large Truckloads of Supplies Used in Beer Making Hauled From 2640 Cherokee.

U. S. AGENT TELLS OF BREWING ADVICE

Says Max Tabachnik Guaranteed Results With Certain Brand — Richmond Heights Store Visited.

Federal prohibition agents under Deputy Administrator James Dillon yesterday afternoon raided the shops of two dealers in malt, hops and other supplies for the manufacture and bottling of home brew and confiscated what they considered, under the recent ruling of the United States Supreme Court, to be contraband.

Three large truckloads of malt, hops, crocks, barrels, kegs, caps, cappers, bottles, siphons and gauges were hauled from the store of Max Tabachnik at 2640 Cherokee street, where the raiders called first, to the Federal Building and turned over to the custody of Marshal Hukriede. At the store of John B. Rossi, 7323 Wise avenue, Richmond Heights, only 16 cases of malt were seized.

Dillon, following the Cherokee street raid, said that Tabachnik was apparently dealing only in "illicit" supplies for when his men finished removing the contraband there was practically nothing left in the store, and the stock, which the deputy administrator estimated to be valued at approximately $5000, was on its way to the Federal Building.

Search warrants for both places were obtained from United States Commissioner Burke on affidavits made by an agent who had visited the shops earlier in the week, Dillon said, and had received, in addition to their purchases, considerable advice from the proprietors concerning the best methods of making home brew.

Boasted of Good Results.

Tabachnik told the agent, Dillon declared, that the brand of malt he was selling—he positively guaranteed—would make the best home brew, "almost as good as the old lager beer," and advised the agent that he would make no mistake in purchasing a sugar measure to avoid spoiling his product by adding too much sugar just before bottling.

He also urged the agent to purchase several two-handled tin cups, Dillon said, pointing out that these cups had two distinct advantages over cups with only one handle.

"First," Tabachnik was quoted as having said, "if one of the handles on these cups breaks off you've still got a handle on it and, second, if you use both of the handles when you drink with these cups you don't get your fingers or thumbs in the beer like you might with a cup with only one handle."

Dillon said Tabachnik was one of the largest dealers in home brew supplies in the city and that among the stuff seized in his place was more than 500 cases, each containing 12 three-pound cans of malt.

First in Eight Years.

Tabachnik denied that he ever told anyone how to make home brew and declared that as far as he knew the malt he sold was to be used for baking bread.

The raids and seizures were the first of their kind made here since eight years ago when similar attempts to make cases against dealers in malt and hops and equipment for the making of home brew failed and Judge Faris ordered the return to the dealers of the property seized.

Warrants will be sought tomorrok for the proprietors of the two stores and Jack Baum, a clerk in Tabachnik's shop, charging them with the sale and possession of materials designed for the manufacture of home brew in violation of the Volstead act.

The Supreme Court decision, written by Justice Holmes, under which the seizures were made, concludes:

"If the empty containers and other objects seized were offered for sale in such a mode as purposely to attract purchasers who wanted them for the unlawful manufacture, as we interpret the word, they were designed for that manufacture and could be seized."

The decision was handed down in affirming a lower court which upheld a seizure of corks, bottles, barrels, etc., on the ground that the Volstead act makes it unlawful to have or possess any property designed for the manufacture of liquor and that no property right shall exist in such property.

SPEAKER ENGAGED TO ADDRESS KLAN HERE, CAN'T FIND IT

Nordic League President Hunts "Grand Titan" Lacking Name and Address.

Dr. Lee Roy Henry, a physician of Fargo, N. D., who calls himself president of the Nordic League of America, is in St. Louis to fill a speaking engagement arranged through "The Grand Titan of the Ku Klux Klan of Missouri," but has been unable to locate the "Grand Titan," or, for that matter, any other klansman who might tell him where he is to talk.

Arriving Friday he registered at the Maryland Hotel and went to the Holland Building, but discovered the Klan had given up its offices there. Finding no trace of the organization he went to the City Hall. "I thought if anyone could tell me where the Klan offices are it would be someone there, but most of those I talked to seemed to be Knights of Columbus," he said.

The Nordic League, Dr. Henry explained, is an organization of groups interested in restricting immigration so as to favor countries of northern Europe. First negotiations for his visit here were conducted with the Junior Order of American Mechanics, a member of the League, but final arrangements were made by the Grand Titan of the Klan, who signed letters with his title, but not with his name.

S. S. ELEANOR BOLLING TOWS BYRD'S BARK TO BALBOA PORT

With Admiral on Board, Ships Will Sail for New York Tuesday.

By the Associated Press.

PANAMA, May 31.—The steamship Eleanor Bolling of Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd's Antarctic expedition towed the bark, City of New York, into port at Balboa tonight, completing a journey that began at the Antarctic ice packs. The bark left Dunedin, N. Z., on March 23.

The Eleanor Bolling had already made port, but last week was obliged to sail hundreds of miles out into the Pacific to take the becalmed bark in tow again.

Both ships will go through the Panama Canal tomorrow and be overhauled in Cristobal harbor. Early Tuesday morning, with Admiral Byrd and all hands on board, they will sail for New York, marking the final return of the expedition to civilization.

The City of New York sailed into the waters of the Canal Zone with a decided list to port, being emptied of her coal supply and having lost her store in a terrific hurricane, encountered before reaching Tahiti. Even the bulwarks of the supply ship had been washed away.

PAIR DROWN WHEN CANOE UPSETS AT ST. CHARLES, ILL.

Patrick Dailey and Woman Companion Had Gone to Aid of Two Others.

By the Associated Press.

ST. CHARLES, Ill., May 31.—Patrick Dailey, 25 years old, and an unidentified woman were drowned in the Fox River near here tonight in their effort to aid another pair whose canoe had overturned. Dailey's body was recovered.

Dailey and the woman were in a canoe near a spot known as the inland, about a mile east of St. Charles, when the other canoe, carrying Dennis Bradstreet, of St. Charles, and Edna Thieman, 22, of Carpenterville, Ill., upset. Dailey paddled over to help. His canoe was upset and he and his companion were swept away in the current.

Bradstreet and Miss Thiemann swam ashore and gave the alarm.

COMET TO BE NEAREST TONIGHT

The newly discovered Schwassman-Wachmann comet, which is rapidly approaching the sun, will reach the point in its orbit nearest the earth tonight and should be visible with the aid of field glasses or small telescopes, according to Dr. Jessica Young, professor of astronomy in Washington University.

If the sky is clear, Dr. Young said, it may be seen low in the east in the constellation Dolphin about 9 o'clock. This constellation lies south of the better known constellation of Cygnus, otherwise known as the Swan or the Northern Cross. Astronomers have computed that the visiting body will pass within 8,000,000 miles of the earth, which is unusually close for a comet to approach. It will reach the point in its course nearest the sun on June 13. After that it will move rapidly away from the solar system and soon will be out of reach of the most powerful telescopes.

INSIDE STORY OF OFFER TO "FIX" DETROIT CAR CONTRACT

Edwin B. Meissner Tells of Telephone Proposal by St. Louis Man to Get $1,700,000 Job for St. Louis Car Co. Upon Payment of $30,000.

VISIT BY MYSTERIOUS STRANGER FOLLOWS

(Copyright, 1930, by the Pulitzer Publishing Co.)

The inside story of how he was approached for a large sum of money the day before the Detroit Common Council awarded the $1,747,000 contract for new street cars to him was given to the Post-Dispatch yesterday by Edwin B. Meissner, president of the St. Louis Car Co.

The story amplifies the report of the occurrence published by the Post-Dispatch May 22. Through go-betweens, Meissner charged he was informed a mysterious "Mr. Carroll of Detroit," with powerful interests, could obtain approval of the contract for the St. Louis Car Co. by the Common Council for a consideration of $30,000 to $35,000.

Meissner declared he rejected the proffered services of "Mr. Carroll of Detroit," when that gentleman came to his office on appointment through a go-between, to make the proposed deal.

Flashlight Trap.

Believing his visitor was merely trying to cut in on a legitimate transaction, Meissner said he arranged an elaborate trap for him to prevent any possible interference, as intimated, in the awarding of the contract, and to enable him to identify the man.

While "Mr. Carroll of Detroit" was in his office, Meissner said a stenographer and another witness concealed close by, made a record of the conversation. Later, a photographer, in the car company's employ, took a flashlight photograph of the visitor.

After this episode, Meissner declared, he dared "Mr. Carroll of Detroit" to interfere with the awarding of the contract, and threatened exposure before the Common Council should he do so.

Before the Council met to consider the contract in formal session, Meissner said he conferred in Detroit with John Gillespie, Commissioner of Public Works, whom he knew, and told him the story of the incident here, and showed him the flashlight picture.

Got Contract on Merit.

Defending the administration of Mayor Bowles of Detroit, Gillespie advised him that the contract could not be awarded on any basis except merit, and, as proof, told him to await developments in the Council that night before exposing the proposal that had been made to him, Meissner said. As told heretofore, the Council later did award the contract to Meissner's company.

"I received a telephone call between 1 and 2 p. m. on May 5 from a St. Louis man, who used to do business a number of years ago with my company," Meissner said, in telling his story to a Post-Dispatch reporter. "I will not reveal his identity now.

" 'You're interested in that Detroit contract, aren't you?' he inquired, and I said I certainly was.

" 'Well, I've met a fellow who can do something for you,' he told me. He said he understood the contract price had been reduced and the contract was being held up. I told him that was nothing new, and it had all been in the newspapers.

" 'This fellow can straighten all that out for you,' the St. Louis man said.

" 'What's your interest in the matter?' I asked.

Asked to Do a "Favor."

" 'I was in a downtown hotel,' he explained. 'A friend of mine, who lives here, introduced me to a friend of his from Detroit. He asked me if I knew Ed Meissner and I said I did. He told me I could do them a favor.

" 'The Detroit man wants to be employed by you to get the contract through.'

The wreckage quickly sank and Coast Guardsmen who arrived in about half an hour could not find the body.

SHOT AND KILLED BY SISTER WHO SAYS HE HIT HER

Carlton Trachte, 29, Fatally Wounded by Mrs. Loretta Byrne at His Home, 6048 Harney Avenue.

Carlton Trachte, 29 years old, a machinist, was shot in the forehead by his sister, Mrs. Loretta Byrne, 32, at his home, 6048 Harney avenue, at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon. He died at City Hospital two hours later.

Mrs. Byrne arrested at the home of a relative on Easton avenue, admitted the shooting, and said her brother had struck her.

She said she went to her brother's home to return a borrowed valise, and that she found Trachte arguing with his wife about the disposal of some furniture, which a neighbor wished to leave with them. She said her brother spoke abusively to her, and pushed her through the kitchen door and out on the porch. She had several bruises.

She left the house and went to her home at 5650 Hellrung place. A few minutes later she returned, carrying a loaded revolver. A neighbor, Mrs. Gladys Eise, said she saw the revolver in Mrs. Byrne's hand as she entered the house.

The shooting occurred shortly after Mrs. Byrne re-entered the Trachte home. She left the revolver, wrapped in paper, on a table. Policemen who went to Mrs. Byrne's home to look for her found a large still in the Hellrung place house, and arrested Byrne on a charge of violating the liquor laws.

Mrs. Melba Trachte, who was in her home when her sister-in-law shot Trachte, said she did not see the shooting, but confirmed the story of a quarrel. She was caring for an 18-month-old child, while her two older children were at the Byrne home.

Mrs. Byrne was taken to the hospital for identification, but her brother died before she could be taken to his bedside. Mrs. Trachte, Byrne, and a girl employed at the Trachte home, were questioned at Page boulevard police station, then released to appear at the inquest tomorrow. Mrs. Byrne is held on a murder charge.

HUNDREDS WITHDRAW FUNDS FROM GRAND BANK

Line of Depositors at Doors at Opening at 8:30 A. M. Numbers as Many as 300 at Times, Dwindles to Nothing by 5 P. M.

PRESIDENT MAYS SAYS CRISIS IS PAST

In Statement Declares Depository Which Was Robbed of More Than $1,000,000 Will Be Able to Meet All Demands.

Following heavy withdrawals from checking accounts and the filing of many withdrawal notices for time deposits, Ed Mays, president of the Grand National Bank, issued a statement yesterday afternoon that the crisis in the affairs of the bank had been passed and that sufficient cash was on hand to meet the maximum possible demands upon checking accounts.

The statement came after hundreds of customers, alarmed by the announcement Friday that more than $1,000,000 in securities, cash and jewelry had been lost by the bank and its deposit box customers in the burglary last Sunday, had filed through the banking room.

At times the line of waiting customers extended from the bank's door at 505 North Grand boulevard to Washington boulevard, almost a block, and numbered as many as 300 men and women. New comers replaced those who had transacted their business until 4 p. m. when the line began to dwindle. At 4:30 there were about 30 waiting on the sidewalk and at 5 o'clock the line was gone. Evening business was normal and the bank closed at its usual Saturday hour, 8 o'clock.

Mays' Statement.

President Mays' statement, issued at 2:45 p. m. follows:

The crisis in the affairs of the Grand National Bank has been safely passed. A run on the best of banks is never an easy problem. It has taxed our resources to liquidate our assets rapidly enough to meet the heavy withdrawals. We are glad to announce that in this respect we have succeeded. We have cash in hand to meet the maximum possible demands upon our checking accounts. We will have an adequate force of tellers on hand Monday to pay withdrawals from checking accounts as rapidly as they are required. We regret that it has been necessary for us to invoke the contractual provision for notice of the withdrawal of savings accounts. We do not expect to require the full time, but expect to waive the time provisions within a short time.

To our many friends and patrons who have stood loyally by us, we are deeply grateful. The timidity of those who were stampeded into making withdrawals is easily understandable and of them we have no criticism. There has never been any doubt of the solvency of the bank, but the wide publicity given to the unfortunate robbery of our safe deposit vault was calculated to shake the confidence of many people. We hope, and believe that the confidence our institution has heretofore enjoyed will soon be restored in full.

Customers Admitted in Groups.

Through most of the day, customers were admitted to the bank in groups of 10, so that not more than 75 would be in the banking room at one time, a precaution dictated by police as a safety measure. Checking account customers received cash at two paying tellers' windows and savings account customers were required to fill in withdrawal notice forms.

Before the bank opened at 8:30 a. m. the officers decided to invoke the notice rule which is embodied in all savings passbooks. Printed placards were placed on the walls, reading: "For the mutual benefit of our depositors, we have decided to exercise the rule pertaining to savings accounts as printed in the pass book, 30 days' notice for $100 or less; 60 days' notice for amounts over $100."

TO DEMAND HOUSE INVESTIGATION OF JUDGE ANDERSON

La Guardia to Call Tomorrow for Special Committee to Inquire Into Conduct at Memphis, Tenn.

NEW CHARGES TO BE PREFERRED

New Yorker Following the Same Procedure as in Case of George W. English of East St. Louis.

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 31.—Representative F. H. LaGuardia (Rep.) New York, expects to file with the House Monday a favorable report voted by the Judiciary Committee on his resolution providing for an investigation into the official conduct of Federal Judge Harry B. Anderson, of Memphis, Tenn.

La Guardia, who has been active for several weeks in inquiring into charges against Judge Anderson, said today that if his resolution should be sidetracked, he would impeach Anderson from the floor of the House.

This procedure, the same as that followed several years ago by Representative Keller of Minnesota in obtaining an inquiry into the official acts of Harry M. Daugherty as Attorney-General, would automatically bring the charges against Anderson officially before the House Judiciary Committee and require an investigation.

Wants Special Committee.

In seeking House authority for the appointment of a special committee to take testimony in the Anderson case, La Guardia is proceeding along the lines laid down in the successful effort led by the St. Louis Post-Dispatch to bring the official conduct of Federal Judge George W. English of East St. Louis under congressional scrutiny. As a result of the findings of a subcommittee which held hearings in the English case articles of impeachment were voted by the House and the case set for trial in the Senate. English resigned before the trial date.

The action of the Judiciary Committee in voting for an investigation of Judge Anderson followed a study of records obtained from the Department of Justice, pertaining to bankruptcy proceedings in Judge Anderson's court.

Anderson went before a subcommittee which conducted this preliminary inquiry and vigorously denied any wrongdoing. On the subcommittee were La Guardia, Sumners (Dem.), Texas, who took a prominent and effective part in the English impeachment proceedings, and Browning (Dem.), Tennessee.

If a further inquiry looking to the possible impeachment of Anderson is ordered, it is expected that the subcommittee will consist of those three with the addition of Hickey (Rep.), Indiana, as chairman, and Sparks (Rep.), Kansas.

Strong pressure to stop the investigation has been brought to bear upon the committee by Senator McKellar (Dem.), Tennessee, and others.

Case Up Last March.

The attention of Congress was first directed to the charges against Judge Anderson last March, when La Guardia presented a resolution calling on the Department of Justice for information. He complained at that time that whenever a member of Congress sought information from the department regarding the alleged misconduct of a Federal Judge he was treated "as if he himself was being impeached instead of the Judge under investigation."

La Guardia charged before the House that bondsmen had been favored by Judge Anderson with reduction of their liabilities to small amounts in cases of absconding violators of the anti-narcotic laws; that Judge Anderson required receivers to deposit bankruptcy funds in the American Savings Bank and Trust Co.; that this bank failed at a time when members of the Judge's family were receiving loans from it; that a certain man was repeatedly named receiver of bankrupt estates and in many cases failed to make a proper accounting thereby causing losses to creditors.

New Charges to Press.

LaGuardia is now prepared to press additional charges which have come to his attention since he began his inquiry.

Judge Anderson has presided over the court of the Western Tennessee district, by appointment of President Coolidge, since Sept. 14, 1925. He was previously active in state Republican politics and for two years was a referee in bankruptcy. He has been president of the Memphis Bar Association and of the Memphis Chamber of Commerce.

TIRANA, Albania, May 31.—The national census announced today, puts the population of Albania at 833,000. Census officials think the correct figure is nearer 1,000,000, but as many superstitious Albanians hid in caves and mountain fastnesses to evade enumeration, the smaller figure stands.

HEAD OF GIRLS' SCHOOL ASSAILS PROHIBITION LAW

Mrs. Winifred Merrill Declares Dry Law "Failure and Fundamentally Wrong."

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 31.—Attacking prohibition from the educational standpoint, Mrs. Winifred Merrill, for 13 years head of the Merrill School for Girls at Oaksmere, Mamaroneck, has declared herself an advocate of the repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

"The law is fundamentally wrong and has proved a failure," Mrs. Merrill said, "because it is against the entire trend of modern education, which rejects all prohibitions and attempts to develop the natural inhibitions. The human mind refuses to accept the theory of prohibition. It was enacted only because individuals wish to exercise their inherent desire for supremacy. That group that believed in total abstinence decided to force the rest of socety to accept its viewpoint. This brings revolt."

TO LOOK FOR LIQUOR RUNNERS DESPITE NEW CANADIAN LAW

Customs Officials in Detroit Area However, Expects Traffic to Be Negligible.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, May 31. — Customs officials in the Detroit area announced today there would be no lessening of their vigilance against liquor running as a result of the new Canadian law prohibiting liquor exports to the United States.

Col. Heinrich Pickert, Collector of Customs, said he expected a diminishing of liquor running to a "negligible quantity" as a result of the new law.

Regarding the possibility of smugglers clearing liquor cargoes for other than American ports then reshipping them to this country Col. Pickert said that the law was so strict that no Canadian distillery would dare to deal with persons suspected of such intentions.

By the Associated Press.

FOND DU LAC, Wis., May 31.—A Circuit Court jury today awarded Richard M. Wilson, public school athletic instructor at Hammond, Ind., damages of $1000, for injuries sustained as a result of a dream.

Wilson said he had a nightmare the night after an automobile accident near here involving his car with machines driven by L. C. Debruin, Fond du Lac, and Frank Leitem, Three Rivers, Mich. During the dream, he said, he had visions of crashing automobiles. He leaped out of bed to escape the dream crash, and rammed his hand through a window pane. His hand was injured permanently, he testified. The jury found Leitem responsible for the accident.

HUNDREDS DRAW DEPOSITS FROM GRAND NATIONAL

plained to savings depositors that their money was tied up in 30, 60 and 90 day notes and declared that the bank hoped to be able to make payments to them within a few days.

Bank Has 4000 Depositors.

Ledbetter said that the bank had about 4000 depositors with checking accounts and about 10,000 savings depositors He repeated Mays' announcement that after the bank's loss of $350,000 in securities and $43,000 in cash was charged off, the bank would have a surplus of $150,000, in addition to an unimpaired capital of $700,000.

Late in the afternoon, Mays produced the bank's balance sheet for the close of business Thursday and called a reporter's attention to the fact that it showed $3,000,000 in checking accounts, $962,000 in savings accounts and $282,000 in other time deposits, offset by total resources of $7,677,592, including $1,524,000 in Government bonds, $3,986,000 in loans and $900,000 cash on hand.

More than 100 persons were in line at the door when the bank opened at 8:30 a. m. and about 200 were in the bank at 9 o'clock when police decided that it was too crowded.

Uniformed policemen stationed at the door supervised the entrance of the customers and other policemen patrolled the sidewalk, keeping the waiting customers in line and ordering spectators to move on. Detectives in civilian clothes stood in the banking room and patrolled the Grand and Olive neighborhood as a precaution against crime.

Money Conspicuously Displayed.

Mays appeared at the depository shortly after noon. "We intend to be in business here as long as there is a bank at Grand and Olive," he told reporters. "We have cash on hand or available to pay everyone who can draw a check against us. We are confident that after the scare is over they will bring their money back."

Three times during the day, money trucks arrived with additional cash. Officers said that $1,225,000 was received, $775,000 from the Federal Reserve Bank in two deliveries and $450,000 from the Chase National Bank of New York. Ledbetter carried the heavy blue sacks into the bank and placed them conspicuously in the tellers' cages. The day's deposits by customers were estimated at $100,000.

Officers of the bank would not estimate the amount of withdrawals. "We paid out more Thursday than we will today," said J. A. Van Loon, a director. "Most of these people have small accounts. The large depositors are not withdrawing." Ledbetter said about 400 persons made deposits totaling $300,000 on Thursday.

One Man in Line Faints.

Outside the bank, passersby tried to peer into the bank, but were quickly told to move on. Across the street, spectators gathered to watch the scene at the bank and the activities of police and worried depositors. One man fainted in the waiting line and was taken away to be revived. A restaurant owner peddled sandwiches to depositors in the line during the lunch period. Bank officers and employes spoke to customers they knew and urged them to be patient.

One man pushed to the door of the bank and demanded admittance, mentioning something about $1500. He was told to line-up with the rest, but finally he made it known that he did not want to withdraw $1500, but desired to deposit that amount. A vice president of the bank ushered him inside.

Another man who drew $12,000 from his checking account, arranged for the services of a uniformed policeman to accompany him to his home.

Inside Story of "Fixing" Offer

he want,'" Meissner said he asked his informant.

"'Well, he'll fix things up for you in Detroit for a fee of $30,000 or $35,000.'"

"I told him there wasn't that much in the contract," Meissner continued, "and then he explained that he was talking to me just as a friendly act, and that he was doing it for a friend.

"'Well, if this man is so powerful, and he is in the city,' I told him, 'Let him come to my office so I can see him.'

"I was then asked to come downtown to see this man who could fix things, but I wouldn't do it.

"'I don't know whether he'll go out to see you or not,' I was told.

"'All right, then,' I said, and that ended the conversation with the St. Louis man. I have not talked to him since, nor have I seen him."

Suspicions Aroused.

Meissner said he mulled the telephone conversation over in his mind, and the more he considered it, the stranger it seemed.

"Why at that very moment we had a letter from Mayor Charles Bowles," Meissner continued. "The letter, dated April 25, informed me the Mayor had called a special meeting of the Detroit Street Railway Commission and recommended that our modified bid be accepted. The commission had approved the Mayor's recommendation and submitted the matter to the Council for final approval, the Mayor said.

"The awarding of the contract to our company was delayed April 29 at a Council meeting by a motion by Councilman John A. Kronk, who did not favor the buying of new cars, but rather the rebuilding of old ones.

"After that, I was in telephone communication at various times with Joseph E. Mills, Commissioner of Purchases and Supplies, and had never been told our company was not to be awarded the contract despite Kronk's objection.

"I had these events in my mind when I talked with the St. Louis man over the telephone, I did not know whether the Detroit man would come to my office or not, but I was determined that he was not going to interfere with the award.

How Trap Was Set.

"No names or connections had been mentioned in the telephone conversation, so I did not know whether this Detroit man represented any group or individual in Detroit, I did know my bid was the lowest, that the Mayor, the Commissioner of Purchases and Supplies and the Street Railway Commission had approved the awarding of the contract to my firm, and I was determined no underhand methods were going to prevent me from getting the contract on merit."

For these reasons, Meissner declared he devised a plan to record the visit of the Detroit man should he come to his office.

"I placed a stenographer and a witness, both employes of my firm, in a back room of my office, and concealed a photographer, also in my employ, nearby, and instructed the telephone girl and a secretary to take a good look at a man whom I expected, so they could later identify him," he said. An hour later, a man giving the name of "Mr. Carroll" asked to see him, and was ushered into his private office.

"'Your name is Carroll?' I asked him, said Meissner.

"'Yes, my name is Carroll,' he said. 'You got a telephone call?'

"'Yes,' I replied.

"'You know the story?'

"I asked him his identity himself, tell me where he was from, what he did, who he was.

"'I'm here,' he said evasively.

Conversation Recorded.

"'Do you expect me to do business with strangers?' I parried, trying to find out just what his game was. We were in a middle office of my office suite, with intervening doors closed on both sides of us. We sat across the table from each other. Behind me, in another room, a stenographer was taking down our conversation, while another witness listened through an open transom.

"In another room directly behind the stranger, the door also closed, a photographer was setting up his camera. He had instructions to take a flashlight photograph of the first one coming out of the door, who was to be my visitor.

"'You know what I'm here for,' my visitor replied to my question.

"'Yes,' I said, 'but I don't know who you are or who you represent. Can't you identify yourself?'"

During the conversation, Meissner said, he received a telephone call from one of the two witnesses in the next room.

"I was told," Mr. Meissner went on, "that my visitor was talking so low those in the next room couldn't get all the conversation.

"'All right,' I answered back, as if taking an outside phone call. 'I'm busy now.' And I hung up.

"Then I continued my talk with the Detroit man. He was smooth in his conversation, suave in his manner. He smiled, was at ease, and talked very low. I repeated my efforts to find out the real motive behind his visit to me.

Visitor Hid Identity.

"'I don't intend to identify myself,' he told me. 'I'm not here to talk. All you have to do is say yes or no. You know the story. If your answer is yes, we'll come to terms.'

"I told him my answer was no.

"'We don't do business around here on that kind of a basis,' I said.

"'All right, sir, thank you,' he said, and prepared to leave. He was smiling and agreeable.

"Mr. Carroll of Detroit" arose and opened the door to leave, Meissner said, and then for the first time the plans went wrong. The photographer's flashlight powder failed to explode.

"To prevent our caller from escaping before we had a photograph, I held him in the doorway," Meissner continued. "Then the photographer made the picture. My visitor was unruffled and calm even then. He merely smiled and didn't seem angry.

"'I want you to know before you leave,' I told him then, 'that I have a record of our conversation and a photograph of you.

"'I'm going to be in Detroit tomorrow night. If things don't go through, I'm going to show you up, picture and all. Now get out of here.'"

Never Heard From Since.

"The Detroit man left. I never saw him again or heard from him. I departed for Detroit at 6:30 p. m. the same night, with the photograph taken in my office, and notes on the conversation as well."

Analyzing the entire affair, Meissner said he was convinced the proposal made to him was the outcome of someone's trying to "muscle in" on a legitimate business deal.

"I believed then and I still believe my visitor was working entirely on his own. I believe the man was just a smooth individual taking advantage of a psychological condition to get on our payroll for a large sum of money. I did not think then and I do not think now that he had any official connection in Detroit.

"I arrived in Detroit the day the awarding of the contract was to come up again before the Council, I went to John Gillespie, Commissioner of Public Works, whom I knew. I told him the whole story and showed him the picture. I asked his advice on what I should do.

"That night the Council was to vote, and I did not want to take any chances of Mr. Carroll's preventing my getting the contract. Gillespie advised me to do nothing. He said he knew the contract would be awarded on merit, and that no one would be able to prevent it being awarded on any other basis but merit.

"So I said nothing about it to anyone. I sat in the balcony of the Council chambers that evening when the council convened, and voted unanimously to award my company the contract. I left for St. Louis the same night.

"The next day I telephoned Commissioner Mills. He told me that as soon as the Mayor formally approved the council's action, the contract would be signed. The contract was signed May 14.

"I did not hear further about the happenings in my office, which I had discussed with no one but Mr. Gillespie, until, to my amazement, a reporter for the Post-Dispatch came to my office about a week later, and, after relating to me substantially everything that had occurred, asked for a statement of all the facts.

"Since then ugly rumors have come to me, statements and misstatements, charges and counter charges involving Detroit officials whom I know to be innocent of wrong-doing. In order that the public may know the facts, and all of them, I make this statement."

No Detroit Officials Know "Mr. Carroll."

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, Mich., May 31.—"The Mysterious Mr. Carroll" is still unidentified so far as city officials of Detroit are concerned.

John Gillespie, Commissioner of Public Works, said today he knew no one by the name of Carroll or answering his description. He said he had seen a photograph taken in Edwin B. Meissner's office in St. Louis and had not been able to identify it as that of any one he ever had seen before.

"Mr. Meissner told me the story and showed me the photograph," Gillespie said. "I told him the contract would be awarded by the Council only on merit, and advised him not to worry."

Gillespie expressed the opinion that "Mr. Carroll" had no connection with any Detroit official.

Councilman John A. Kronk, whose lone negative vote held up the award of the contract for a week, said today he voted against the award because he thought the city should buy second-hand cars instead of new ones. He said he never had heard of Carroll. Kronk pointed out that the only effect his vote could have had, under the Council rules, was postponement of the award for a week. He was outvoted 8 to 1 by his colleagues.

Mayor Charles Bowles, John J. Barlum and Frank H. Dohany, members of the Street Railway commission, and Joseph E. Mills, Commissioner of Purchases and Supplies, all denied any acquaintance with "Carroll."

HOOVER MAKES GOOD CATCH OF TROUT

To Return to Capital Today From Jay Cooke's Pennsylvania Estate.

By the Associated Press.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., May 31.—Refreshed by his week-end spent in the solitude of the Allegheny Mountains, President Hoover will leave the estate of Jay Cooke of Philadelphia early tomorrow to return to Washington.

Escorts of motor cycle police will meet the party as it turns onto the main highway north of the city and form an escort to the Maryland State line, clearing traffic ahead and blocking intersecting roads. At Harrisburg, Gov. Fisher, who also has been a guest of Cooke, will leave the party.

On this third visit to the estate of his old friend and co-worker in the World War Food Administration, the President has found a primeval atmosphere that not even his camp on the headwaters of the Rapidan River in Virginia can surpass. Cooke's preserve covers 4000 acres of wild land in which are seven and one-half miles of well-stock stream.

Arising early, the Chief Executive spent several hours fishing. He caught eight trout weighing between one pound and one pound and a half, and almost as many more when he returned late in the afternoon. Gov. Fisher and Capt. Joel T. Boone, the White House physician, also caught several fish.

Throughout the day the temperature, which had fallen during the night to 35 degrees, continued to hover below normal and a chill hung in the air despite the bright sun.

The 250-mile drive to the White House tomorrow is expected to be made in easier stages than the trip North. Under present plans the cavalcade will halt at Harrisburg to bid the Pennsylvania Governor good-by, and later will stop for luncheon. If time permits, the Chief Executive also plans to stop at the camp of Lawrence Richey, his secretary, near Thurmont, Md., where lunch was served on the trip to Gettysburg.

NEGRO LYNCHED, 6 GUARDSMEN HURT BY OKLAHOMA MOB

Alleged Attacker of Woman Stabbed by Her Husband and Shot From Crowd While in Jail.

DIES AFTER BEING TAKEN TO HOSPITAL

Militiamen Fire Machine Gun When They Arrive at Jail—Several Attempts to Burn Place.

By the Associated Press.

CHICKASHA, Ok., May 31.—Henry Argo, 19-year-old Negro, charged with attacking a white woman, today was killed by a mob—the second member of his race to be lynched in the Southwest within a month.

More than 1000 men and boys who stormed the Grady County Jail intermittently throughout the night and fought National Guardsmen, inflicted fatal injuries on the Negro before he was removed to a hospital at Oklahoma City, where he died this afternoon. A bullet fired by an unidentified member of the mob pierced the Negro's brain as he was in his cell.

Later, when the mob spirit had subsided and spectators were permitted in the jail, the Negro was stabbed near the heart by G. W. Skinner, husband of the woman alleged to have been assaulted.

Early this month a mob burned the courthouse and jail at Sherman, Tex., killing a Negro charged with the same offense, and dragged his body through the streets, later burning it. No attempt was made here to harm other Negroes. The situation was quiet tonight.

Six Guardsmen Injured.

Six members of the Chickasha Artillery battery of the Oklahoma National Guard suffered minor injuries from missiles thrown by the mob. Several citizens were injured.

Skinner and three other members of the mob were arrested, but were released later without bond.

B. F. Holding, County Attorney, announced that an inquest would be held Tuesday. Gov. W. J. Holloway, who had advocated firm dealing with the mob while the attack was at its height, detailed J. Berry King, Attorney-General, to assist in holding the investigation.

The Negro twice was reported dead from his wounds. The first report came when it was learned he was wounded, the second when, wrapped in a blanket, he was carried through a crowd. He was loaded into an ambulance and rushed to the University of Oklahoma Hospital at Oklahoma City. He died about an hour after arrival there.

Woman's Husband Leader.

With Skinner as a leader, the mob assembled early last night after Argo had been arrested and identified by Mrs. Skinner as the man who she said had attacked her in their little dugout home a mile from Chickasha.

Deputy Sheriffs repulsed the first advances on the jail. As the mob grew more menacing, local National Guardsmen were ordered out by Charles F. Barrett, Oklahoma Adjutant-General.

Using battering rams and sledgehammers, about 100 men crashed in the steel door of the jail just as the National Guardsmen arrived in a truck, clearing a path with high-aimed machine-gun volleys.

Drawing side arms, Capt. E. R. Smith and Lieut. H. G. White kept the leaders from storming the second floor, where the Negro's cell was located, but earlier a lone rioter had gained access to the upper corridor and had fired point blank at Argo, neither shot taking effect.

With the arrival of more Guardsmen the mob was driven from the jail. Capt. Smith and his 30 men held the besieged structure until a skirmish in which tear gas bombs were thrown. The fumes drove out the Guardsmen and rioters alike, momentarily. The mob permitted the transfer of other prisoners, including two Negroes, to the city jail.

Tried to Set Fire to Jail.

Rioters cut light and telephone wires, flung brickbats, fired the National Guard truck in front of the building and at least a dozen times attempted to set fire to the jail.

Bolder men advanced to the door of the cell in which the Negro was confined and attacked the walls, seeking to make an opening through which they could extricate their intended victim. Argo fought back, hurling whatever missiles reached his hands. Finally he wrenched an iron bar from one of the attackers and flailed about with it.

Rioters, seeking clubs and levers, tore water pipes from the interior of the jail, loosing a flood to add to the confusion. Officers think the Negro was shot during this stage, probably by some one who climbed the ivy-covered walls outside and fired into the cell.

Skinner, tenant farmer, collapsed on the jail lawn this afternoon. He was taken to a hospital, where physicians said they thought he had been overcome by fatigue.

JEFFERSON, O., May 31. — Pleading not guilty and waiving preliminary examination, Mrs. Maude Lowther, 22-year-old house maid, and Trilby Smith, 26, truck driver, both of Ashtabula, today were held for a special grand jury meeting June 9 on charges of first degree murder in the killing of Smith's 28-year-old wife Thursday night.

Smith and Mrs. Lowther, county officers said, had confessed, they plotted to kill Mrs. Smith so they could continue with their love affair which started two weeks ago.

Prior to the arraignment, Mrs. Lowther sat in her cell and told of her affair with Smith, and of the shooting of Mrs. Smith as the she sat in her husband's automobile with a 3-month-old baby in her arms.

"I did just what Trilby told me to do," she said. "I did the shooting, but he put me up to it."

She said she met Smith at a picture show. "He asked me to go out with him that evening, and I agreed," she said. "We rode in his truck. We met several times after that. He told me his wife nagged him and that he wanted to get rid of her. I did not know he was married when I first met him, but he told me after I realized that I had fallen in love with him.

"Two nights before the shooting he came to see me and gave me a revolver. 'Use this,' he said. I kept the revolver and asked him what night it was to be done. He told me Thursday night."

Mrs. Lowther said she was part Indian. She said she was born on a farm in Clarksburg, W. Va., the eldest of seven children.

Two years ago at Clarksburg she met her husband, from whom she has separated. He was 25 years older than she, but she thought she would be happy. Lowther, however, became jealous and left her, she said.

CARMEN VOTE TO TAKE ONE DAY IN EIGHT OFF

By This Means, Dismissal of Additional Extra Men Will Be Averted.

Members of the Street Carmen's Union voted two to one yesterday in favor of a proposal that each motorman and conductor take a day off every eighth day to avert the dismissal of additional extra men through the proposed discontinuance of the Fourth street line and 15 runs of the Lee avenue line.

The vote, which was taken at Unity Hall, Grand and Page boulevards, through the day was light, about half of the members balloting. Of 1748 voting, 1162 favored the measure and only 586 were opposed. Last week a proposal that the men take every seventh day off was defeated.

The company has given its consent to the day off to prevent increased unemployment among the members of the union.

Opinion on Home Brew Kick.

BALTIMORE, Md., May 31.—Home brew develops no kick in bottles, especially if tightly capped, according to an opinion of prohibition headquarters in Washington received here today. Counsel for Harry Burger had raised the point that maybe the illegal alcoholic content shown by analysis had developed between the time the brew was seized, April 2, and when it was tested May 7.

part of more than $8000 which his men were being paid by the Republican organization. He said, 'This does not go on our books, but the cash is kept in the vault and paid direct to our men.' The League has not reported to the Investigation Committee this use of money in that campaign.

"I submit these facts to you for your official use and I stand in readiness to appear before the Senate or any other committee to testify to these facts under oath.

Very Sincerely

Signed 'EMMET McBRIDE.'

As to his relations with his brothers, mentioned in the letter to La Guardia, Emmet McBride had the following to say:

"I have the most agreeable personal relations with my brother, David L. McBride. He is a wonderfully fine man. He is honest and square, but he has got into a crookedly managed organization which uses money contributed for a good cause in a bad political way. My personal relations with F. Scott McBride are friendly. We are only estranged in politics and business. He is not sincerely a temperance reformer. He has had no lively conscience against the evils of the liquor traffic and little heart interest for those who suffer from drink. His interest has always been the publicity and politics connected with the reform program and with the abundance of contributed money to handle and speculate with.

"He failed to succeed in the ministry, in which his salary for 10 years ranged from $900 to $1500 and left the ministry to attain a salary of $4000 plus an automobile given by the League within a year or two."

Both Chairman Caraway (Dem.), Arkansas, and Senator Blaine (Rep.), Wisconsin, who took the leading part in questioning F. Scott McBride before the Lobby Committee, were out of the city today and there was no indication whether the committee would reopen its hearings. F. Scott McBride was reported to be in Des Moines, Ia., today.

BEATEN BY CHESS CHAMPION

Twenty-five Players of 30 Played Simultaneously Defeated.

Frank J. Marshall of New York, the chess champion of the United States, played a simultaneous exhibition against 30 St. Louis chess experts last night in the Italian Garden at Hotel Chase.

He defeated 25 players, but Arthur Bass, George Payne, D. H. Kalthoff and David Brown scored victories over him and Roland Albizer gained a draw. The exhibition followed a dinner in Marshall's honor under the auspices of the Missouri Pacific St. Louis Chess Club. Marshall's visit to St. Louis was part of a tour prior to his departure this month for Europe where he will take part in the tournament of chess masters.

DIVORCE QUASHED, MAN FINDS SELF WITH TWO WIVES

Edwin A. Stuart, Airplane Parts Maker, Rewed After Decree Which Is Now Set Aside.

A divorce awarded to Mrs. Louise Stuart, 4211 Lawn avenue, on May 5 was set aside by Circuit Judge Rosskopf yesterday when Mrs. Stuart appeared in court on an order she herself had instituted and testified she had not desired the decree but had been compelled as a result of threats and importunities by her husband to obtain it. The husband is Edwin A. Stuart, president of Stuart Aero Products, Inc., an airplane parts manufacturing concern with offices and plant at 1211 Rutger street.

Stuart, who had been ordered to show cause why the divorce should not be set aside, was not in court, a deputy sheriff reporting he had been unable to serve notice of the order. It was disclosed at the hearing, however, that Stuart had remarried since May 5. As a result of the Judge's action, therefore, Stuart now is married to two women at the same time.

Disclosure of Stuart's recent marriage was made by Mrs. Louise Stuart, who said she had talked with her former husband at his office Thursday and had told him of the motion she had filed to have the decree set aside. She testified he replied, "Well, the Judge can't do anything about it until he sees me."

Continuance Refused.

Morris Levinson, an attorney who said he wasn't sure whether he had been retained or not, appeared in Stuart's behalf and sought a continuance of the hearing.

Judge Rosskopf refused a continuance, however, declaring that the new Mrs. Stuart's position was no concern of his and that he believed Stuart was trying to evade service on the order until after this term of court ended, as the law provides that a divorce cannot be vacated after the ending of the term in which it was granted.

Mrs. Louise Stuart testified she married Stuart on July 23, 1923, and since that time had turned over to him $950 and had mortgaged property in Texas to help him get established in business and to buy an airplane. For several weeks prior to their separation on April 29, she related, her husband had urged her to get a divorce "for business reasons" and had finally threatened to "leave the company flat" unless she agreed. To save her own money and that which friends had invested in the concern, she said, she finally consented.

Never Saw Her Witnesses.

The details of the divorce suit, which alleged general indignities, were all aranged by her husband, she said, and at the trial of the suit there appeared as character witnesses for her a man she had never seen before. He testified that he had known her for some time and that her reputation was good. Another character witness, she said, was a man with whom she had only a business acquaintance.

She testified further that prior to April 29 she had been employed as office manager for her husband and the company now owed her $600 in back salary.

In setting aside the decree, Judge Rosskopf said he believed the divorce had been a fraud on the court even though it may not have been a fraud on her.

"Certainly," he said, "if the Court had known all the facts at first, the divorce never would have been granted. I think this woman was induced to go through with the plan by the high-powered salesmanship of her husband."

ZEPPELIN BEING REPAIRED AFTER BATTLING STORM

Dirigible, on Flight From South America to U. S., Met Worst Squalls of Career, Eckener Says.

By the Associated Press.

LAKEHURST, N. J., May 31.—After riding out the most violent storm of its career, the German dirigible, Graf Zeppelin, arrived here today. The globe-girdling airship that has crossed the Pacific once and the Atlantic seven times, came into sight at 6 o'clock this morning.

Officers and passengers told of the storms. As soon as the ship was berthed workmen began repairs on broken struts holding the rear engine gondola.

W. F. Von Meister, American representative of the Luftshifbau, said the struts were broken while the ship was at its mast at Pernambuco. He said the damage was found to be unimportant and to avoid delay the ship was brought on here with no repairs. He said the gondola had suffered no additional damage during the flight, despite the rough weather.

The passengers spoke of the storm casually. Even the women, Mrs. Mary Pierce of New York, Mrs. Laura Durston of Syracuse, N. Y., and Lady Grace Drummond Hay of London, said they had not been frightened at any time.

Few Witness Arrival.

Soon after the ship arrived, witnessed by a crowd of a few hundred instead of the thousands who greeted the dirigible on its three other stops here, the passengers began to scatter. The Infante Alfonso, first cousin of the King of Spain, was taken in a navy plane to Washington on invitation by the Government. W. B. Leeds, wealthy New Yorker, took Mrs. Pierce to New York in a large plane he had waiting for him at the field. The others went to New York on a special train.

An hour and a quarter after the Zeppelin was sighted, it was in the great hangar and the refueling for the last stretch of its four-continent flight, which has already taken it 15,000 miles in 204 flying hours, was begun. The take-off on the return to Friedrichshafen, with a stop at Seville, Spain, is scheduled for 9 o'clock, Eastern standard time, Monday night.

Route of Flight.

The journey so far has been from Friedrichshafen to Seville, across the tip of Africa and over the Atlantic to Pernambuco, down to Rio de Janeiro and back, and then 3800 miles to Lakehurst.

On its approach to Lakehurst the Zeppelin was met on one side by the navy dirigible Los Angeles, slenderer but almost as long as the Zeppelin, and on the other by the commercial blimp, Vigilant, much smaller than the other two dirigibles.

In an interview, Dr. Eckener spoke of the ship in high praise and told of drenching rains in South America and windstorms on the way from Pernambuco here. "At half past eight last night," he said, speaking through an interpreter, "we ran into a squall which was the worst I have ever experienced, one minute the wind was blowing at 30 miles an hour in one direction and the next it was blowing 40 miles in the exactly opposite direction.

"The ship dipped like this," he gestured with a swoop of his hand. "But," he added with a smile, "none of the passengers was seasick. It was a worse squall than the one in mid-ocean on the first Atlantic flight of the Graf when fabric was torn from a fin."

ST. LOUIS WOMAN ONE OF 3 DROWNED AT SANTA MONICA

Death of Marguerite Keller, 18, Discloses Her Secret Marriage Last January to Vesper Dodson.

Mrs. Marguerite Keller Dodson, 18 years old, 3166 Oregon avenue, was one of three persons drowned Friday when a fishing boat on a Decoration day excursion foundered off the coast near Santa Monica, Cal. Thirteen others are missing.

News of her death, received yesterday by her mother, Mrs. W. E. Turner of the Oregon avenue address, brought about disclosure by her husband, Vesper Dodson, a carpenter of De Soto, Mo., that they had been married last Jan. 12.

The message also stated that Mrs. Dodson's father, Charles Keller, formerly of St. Louis, but now residing in West Los Angeles, was picked up by another fishing boat and revived with a pulmotor. Mrs. Dodson's body was recovered soon after the boat capsized, but efforts to revive her failed.

Mrs. Dodson had planned to return to St. Louis next week, having spent two months visiting her sister, Mrs. F. H. Tieman at West Los Angeles. She was graduated from Roosevelt High School a year ago and had been employed as a telegraph operator until going to California.

Her husband, mother and sister, Miss Dorothy Keller, left St. Louis for Los Angeles last night.

Fifty-Three Survivors Accounted For; Investigations Begun.

By the Associated Press.

SANTA MONICA, Cal., May 31.—Three persons perished, 13 are missing and many more are recovering from shock and exposure as a result of the foundering off Santa Monica late yesterday of the fishing boat Ameco. Coast guard boats searched today for bodies of the missing.

The Ameco suddenly listed when the passengers rushed to the lee side to avoid a heavy spray. The boat carried a holiday crowd to the deep sea fishing smacks ranged along the coast.

Fifty-three survivors have been accounted for. They were picked up by fishing boats that went to the rescue.

The dead: John W. Lockhard, Pasadena; Miss Marguerite Keller, 18, St. Louis, and C. C. Barnett, barber, Los Angeles.

The missing: Edward Manix, Los Angeles; Robert Buchen, Andrew J. Walke, Nathan Cohen, Richard Conifey, Shigno Suemari, 35, all of Los Angeles; W. S. Ferguson, 49, C. K. Lake and William M. Jones, 73, of Glendale; Charles Ellingbone, Alhambra; James Huntsman, 14, Santa Monica; J. Kaminura, Hollywood; Joseph Mamoli, Sawtelle.

The Ameco was 45 feet long. It capsized while it headed for shore in a squall, said Capt. William Lightfoot, the skipper, one of the survivors.

N. A. Law, proprietor of a beach drug store, happened to be looking through a telescope when he saw the Ameco pitch its passengers into the water. He telephoned Santa Monica and Venice police and life guard stations and shore boats put out at full speed to the rescue. The Ameco sank in 75 feet of water.

Federal officials, police and the County Coroner all began investigations. One report being investigated was that there were not enough life preservers. Another said the boat was overloaded. Police said there were but 69 life preservers carried on the craft.

Only the presence nearby of another fishing boat, the Freedom, prevented a greater mishap. The Freedom arrived in time to rescue many from the Ameco floundering in the water and picking others from precarious finger holds on the slippery sides of the overturned boat.

W. E. Jost of Los Angeles, one of the survivors, said: "Suddenly we felt the boat rise as though it were on an elevator. My wife and I were in the stern and I guess that was the reason we did not see the wave that hit us. But the next thing we knew we were in the water. Luckily my wife came up right at my elbow and I managed to pull her to the hull and hold her there until we were rescued by the Freedom."

R. L. Brown of Alhambra saw the wave coming. "It seemed to poise above us for a long time and then we went up almost to its crest before we went over. Everybody was in the water, struggling and screaming and a lot of them went down pretty quick. Nobody had time to prepare for it."

ALLOWS EXTRADITION OF SOLDAN TEACHER

Caulfield Declines to Consider Merits of Omaha Larceny Charge Against Maya.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, May 31.—A requisition for extradition of Mariano M. Maya of St. Louis, a teacher in Soldan High School, to Omaha, Neb., on a charge of grand larceny, in connection with a controversy over settlement of an estate, was granted today by Gov. Caulfield after a hearing. An extradition warrant was issued.

The charge was filed against Maya by one of the joint administrators of the estate of George E. Turkington of Omaha, father of Mrs. Maya. It is alleged that Maya removed jewelry and other personal property valued at $1735 from the Turkington home in Omaha on June 20, 1929, the day of Turkington's death.

An attorney for Maya declared in the hearing today that the charge grew out of a quarrel among relatives over settlement of the estate, and that any action brought should be a civil one and not a criminal one. He declared part of the articles in controversy were given to Mrs. Maya by her father before his death and that she got the remaining articles in a division of property by relatives after her father's death. He said Maya had nothing to do with it.

Objection also was made to extradition on the ground that 11 months had elapsed since the alleged removal of the property, before a charge was filed by one of the joint administrators, a sister of Mrs. Maya.

Gov. Caulfield said that, under the extradition law, he could not go into the merits of the case, and that since the requisition was in proper form, he must grant the request for extradition.

Chief Kaiser Tells Why Police Classify Grand Bank Robbery as "Inside Job"

Says He Cannot See How Looters Worked So Easily Without Assistance From Someone Employed in Bank.

The police theory that the $1,000,000 burglary at the Grand National Bank last Sunday morning was an "inside job" was expounded yesterday afternoon by Chief of Detectives Kaiser, in charge of the investigation, which so far has produced no definite clews pointing to the identity of the robbers.

"By 'inside job' we do not mean that we believe persons employed in the bank actually looted the safe deposit vault," Chief Kaiser said. "We call it an 'inside job' because we cannot see how the robbers could have looted the deposit vault as easily and efficiently as they did without the assistance of someone employed in the bank and because of the apparent effort which was made to make it appear that the robbers had entered through an old hole in the basement wall.

Hole in Wall Arouses Suspicion.

"This hole was made two or three years ago in running steam pipes from the boiler room of the Beers Hotel next door. It is a small opening and was thick with dust when we sent a slender policeman through it after the robbery. He tried his best but he couldn't keep from disturbing the dust and leaving visible marks of his passage.

"When we looked at the looted vault, this hole was one of the first things we saw. Some filing cabinets and bundles of paper which had concealed it before had been carefully moved away from the opening. If someone had crawled through from the other side, these cabinets and papers would have been pushed over in a heap. Why were they moved if not to give the impression that the hole had been used?

Front Door Only Entrance.

"The only possible means of entrance to the bank was the front door. The lock showed no marks of being tampered with. The robbers must have had a key, possibly a copy of one of the 12 keys known to have been in the hands of employes and officers of the bank. If they had a key, we want to know how they got it.

"The robbers picked a time when there was no one in the bank, and when they were disturbed only by a Negro janitor and the vault custodian. They must have known that a police guard had been withdrawn three days before at the order of the bank's cashier; that there was no burglar alarm and that the heavy vault door had been moved to the new bank. How did they know these facts if not from someone inside the bank?

"Could Have Kicked Down Door."

"That piece of sheet iron that they called a door to the safe deposit vault apparently was blown open with a percussion cap placed in the combination lock. I could have kicked it in with my foot. Why did they go to so much trouble?

"We found burglars' tools and percussion caps and fuses hidden away in the bank. In all my life I never heard of a bank burglar that hid his tools at the scene of his crime. They always drop their tools and run or carry their tools away with them.

"The cashier has made no reasonable explanation of why he ordered the police detail withdrawn three days before the burglary after they had watched the vault continuously for almost a month, and why there was no guard in the bank on the day of the robbery. We cannot comprehend the vault custodian's statement that he left the bank every day at 6 o'clock without locking the vault and did not know who was responsible for seeing that it was locked. It looks like the place was wide open."

Cashier and Custodian Out.

The cashier, Gifford J. Herbert, has resigned and the vault custodian, William A. Brittin, has been discharged, as a result of their being held under $70,000 bond each, because Kaiser and Chief of Police Gerk were not satisfied with their answers to questions.

Chief Gerk attributes his adoption of the "inside job" theory to "the general aspect of the whole lay-out as we found it Sunday afternoon (the day of the robbery), re-inforced by subsequent developments."

The subsequent developments which impressed him, he said, were the fact that the police detail was ordered to leave the bank, the fact that there were 12 keys to the bank door and the fact that the custodian disclaimed responsibility for locking the vault.

Herbert has explained to a Post-Dispatch reporter that he ordered the police detail withdrawn because he did not want to impose extra duty on the Police Department any longer than he thought was necessary; he felt that the bank's night watchman and a neighborhood watchman were sufficient protection. He declined to discuss his reasons when questioned by police Thursday, according to Chief Kaiser, and explained, "I don't want to make any statement about that because there may be civil proceedings." Here he referred to threats made by holders of some of the safety boxes which were looted.

Burglars' Tools Hidden.

The so-called burglars' tools were found in a basement storeroom near the looted deposit vault which was searched by detectives with powerful floodlights late Friday.

Twelve caps with fuses were found concealed in the ceiling of the storeroom, apparently having been thrust through ahole in a corrugated iron panel and pushed out of sight.

A ball of soap, such as a safe blower would use in sealing a safe before blowing it with nitroglycerin, and a dry battery were found in a drawer of an old filing cabinet.

Under the cabinet were found a 12-pound sledge hammer, a pinch bar ordinarily used to pry open boxes or draw nails; a 12-inch cold chisel, and a riveter's hammer with a long, tapering head such as burglars sometimes use to knock out small locks. Officials and employes of the bank who were questioned said they had never seen the tools before, and workmen who had been engaged in dismantling the vault preparatory to moving it said the tools did not belong to them.

Kaiser continued yesterday the questioning of officers and employes of the bank in the hope of disclosing something which might serve as a clew. During the afternoon he examined Benjamin Strozier, the Negro janitor, and Fred Krone, a vice president. In the evening he questioned Ben T. Mays, an assistant cashier. Kaiser said the conversations added nothing to his store of information about the case.

Kaiser is anxious to get in touch with persons who saw the robbers enter or leave the bank.

"These men apparently walked out the front door of the bank carrying their loot in sacks or suit cases," Kaiser said. "A million dollars' worth of bonds, money and jewelry is a pretty big load. Even on a Sunday morning, there must have been someone at Grand and Olive who saw them."

Tells of Men With Suit Cases.

Detectives yesterday questioned Gilbert Whittaker, a new private watchman at the bank, who said two men left the bank carrying suit cases on Monday evening, the day after the robbery, one at 8:15 o'clock, the other about 20 minutes later.

Whittaker said he unlocked the door for both men and each time called to Vice President Krone, "Is this man all right," and was told, "Sure, I guess so." Krone said he recalled the incident vaguely, but did not remember whether the men had suitcases or whether they went out or came in. "I am sure they were all right or I wouldn't have told the watchman to open the door," he said. Whittaker was unable to identify any of the bank's employes or the examiners now working there as the men he saw.

No reports of any attempt to sell bonds or jewelry stolen in the burglary had been received last night, although the Police Department had listed the securities and described the jewelry in circulars mailed to police departments throughout the country.

The bank has offered a $25,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the robbers and the recovery of the stolen securities.

Yesterday afternoon a man telephoned the bank, saying that if the reward were increased to $100,000 he would send them a letter which might be helpful in the police inquiry. He said his letter would be signed "C. C." Later this man telephoned the Post-Dispatch and, when questioned, said his theory was that the Grand Bank was robbed by the same group that recently held up a St. Charles bank.

CITY MUST LOOK TO NEW SECTIONS FOR CENSUS GAIN

Nine Wards in Older Part of St. Louis Show Little Increase in Population in Last Decade.

The bulk of the supposedly considerable growth of population of St. Louis in the last decade will have to be found in the newer residential sections, it is indicated by analysis of the reports that have been made in the reports that thus far for nine of the 28 wards giving the nine units 225,714 inhabitants.

In the river wards from the downtown section northward there has been comparatively little, if any, increase in population since 1920 and it appears likely that some neighborhoods have even become less populous. In some of the other wards reported it does not seem that growth has been great, but there are signs of fairly large increases in two or three.

Figures have been announced for the following wards: The Second, Third, Fourth and Fifth, constituting a block of river wards between Market street and East Prairie avenue (5000 north); the Fifteenth, in South St. Louis, around Reservoir Park and Shaw's Garden; the Twentieth, west of Grand boulevard and north of Page boulevard, including the Elleardsville Negro neighborhood; the Twenty-first, in North St. Louis around Fairground Park; the Twenty-third, a midtown district with West Belle place and Pendleton avenue its approximate center, and the Twenty-sixth, a West End ward bounded in general by Delmar boulevard and Walton, Clara and Easton avenues.

Nine Old Wards Had 221,982.

While there haev been some influxes of population and new dwellings in these nine wards, they are essentially older parts of the city that have been well built up for years. Direct comparisons with the 1920 census are impossible because all ward boundaries were altered in 1921, but the wards were not changed from the same general neighborhoods. The nine wards reported in this year's count had 221,982 population in 1920, as they were constituted at that time. That amounted to 29 per cent of the city's 1920 population of 772,897.

By the Census Bureau method of estimating, based on the rate of growth in the preceding decade, St. Louis would have 868,736 population now. The Chamber of Commerce believes the complete figures will show a higher total, and is hopeful that St. Louis may outstrip Cleveland, which has 901,482 now, and keep sixth place among American cities.

The northern, southern, northwestern and southwestern parts of the city have had much development in the way of house, flat and apartment construction in recent years and the West End has gained more apartments. The hopes of civic boosters for greater population are pinned on these districts.

Comparison of Figures.

Announcement of figures for the Third, Fourth, Fifth and Twenty-first Wards was made yesterday by Census Supervisors Hassall and Kersting. The present populations of the nine wards now counted, with 1920 data for the wards of the same designations but varying territories, follow:

Ward.	1930	1920
Second	23,181	20,435
Third	22,685	20,297
Fourth	27,870	28,270
Fifth	18,144	19,294
Fifteenth	25,183	22,669
Twentieth	28,065	24,443
Twenty-first	23,043	30,900
Twenty-third	25,411	28,647
Twenty-sixth	32,132	27,027

The Twenty-first Ward probably made a considerable gain in population in the area it now covers, for this is 54 city blocks smaller than the area it had in the 1920 census. On the other hand, the Third, Fourth and Fifth wards are much larger than a decade ago, having, respectively, 47, 27 and 29 city blocks more.

The Chamber of Commerce tomorrow will renew its effort, begun two weeks ago, to see that all residents of St. Louis and St. Louis County are enumerated. Through newspaper and radio publicity, notices to its membership, the cooperation of public and parochial schools and various other agencies, the chamber has sought names of persons believed to have been missed by the census takers. Up to last Thursday, the time of the last compilation, about 12,000 names had been obtained, but not all of these actually had been skipped, it was found.

NEAR EAST RELIEF HEAD DIES

Christopher Thurber, American Chairman, Expires at Athens.

By the Associated Press.

ATHENS, Greece, May 31.—Christopher Thurber, American chairman of the Near East Relief, who worked many years here and in Turkey, died of apoplexy today. The Government decorated him last year and the funeral Monday will be at public expense.

His efforts in aid of Greek refugees after they were defeated by the Turks led to his imprisonment by the Turkish forces. He subsequently was released on intervention by the United States Government.

EDISON THINKS PROTECTIVE TARIFF WILL AID FARMER

His Health Improved, He Has Been Working Overtime on Rubber Experiments.

By the Associated Press.

FORT MYERS, Fla., May 31.—Thomas A. Edison favors a protective tariff for farmers. He expressed his opinion in an interview in his laboratory here, without interrupting his experiments with plants and weeds in search of a substitute for rubber. He kept steadily at his tasks, talking as he worked.

"I favor a protective tariff for the farmer," he said. "The manufacturer gets protection and the farmer has the same right. The tariff will help bring about a greater agricultural development and national prosperity."

With his health improved, and spurred on by a desire to hasten his rubber research program, Edison has been working overtime during the past few weeks. He declared his health was much better now than when he came here last fall and said he had enjoyed the period spend in working with golden rod, one of his rubber producing plants, and searching the fields for uncatalogued varieties of local plants.

NAVAL ACADEMY UNVEILS SUCCESSOR TO "TECUMSEH"

New God of 2.5 (Passing Grade) Is Done in Bronze; Secretary Adams Participates.

By the Associated Press.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., May 31.—The successor to Tecumseh, the Naval Academy's god of Two Point Five, in bronze instead of the original wood, was unveiled today at a ceremony in which Secretary of the Navy Charles Francis Adams and Rear Admiral Samuel S. Robison, superintendent of the academy, took part.

The original wooden statue was once the figurehead of the U. S. S. Delaware, which was sunk during the Civil War and later raised. In front of Bancroft Hall the life figure has stood for decades, the mock-serious patron saint of the midshipmen. The passing grade in examinations at the academy is 2.5, and countless coins have been tossed at the feet of the image to gain its favor.

The bronze reproduction was the gift of the class of 1891, decided on when the original figure showed signs of decay.

A young man is in urgent need of $2500 for one year to save his home from foreclosure. This embarrassment is only temporary, caused by contract price going higher than finances. He has good income, and will meet obligation when due. He will pay reasonable commission and interest and secure loan by deed of trust on his property. Is there a lady or gentleman who will have confidence in him and make this loan? Will give all facts in interview. Box A-376, Post-Dispatch.

Enforcement of Dry Law Depends On Public Opinion, Doran Says

With State and Federal Officers Cooperating More Sincerely, He Thinks Liquor Traffic Can Be Curbed.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 31.—Commissioner James M. Doran of the Bureau of Prohibition today made public a monograph on the subject of "State Co-Operation in the Enforcement of National Prohibition Laws." It is a factual outline on Federal and State responsibility. Facts are set forth relating to co-operation of prohibition enforcement agencies.

An analysis of State enforcement laws is made and a comparison of the State laws with national prohibition laws is outlined. Conditions in prohibition enforcement areas are descrbed showing what can be accomplished when close co-operation exists, and the results when this co-operation is lacking.

Conditions considered typical in certain sections, notably Pennsylvania, New York, Massachusetts and other states, are discussed.

The monograph says:

"In the 10 years that have followed the adoption of the eighteenth amendment and the prohibition enforcement act, many citizens of the United States have overlooked or forgotten the fact that before the Volstead law was passed, 32 states, the District of Columbia, Porto Rico and Alaska were under bone-dry prohibition laws.

Comprises Three-fourths of U. S.

"They comprised three-quarters of the territory of the United States and a population of about 51,000,000. In the other 16 states there were counties and sections comprising over 14,000,000 inhabitants that had prohibition under local option laws.

"This fact must be borne in mind constantly in any discussion of state co-operation with Federal authorities. Many states have liquor laws more strict than the national prohibition act.

"If the enforcement of these laws is not what it should be, the blame cannot be attached to the enforcement authorities, nor can it consistently be laid at the doors of the Federal authorities.

"Federal laws were passed before 1920 regulating interstate shipment of liquor, making it illegal to transport liquor from a wet state into a dry state. All states having prohibition laws had adequate enforcement acts. They had and have today, with five exceptions, complete machinery for handling liquor law violations.

"What are the respective duties of the two powers, state and Federal, under the eighteenth amendment and the national prohibition act? When a power of government is conferred, the duty is incumbent on those to whom it is entrusted to exercise it according to public needs.

Clearer Conception Needed.

"It is becoming increasingly apparent that a clearer conception must be had of the respective functions of the Federal and state governments under the concurrent clause of the eighteenth amendment.

"In those states where state officials generally put into action what they tacitly agree is their duty under the concurrent clause, much better results will be achieved.

"The eighteenth amendment had its origin in a discovery by the people of the necessity for the control and abolition of the liquor traffic. The people placed this obligation on themselves through their regularly constituted channels and assumed its obligations through their respective Federal and state governments.

"Federal obligation is to enforce the provisions of the eighteenth amendment. The Federal Government must do what the states fail to do.

"What the states do the Federal Government is discharged from doing. State obligation comes under a double power—the inherent police power of the state to regulate liquor traffic and the power conferred on the State by the United States in the eighteenth amendment.

"Laws provide plenty of authority for any state official to proceed against any violator of the national prohibition act. The fact that in those states that have no enforcement act and in some states that do have enforcement acts the duty is not performed does not alter the obligation of the state enforcement officials in the least.

"Thirty-two states had prohibition laws when the national prohibition act was passed and became effective in 1920.

"With no exception these 32 states, in a short time after the passage of the Volstead act, amended their laws to bring them in line with the national law and showed every disposition to cooperate with the Federal authorities in enforcing the prohibition laws.

"The states that did not have prohibition in 1920 had laws controlling the liquor traffice. All but two, New York and Pennsylvania, had local option laws.

"It may be pointed out in studying the state laws that as industrial conditions throughout the country changed and the speed of production increased; as the lives of the citizens of each state expanded under the increased benefits of industrial prosperity, the laws controlling liquor became more stringent.

"It seems certain that, had not national prohibition come, more states would have voted statewide prohibition as necessary to their industrial and social progress.

"It may be said as a general statement, that enforcement varies in direct proportion to:

"1. The sentiment regarding the law in any community.

"2. The clear understanding by the Federal and state officials of their respective duties and obligations.

"3. The close co-operation between state and Federal enforcement agencies.

"In general the states have more liberal provisions in their search and seizure laws than the United States. This is due to the historical development of the writ, which puts many restraints on Federal officers that do not apply to state officers.

"Amendment IV is jealously guarded by both Federal and state courts. State officers may exercise a much wider latitude in search and seizure proceedings than Federal officers.

"With state and Federal officers co-operating sincerely, more beneficial results will be obtained by reason of the wider latitude of authority given to state officers. When these officers work together, transportation, for example, can be wholly stopped, as the state officers have the widest authority in searching vehicles without warrants.

"The same applies to speakeasies and illicit stills even in dwellings, for while Federal officers must have evidence of sale before getting a warrant, State officials can enter with a warrant based on information and belief.

"In general there is a similarity between national and state nuisance laws. They are all liberal. In all states they existed before prohibition. Not only could the nuisance be abated, but an injunction could apply to the person who might commit a nuisance at a future date.

"In states without a prohibition enforcement law the nuisance law is broad enough to cover all cases of sale, manufacture, or possession, and we see that in New York it is the sole law on which State officials can rely to take any steps in the State courts to prosecute liquor law violations.

"There are now on the statute books of 43 states adequate laws, which, taken in conjunction with the national prohibition act, and adequately enforced by the present peace officers of the cities, counties and the states themselvs, can accomplish enforcement of the prohibition laws.

"Federal forces in New York, Maryland, Montana, Wisconsin and Nevada are hampered by lack of sufficient courts in which to try cases if all liquor violation cases are brought into the Federal courts. However, in these five states there are penal codes with laws on the subject of common nuisances that can be used as a basis to institute cases if the State officials were disposed to co-operate.

"The legal machinery has been set up. It is ready for use. Whether it is used or not depends in the last analysis on public opinion."

Fifty Graduates at Wentworth.

By the Associated Press.

LEXINGTON, Mo., May 31.—Fifty cadets were graduated from Wentworth Military Academy at the fiftieth annual commencement here Friday. Glen Dixon, Lexington, was named honor graduate, a distinction which carries with it an appointment to the United States Military Academy. Dr. Stratton D. Brooks, president of the University of Missouri, was the commencement speaker.

Radical Mine Leader Sentenced.

TAYLORVILLE, Ill., May 31.—Judge C. J. Vogelsang today denied Freeman Thompson, president of a national miners' organization, and seven others who were convicted of rioting, a new trial and passed sentence as follows: Freeman Thompson and Charles Mammen, 60 days in jail; Ed Mantell, 90 days; John Banco, Pete Maton and May Mantell were fined $200 each and L. LAWYER WHO DISAPPEARED FOUR MONTHS AGO RETURNS

P. P. Thompson, Jacksonville, Ill., Says He Can Recall Nothing of That Interval.

Paul P. Thompson, a Jacksonville (Ill.) lawyer, who disappeared the night of Jan. 18, when he stepped from the rear door of a Chinese restaurant into the section known as "Hop Alley," returned home yesterday from Little Rock, Ark., passing through St. Louis.

Thompson communicated with his father, Circuit Judge Owen Thompson, of Jacksonville, Friday, and was met at Union Station at 8 a. m. yesterday by his wife, Mrs. Illielo Thompson, who was accompanied by one of their three children, and T. C. Macvicar, a friend.

The attorney was unshaven and appeared dazed. He told his wife and Macvicar that he remembers nothing that occurred between Jan. 18 and three days ago, when he says he was put out of an automobile in Little Rock by two men, who gave him $5. He exhibited a scar on the back of his head, which was not there at the time of his disappearance, but declared he does not remember how he suffered the injury. He was taken home in an automobile and placed under the care of a physician.

Thompson, who is 35 years old, drove to St. Louis two days before his disappeared in an effort to collect between $2000 and $3000 from the On Leong Tong, a Chinese merchants' association, in connection with a defunct laundry.

POLO SEASON OPENS THIS AFTERNOON

Round Robin at St. Louis Country Club—Results of Final Day of the Gymkhana.

The horse show season came to a brilliant close yesterday in the second day of the gymkhana and horse show at Bridlespur Hunt Club.

Today the local polo season will begin with a round robin at 2:30 p. m. at St. Louis Country Club. Four teams, made up of Country Club and Kildee Polo Club players, will take turns in the game. The first inter-city match will be played here next Saturday and Sunday between the St. Louis Country Club and Memphis Hunt and Polo Club, and the Camago Country Club of Cincinnati will send its team here for games June 14 and 15.

"Brilliant close" was no pun, but if anything quite that bad could have an excuse, yesterday's crowd would have provided it. Brilliant described the spectators, no less than the performance. It scarcely could describe the sky and sun, which bore down with sudden warmth.

A Farm Boy Wins.

Nearly 100 automobiles encircled the ring, west of the clubhouse on Denny road. Women in bright summer attire watched from running boards, from shiny bumpers, from perches on folded tops. Sometimes an exciting moment drew them into the edge of the ring, as when Robert Mertz Jr. 11-year-old farm boy, gaily put Lite Foot over the jumps to take first prize in a hunters' class from some of the best known riders in town.

The forenoon belonged to polo ponies, and, as might be expected, Mahlon B. Wallace Jr. and G. Hayward Niedringhaus of the St. Louis Country Club were "repeaters" in the blue ribbon class. Wallace's Buckeye and Niedringhaus' Winchester showed so well on confirmation, manner and suitability, that the judges selected both for "best polo pony in show."

Buckeye, a pony which has been playing polo long enough to teach it, romped away with third prize in a performance class for heavyweights, and took first in a model class on confirmation only. Niedringhaus' Bird took first in both performance and classes, and Wallace's Shady Lady took first in a brood mare class and third in the model class. August A. Busch Jr., Jack Kray, Julius Van Raalte, Eugene F. Williams Jr., H. C. Simmons III, and A. D. Fordyce were other prize-winners in the polo-classes.

No event of the day excited keener interest than a children's class, crowded with young entries. Riding counted 60 per cent. Apparently each diminutive rider had his—or her—own "rooting section," and apparently each group had the sporting wish to cheer the other riders impartially. The wish was gratified resoundingly when first and second prizes went to the tiniest riders of them all, Betty and Mary Van da Linda.

Favorites Nosed Out.

Peavine Dare, owned by H. J. Brookhart and shown by Dr. William Gadsby nosed out such favorites as Margaret Alewell's Bel Air Pride and Mrs. A. W. Dehlendorf's Evelyn Merrill, to win the first prize in the model three-gaited and five-gaited classes and a spirited fine harness competition.

Trail's End stables ran away with the open hunters' competition, 75 per cent on performance and 25 per cent on confirmation. First prize went to Magic Maid, ridden by Bradford Shinkle, second by Step Aside, ridden by Miss Jane Johnson, and third to Feather DRock, ridden by R. V. Stephens.

First prizes in other classes were won by Miss Sarah Davis' Andy Gump, junior five-gaited; Feather Rock, touch and out for hunters and jumpers; Miss Davis' Morning Miss, three-gaited, 15.2, hands and under; W. T. Treadway's Rainbow Rose, five-gaited mares; Magic Maid, model hunters; Arthur Preece's Precious, walking class; Evelyn Merrell, three-gaited over 15.2; Adolphus Busch III, road coach; L. M. Watts' Joe, roadster class; Van Raalte's Barney Benson, children's road hacks; Harry Daniels' Rex Lee Bourbon, five-gaited stake; Arthur Brooks' Punch, field class; Miss Betty Van Da Linde's Gardenia, children's class; Paul Pelison's Magic Maid, handicap; Dr. John R. Caulk's Al Gries, three-gaited pairs; Jane Johnson's Step Aside, hunter pair and Roy Siegel's Way Over, time class.

U. S. WAR MOTHERS, FOURTH GROUP, ARRIVE IN PARIS

Place Wreaths on Tomb of France's Unknown Soldier; Tea With Ambassador.

PARIS, May 31.—More than 250 American Gold Star Mothers, the fourth group to land, paid tribute today at the Arc de Triomphe to France's Unknown Soldier. They paused there before beginning their trip to the cemeteries.

Mrs. Eliza Wilson of Detroit, Mich., and Mrs. M. L. Smeaton of Fall River, Mass., acted for their comrades in the Ceremony at the tomb, placing two wreaths on the memorial, which, after yesterday's celebration and visits of previous delegations, is hidden in blossoms. Quartermaster-General B. Frank Chatham, U. S. A., and a number of dignitaries of the French civilian and military branches, were present.

Afterward the mothers were guests of honor at tea with Walter E. Edge, United States Ambassador.

Mrs. Margaret A. Price of Hiteman, Ia., was taken from her hotel to a sanitarium near Paris suffering from a nervous trouble.

ONLY TWO CRIMINAL CASES REACHED JURIES LAST WEEK

Directed Verdict of Acquittal in One; Other Withdrawn When Defendant Changes Plea.

Only two cases went before juries in the criminal divisions of the Circuit Court last week. One resulted in an acquittal and the other was withdrawn from the jury by the Judge when the defendant indicated his willingness to change to a plea of guilty after hearing the evidence offered by the State.

Warren F. Applegate, charged with the forgery of an indorsement, was acquitted on a directed verdict.

Paul A. Steinlage, 20 years old, 4624 West Florissant avenue, who entered a plea of guilty to feloniously leaving the scene of injury to a person. He was sentenced to a year in the workhouse. Driving a milk truck, Steinlage ran down and fatally injured Elba Reed, 15 years old, of 3645 Dodier street, at Grand boulevard and Dodier street last Oct. 22.

Harry Turner was the only person who received a penitentiary sentence during the week. He pleaded guilty to a charge of burglary. He was sentenced to serve three years in the penitentiary but because of his youth was sent to Boonville reformatory.

Persons charged with major crimes who were permitted to enter plea to lesser offenses and receive workhouse sentences are: Lloyd Baker, malicious destruction of property, three months; Len Hamel, petit larceny, three months; Stanley Kelly, carrying a concealed weapon, 50 days; William Neal, manslaughter, one year; Carl R. Kenning, forgery fourth degree, six months; Joe Theis, carrying a concealed weapon, 50 days; Milton Bobring, bigamy, one year; Stanley Chase, petit larceny, six months; Theodore Barnes, larceny of motor vehicle, one year, and Jerry Meadows, larceny of motor vehicle, four months.

Youth Killed Stealing Wire.

PINEVILLE, Mo., May 31.—Raymond England confessed to James Tatum, McDonald County prosecutor, yesterday that his brother, Bennie England, 20, was fatally injured Wednesday night in a fall from a power-line pole which he had climbed while attempting to steal copper wire. The admission cleared a mystery surrounding the youth's death.

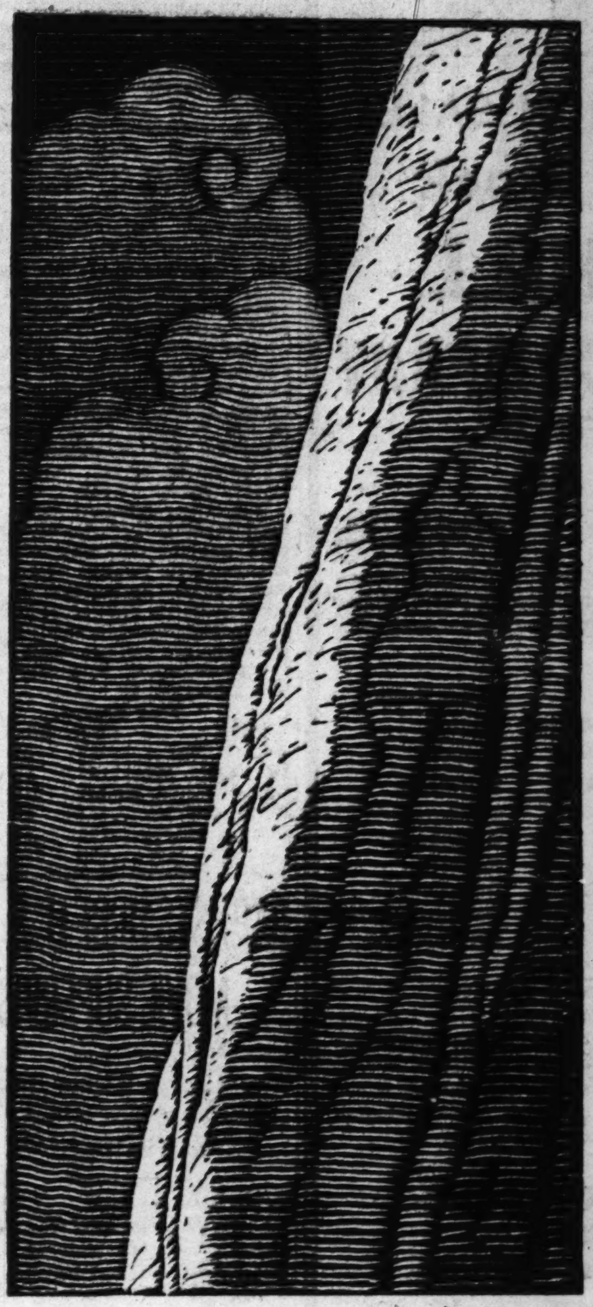
Raymond England had denied to authorities he had any knowledge of his brother's death. Confronted with the prospect of facing murder charges, Raymond made his statement and then led officers of the place where the youth fell. Raymond denied participation in the theft, but a charge of petty larceny was filed against him.

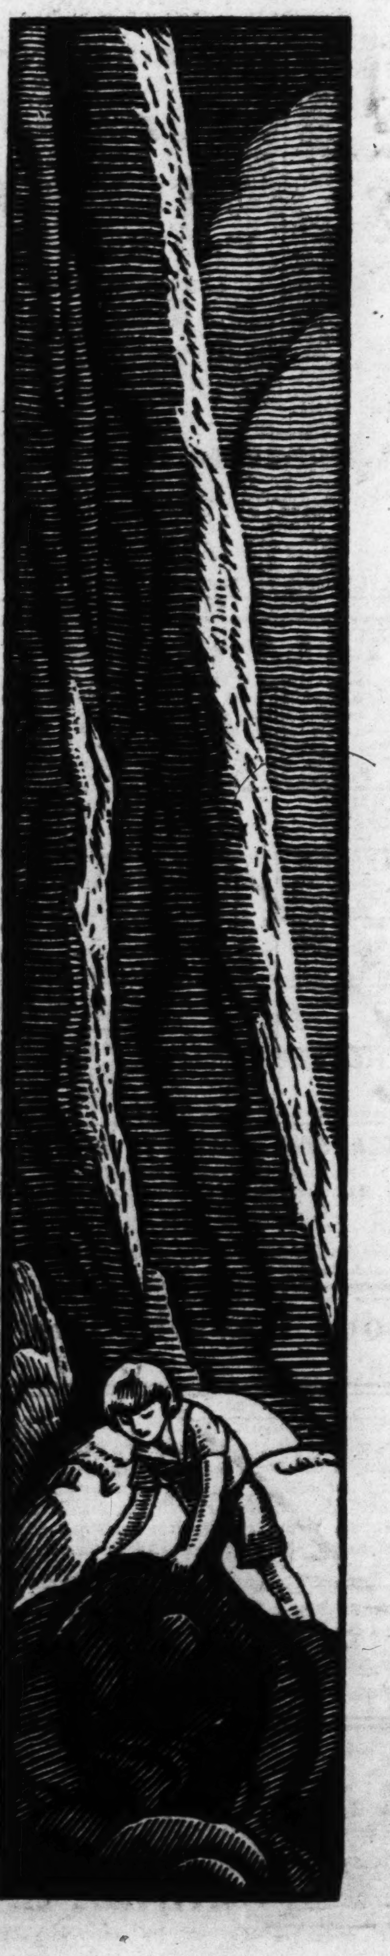
Postoffice at Lambert Field.

A Postoffice substation was opened at Lambert-St. Louis Field today to handle air mail. Previously the mail was handled between truck and plane. The office has been established in the Universal Airlines hangar, and is in charge of M. E. Sims, a Postoffice clerk.

HOLLAND HEATING MAKES WARM FRIENDS

. . . . CAN CHILDREN GROW WHERE FLOWERS CAN'T?





WHEN the bloom fades from children's cheeks—when flowers droop and die—change your heating system! Dry, stagnant air in homes heated by old-fashioned methods is an enemy of health and growth. Moisture is taken from everything—even the human body. Children become easy prey for colds and other ills. Drowsy, fretful days and restless nights make every member of the family listless and weary.

In Holland-heated homes the air is charged with life and energy—because it is properly moist and constantly circulated. It is stimulating—refreshing. Children grow. Flowers thrive. A gentle current of pure air flows through every room blending moisture and warmth into summer comfort by nature's own method. Winter in your living room is like springtime in your garden. Every member of your family feels alert.

The electrically controlled Holland Vaporaire heating, cooling and air-conditioning system works for you the year around. Every room is warm in winter—thoroughly ventilated all the time. Heating response is instantaneous—warmth is yours when you want it. Automatic temperature regulation keeps comfort constant regardless of outdoor conditions. In summer your home is the coolest place in town. The electric circulator keeps a delightful breeze coursing through the whole house when it is hot and sultry outside.

This simple, compact and efficient system obsoletes conventional heating methods—gives your home a degree of healthful comfort never before available. Satisfaction is guaranteed by written bond. Each Holland is custom-built for the home it serves. Engineers plan and supervise installation. One organization assumes full responsibility.

Prices are low—terms convenient. Any type or grade of fuel—including gas or oil—is burned at a saving of 10% to 30%.

There's a factory branch near you. Check this modern system point by point. See for yourself why it is the greatest value known to the industry.

Now is the time to buy. Let a Holland keep your home cool through the hot days ahead—and warm next winter. Make your home modern—a healthful, comfortable place where children thrive and flowers will grow in profusion.

We
clean your heating system and take all the dirt away

Let us send the world's largest vacuum cleaner and remove all the soot and dirt from your heating system—clean it thoroughly from chimney to ashpit. Any type of heating plant—warm air, steam, hot water, or vapor—will perform better and burn far less fuel when cleaned by this method at trifling cost. Holland suction cleaning removes fire hazards, reduces house-cleaning and dusting time, insures comfort and saves repair bills and decorating costs.

. . . we repair all makes of heating systems

As soon as your fire is out—before housecleaning begins—let Holland engineers check over your heating plant and put it in first-class condition. Experienced, factory-trained men will make all necessary repairs and adjustments at minimum cost. Holland service men are pledged to the highest type of work no matter how small the job. Don't wait until winter is just around the corner—call the nearest Holland branch now for expert and economical service.

14 MISSOURI CITIES OPPOSE DRY LAW, 13 IN FAVOR OF IT

Springfield Largest Community in State to Vote for Enforcement—Jefferson City and St. Joseph Wet.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 31. — The votes of 27 Missouri municipalities in the Literary Digest prohibition poll were included in today's tabulation of the vote by cities. Of the 27 Missouri communities, 14, including St. Louis, gave majorities for the combined wet proposals, and 13, the largest of them being Springfield, gave majorities for enforcement. Jefferson City and St. Charles, as well as St. Louis, gave majorities for repeal.

The total vote of the 27 Missouri cities was: Enforcement, 20,008; modification, 24,222; repeal, 49,195. Omitting St. Louis, the vote of the 26 other cities totaled: Enforcement, 13,491; modification, 8437; repeal, 9189. The final vote of the entire State of Missouri in the nation-wide poll was: Enforcement, 45,011; modification, 34,609; repeal, 62,867. Deducting the vote of the 27 cities from the State's vote, the rest of Missouri voted: Enforcement, 25,003; modification, 10,387; repeal, 13,672.

The larger Missouri cities had been tabulated previously. Springfield was the only one to show a change in its relative vote. In its first report, Springfield gave a small majority for enforcement; in the second report, a small lead for the combined wet proposals; and in the final report, votes dry again. The tabulation is:

BAPTISTS URGE U. S. MOVIE SUPERVISION

Also Charge Liquor Interests Mislead Public—Dr. A. W. Beaven New Head.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, May 31.—Supervision of motion pictures by the Federal government because some of them are demoralizing to children was recommended by the Committee on Resolutions to the Northern Baptist convention today. The committee further stated that motion pictures have a bad effect on foreign relations.

The committee also condemned the liquor interests, charging them with misleading the public; commended Canada's refusal to license exportation of liquor to dry countries; approved the transfer of prohibition enforcement from the Treasury Department to the Department of Justice and recommended early ratification of the recently signed naval treaty.

Dr. Albert W. Beaven, president of the Colgate-Rochester Divinity School, Rochester, N. Y., was elected president to succeed Dr. Alton L. Miller of Boston. Other officers are: Mattison B. Jones, Southern California, first vice president; A. L. Kraft of Illinois, second vice president; the Rev. A. M. Levy of Massachusetts, re-elected corresponding secretary; the Rev. C. M. Gallup of Rhode Island, recording secretary, and the Rev. C. A. Walker of Delaware, statistical secretary.

The convention selected Kansas City, Mo., for its 1931 convention.

DR. J. WALTER FEWKES, INDIAN LORE EXPERT, DIES

By the Associated Press.

FOREST GLENN, Md., May 31.—Dr. J. Walter Fewkes, 79 years old, who delved deep into the folklore of Western Indians, died today at his home. Prominent in biology and ethnology, classical descriptions of snake dances, customs and religions among the Walpi and Hopi Indians, he did much to arouse public interest in their ancient civilizations.

He was the first man to make use of the phonograph in recording Indian music. He was initiated into the secret rites of the Hopi Indians, who called him "Medicine Bowl" because they said he was always pouring information into them.

His work made the Mesa Verde National Park a pilgrimage center. He was field director of the Hemenway Southwestern Archaeological Expedition in Arizona in 1891 and 1894 and was said to have the most extensive collection of Indian pottery ever brought from the Southwest.

Dr. Fewkes was chief of the Bureau of American Ethnology of the Smithsonian Institution from 1895 to 1918 and was a member of numerous scientific societies. He was born in Newton, Mass., and was married to Miss Harriet O. Cutler of Cambridge, Mass., in 1893. She survives him. He will be buried in Abbery Mausoleum, Arlington County, Virginia, tomorrow.

Lion Returns After Night Out.

By the Associated Press.

ELY, Nev., May 31.—Princess Patricia, missing African lioness, returned to her cage today. The lioness slipped unobserved into her cage in a city park after an all-night absence. Posses had searched the hills all night for the animal and children had been kept indoors.

MRS. W. R. SCHNEIDER OBTAINS A DIVORCE

Alimony Settlement Made Out of Court by St. Louis Attorney.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KIRKSVILLE, Mo., May 31.—Mrs. Mildred Brooks Schneider today obtained a divorce from William R. Schneider, St. Louis attorney, in the Adair County Circuit Court.

Schneider, former Speaker pro tem of the Legislature, ran in the 1928 primary for the Republican nomination for Governor. He is attorney for the Street Car Men's Union.

Schneider was represented in court, but did not contest the suit. No order for alimony was made, a settlement for a lump sum having been reached out of court.

Mrs. Schneider filed her suit at Clayton nearly a year ago, but dismissed it and filed another at Kahoka, Mo. It was transferred from the Clark County Circuit Court to Adair County on a change of venue.

General indignities were alleged in the petition. The charge was made that Schneider failed to keep social engagements, thus embarrassing his wife; that he made false statements about her, and that he once slapped her. He entered a general denial. They were married in 1922 and separated in the spring of 1929. Mrs. Schneider is the daughter of Dr. F. C. Brooks of 6472 San Bonita avenue, Clayton.

FIRM REFUSES TO JOIN FIRE INSURANCE RATE RISE FIGHT

General Company Informs Superintendent It Will Not Be Party to Injunction Proceedings.

JEFFERSON CITY, May 31.—Notice that it does not intend to become a party in the injunction proceedings filed in Federal Court here last Wednesday by 15 stock fire insurance companies operating in Missouri in an effort to put into effect a 16 2-3 per cent increase in rates was sent today to Joseph B. Thompson, State Superintendent of Insurance, by the General Insurance Co., with headquarters in Seattle, Wash.

Only 157 of the 219 companies doing busines in Missouri applied for the 16 2-3 per cent increase in fire, hail, windstorm and lightning rates on Dec. 30, last, and Thompson today wired the remaining 62 firms which did not join in the suits they must continue to collect the old rate or be guilty of violating the insurance laws of the state.

The General Insurance Co. was the first to accept the 10 per cent reduction in rates ordered in 1922 by the insurance superintendent and in the courts until the United States Supreme Court recently sustained the order by throwing a test suit brought by the companies out of court. The action of the General Insurance Co., last August in voluntarily putting into effect the 10 per cent rate cut was the forerunner of the voluntary refund of some $3,000,000 which all the companies made back to Feb. 1, 1928.

As a result of 62 of the companies not being included in the injunction proceedings, Missouri citizens Monday will face the situation of having 157 insurance firms charging 16 2-3 per cent more for fire, lightning, hail and windstorm insurance than 62 companies doing the same kind of business, since Superintendent Thompson denied the application for the increase last Wednesday.

SKIP-STOP SYSTEM ON BELLEFONTAINE AND BROADWAY

Latter Will Offer Fastest Street Car Service in the City by Passing Up 51 Corners.

Wholesale skip-stop plans will be placed in effect today on the Broadway and Bellefontaine street car lines of the Public Service Co. At the same time, the southern part of the Lee line, on Seventh street, Chouteau avenue, Broadway and Chippewa street, will be severed from the Lee line, and the tracks out Chippewa street to Grand boulevard will be operated on hereafter as a branch of the Broadway line.

Fifty-one stops have been eliminated on the Broadway line. The stops discontinued for both northbound and southbound traffic are, from north to south, John, Wright, Montgomery, Benton, Monroe, Madison, La Beaume, Wyoming, Howard, Geyer, Ann, Lami, Victor, Zepp, Alberta, Eiler, Ellenwood, Iron, Blow, Steins, Primm, Poepping, Hurck, Espenschied. Stops discontinued, northbound only, are Salena and Robert; and southbound only, Upton.

Public Service Co. executives estimate that Broadway cars can make an average speed of 12.48 miles an hour hereafter, and that the Broadway line will be the fastest in the city.

69 Fewer Bellefontaine Stops.

On the Bellefontaine line, 69 stops have been eliminated, making possible an estimated speed of 11.6 miles an hour. Stops discontinued in both directions on the Bellefontaine line are: Florissant and Carrie, Florissant and Clarence, Florissant and Red Bud, Florissant and Gano, Florissant and Obear, Twentieth and Farragut, Gravois and Iowa, California and Crittenden, Meramec and Oregon, Virginia and Pulaski and Virginia and Liberty.

Northbound stops discontinued are: Florissant and Linton, Penrose and Nineteenth, Penrose and Fourteenth, Eleventh and Angelica, Eleventh and North Park, Eleventh and Farrar, Eleventh and Angelrodt, Eleventh and Thirteenth, Thirteenth and Palm, Chouteau and Dillon, Grattan and La Salle, Eighteenth and Schild, Eighteenth and Allen, Eighteenth and Shenandoah, Eighteenth and Barton, Victor and Lemp, Meramec and Pennsylvania, Virginia and North Dakota, Michigan and Iron, Michigan and Soper, Michigan and Kraus, Michigan and Quincy, Michigan and Upton, Michigan and Courtois.

Southbound stops discontinued are: Florissant and Fair, Florissant and College, Florissant and De Soto, Twentieth and Bissell, Twentieth and Angelica, Nineteenth and Bremen, Fourteenth and Farrar, Fourteenth and Destrehan, Fourteenth and Palm, Thirteenth and Hebert, Eleventh and Warren, Eleventh and North Market, Eleventh and Clinton, Eleventh and Chambers, Eleventh and Brooklyn, Fourteenth and Chestnut, Lafayette and Dolman, Mississippi and Lafayette to Geyer, Mississippi and Allen, Mississippi and Ann, Meramec and Pennsylvania, Virginia and Iron, Virginia and Nagel.

North Lee Line Unchanged.

The Lee line, in its northern section, will continue to run on the same schedule as heretofore, and will terminate at Eighth and Walnut streets, running east on Walnut to Seventh and returning north over the present route.

During the rush hours, Broadway line cars, starting south from Franklin avenue, will be designated by special signs as running to Grand and Chippewa. During the rest of the day, Broadway passenger cars will transfer to a new short line which will operate on Chippewa between Broadway and Grand, on a more frequent schedule than that on which the Lee cars ran. The Chippewa line will be numbered as Route 44.

Officers of the company said that the purpose of dividing the Lee line was to avoid interference with the new schedule of the Broadway line, by the presence of Lee cars on Broadway, and to remove a traffic hazard which has been caused by a Y at Grand and Chippewa.

FOUR MEDALS ARE AWARDED IN CLEVELAND CLINIC FIRE

Telephone Employes Receive Honor; One Lost Life in Giving Alarm.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 31. — Awards to four telephone employes who distinguished themselves in the Cleveland, O., clinic fire of May 15, 1929, of gold and silver medals are announced by the Theodore N. Vail Memorial Fund. All worked for the Ohio Telephone Co.

One of the gold medals, the committee of award announced today, went to Miss Gladys I. Gibson, operator, who lost her life in the fire because she remained at her post to give the alarm. More than 120 persons died in the fire and explosions.

Other awards connected with the Cleveland fire were to Gerald T. Mahaffey, district traffic superintendent; Benjamin G. Spaeth, district plant superintendent, and James J. Roonan, district installation foreman, silver medal with cash award of $250. All participated in rescue work, and working in relays, maintained telephone communication with the clinic during the fire.

MOUNTED TROOPS CHARGE FORCES OF GANDHI, 106 HURT

Attack on Salt Pans at Dharsana Broken Up but Nationalists Plan Big Raid on Wadala.

By the Associated Press.

BOMBAY, May 31.—The casualty list resulting from raids by Indian Nationalists on Government salt deposits was swelled by 106 names today, while plans were made for a huge "final raid" on the Wadala salt works tomorrow.

Today's injuries resulted when British mounted troops charged to break up an attack on the salt pans at Dharsana, where similar raids have occurred almost daily for two weeks. Nationalist volunteers numbering 156 started for the pans and were driven back several times by the sticks of foot police following a warning each time. The mounted troops finally charged to break up the attack.

To stem the movement on Wadala tomorrow the Government has massed police and troops around the area, but Nationalist leaders answered that by making additional plans and urging Indians to "join the raid in their thousands and make it a phenomenal success."

New Peshawar Outbreak.

Meanwhile, other violence was reported from the far north of India—at Peshawar, on the frontier, where much trouble occurred about a month ago. A woman and two children were among the victims today when soldiers fired into a mob which had reassembled after being dispersed. Prior to this incident Peshawar had been quiet for some days, but the aggressive mountain tribes which occupy the wild territory about the city still offer a threat to the authorities.

Luacknow, the historic city where fierce rioting occurred earlier this week, still was under military surveillance today and one woman leader of the trouble, Mrs. Mitra, was sentenced to six months' simple imprisonment for leading a procession to Hajratgunj.

Nationalist leaders were unperturbed by the Viceroy's two new ordinances, one advocating nonpayment of taxes and the other prohibiting picketing and tampering with Government servants. Native leaders say enforcement of the ordinances would provide a new field for activities of the volunteers, since the object of the Nationalist campaign is to fill Government jails.

Women Picket Liquor Shops.

Women Nationalists have been picketing liquor shops since Mahatma Gandhi opened his campaign March 12 and said they would continue.

Picketing of foreign cloth shops was intensified here today while the Government issued a communique to counteract propaganda against the British cloth.

Leaflets which have been distributed through the city said that the fat of cows, bullocks and buffaloes — sacred to the Hindus—is used to size the cloth in Manchester mills. The communique asserted that only mutton fat is used.

The propaganda recalled the famous Sepoy mutiny in 1857. One of the causes of that trouble was a rumor that cartridges issued to the Sepoys had been greased with hog fat.

The Nationalist leader, Ramachandran, was sentenced to a year's rigorous imprisonment and a fine of 500 rupees (about $130). Ninety-five volunteers and a doctor were sentenced to a year's rigorous imprisonment. Five were discharged after expressing regret, and the others were ordered sent for two years to a reformatory.

MURDER CHARGE AGAINST DR. BASS' AID IS DISMISSED

No Evidence That Casper Tillman, Moonshiner, Participated in Killing, Prosecutor Says.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LINN, Mo., May 31.—The murder charge against Casper Tillman, Osage County moonshiner, growing out of the assistance he gave Dr. A. J. Bass of Columbia, in disposing of the body of William R. Pearman, Columbia garage mechanic, murdered by Dr. Bass in a $200,000 insurance fraud plot, was dismissed today in Circuit Court for lack of evidence on motion of Prosecuting Attorney George Gove.

"We have no evidence that Tillman had any part in the murder of Pearman, and for that reason deem it inadvisable to proceed further against him at this time," the Prosecuting Attorney said.

In a supplemental confession to the one in which he related that he killed Pearman, Dr. Bass said Tillman fired the fatal shot, but later retracted this, stating Tillman was not present when Pearman was murdered. Tillman has admitted he accompanied Dr. Bass to Arkansas in the latter's automobile, where they threw Pearman's body into a ravine.

Dr. Bass was sentenced to life imprisonment in Arkansas on a plea of guilty.

Mrs. Pearman Sues to Collect on Bass' Policies on Husband.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, Mo., May 31.—Mrs. Maude Pearman, widow of William R. Pearman, who was murdered by Dr. Andrew J. Bass in a $200,000 insurance plot, filed suit in Circuit Court here today against the Lincoln National Life Insurance Co. of Fort Wayne, Ind., for $240,000.

Mrs. Pearman alleges that four $50,000 insurance policies, written by the insurance company on Pearman when he posed as "William Folta," a Martinsburg, Mo., man missing for 19 years, and subsequently assigned to Dr. Bass as collateral on an "Arkansas land deal," were still in effect at the time of his death March 26.

Her petition states that the assignment to Dr. Bass was void since Dr. Bass had "no insurable interest" in Pearman's life.

Mrs. Pearman was appointed administratrix of her husband's estate today and it was in that capacity that she filed the suit. Her attorneys ask for $200,000, the amount of the insurance; $20,000 in attorneys' fees and $20,000 for "vexatious refusal to pay."

As has been told, the four insurance policies of $50,000 each were found by Dr. Bass' attorneys in his personal safety deposit box in a Columbia bank. They were surrendered to agents of the Lincoln company, and the company, assuming that premiums had been paid by Dr. Bass, refunded to Mrs. Bass the full amount of the premiums he had paid.

The company has filed suit in the United States District Court at Jefferson City for cancellation of the insurance.

Mrs. Pearman and her two children last week won a $10,000 verdict in Benton County, Arkansas, against Dr. Bass for loss of support resulting from Pearman's murder. Pearman was the father of two children, Robert, 21 years old, and Jalie, 19, both Missouri University students.

KOREAN OUTBREAK AGAINST JAPANESE IN KIRIN PROVINCE

Band of Communists Set Fire to Buildings and Consulates Across Border in Manchuria.

By the Associated Press.

TOKIO, May 31.—A band of Korean Communists swept down on the Chientao District of Kirin Province, Manchuria, early today, said a Rengo News Agency dispatch from Seul, Korea, raiding and burning Japanese consulates and buildings and schools of the Korean Association.

The raids were directed against centers of Japanese influence in Yenki, Lung Ching-Tsun and other towns of the Chientao District. The Chinese military and Japanese police united to drive out the invading bands, comprised of Koreans hostile to the Japanese regime in Korea.

One Japanese Consular policeman was wounded in the exchange of rifle fire. All of the invaders were thought to have escaped. No arrests were reported.

Lung Ching-Tsun, apparently bore the brunt of the Communists' activity. Crude bombs were thrown into the office of the Oriental Development Co., and the electric light plant was put out of commission. There were no casualties, however.

A light railway bridge over the Tumen River was set afire and damaged.

In order to prevent border troubles Japan maintains consulates in several large towns of Chintao. Each of these consulates is staffed with police. It is their duty to watch Korean malcontents. Japanese influence also is exercised through the Japanese fostered Korean Association, Japanese fostered schools for Koreans and the Japanese owned Oriental Development Co., for the operation of several electric light plants.

The Chientao district is in Southeastern Kirin Province, Manchuria, where the River Tumen separates Korea and Manchuria. The district's principal towns, Yenki and Lung Ching-Tsun, are inhabited by thousands of Koreans who fled from the native land to escape Japanese rule, to which they are bitterly opposed.

ACTING CASHIER CHARGED WITH ARSON OUT ON BOND

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CARUTHERSVILLE, Mo., May 31.—Flavil Owens, brother of the cashier of the Bank of Wardell at Wardell, and acting cashier during the absence of his brother, today was at liberty under $1000 bond following his arrest on charges of arson in connection with destruction of records of the bank by fire.

Owens was in St. Louis Wednesday when the warrant for his arrest was issued by Justice F. M. Gwin of Hayti. On his return he was taken to Hayti and arraigned before Justice Gwin. His preliminary trial is scheduled for next Wednesday afternoon.

The fire resulted in the depository being closed. Records of the bank were destroyed, leaving the State Department at a loss in handling liquidation. It is said the bank's financial condition was sound.

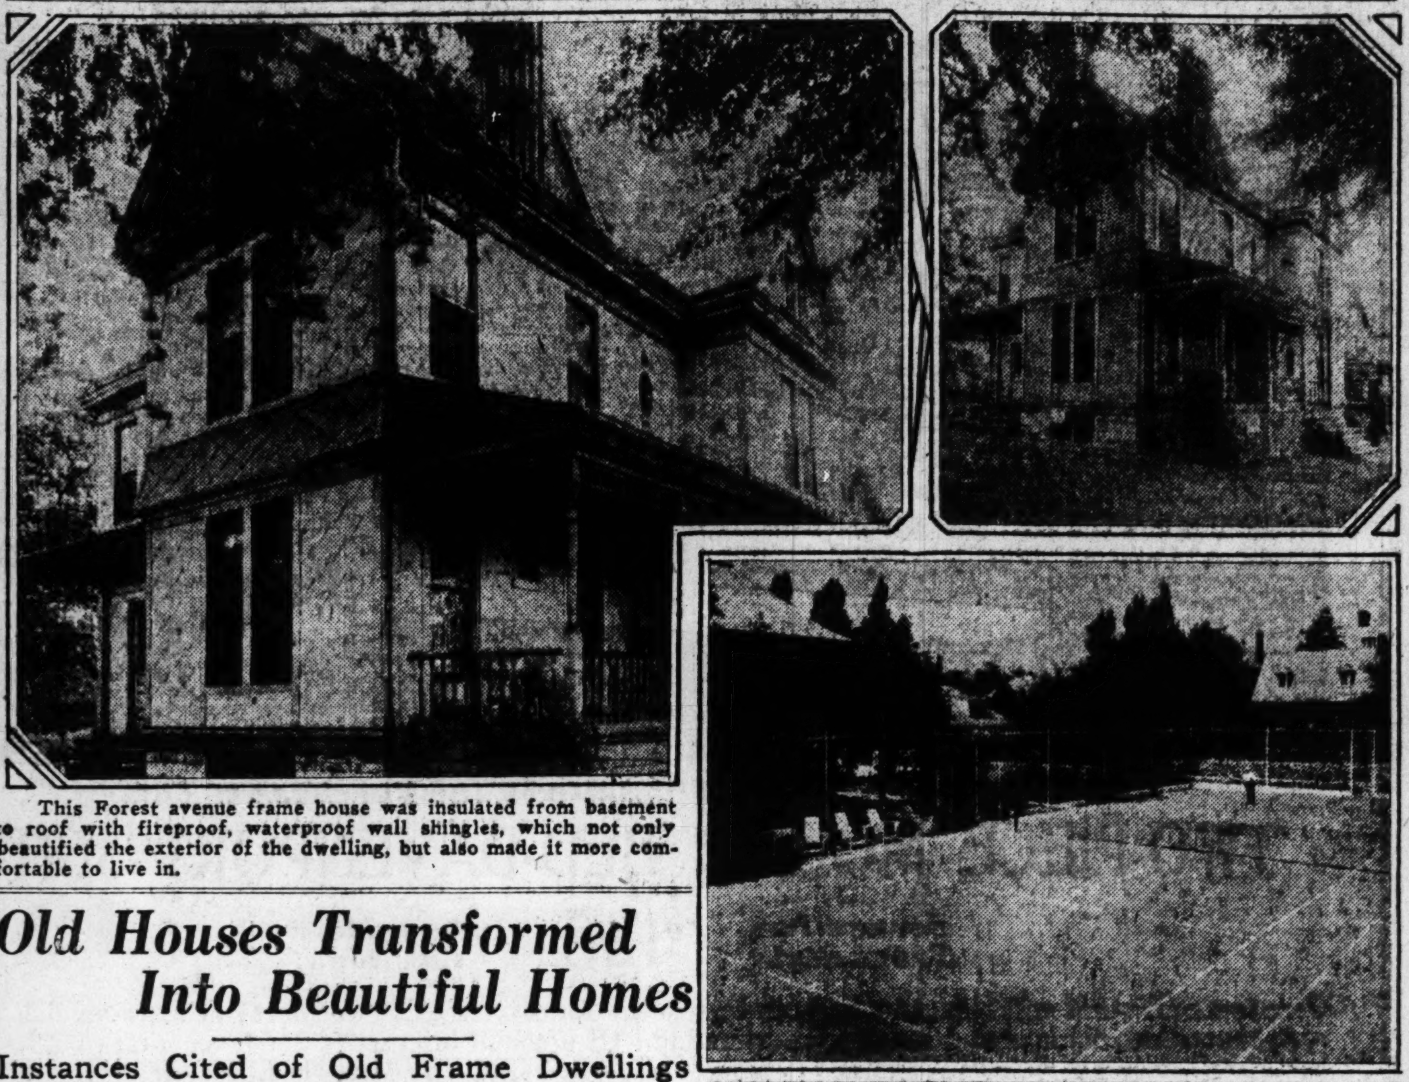
CIVIC DEVELOPMENT AND MODERNIZATION

REMODEL – MODERNIZE – BEAUTIFY ST. LOUIS

Re-Siding This House Added Many Comforts



This Forest avenue frame house was insulated from basement to roof with fireproof, waterproof wall shingles, which not only beautified the exterior of the dwelling, but also made it more comfortable to live in.

Old Houses Transformed Into Beautiful Homes

Instances Cited of Old Frame Dwellings Which Have Been Modernized Into Substantial, Beautiful Homesteads.

According to W. L. Behan of the Hill-Behan Lumber Co., lumber associations in all parts of the country are interested in the home modernization campaign to the extent that many old, abandoned homes have been transformed into beautiful modern houses under the co-operation, and, in many cases, under the direction of local lumber institutes.

In Cleveland, O., Behan cited three old wood buildings that were modernized inside and out.

One of the homes was built in 1840, on what was then a farm. The city later grew around it. A number of years ago the house was taken apart, board by board, moved to another farm and reassembled practically as it had been in its original location.

The lumber was in such an excellent state of preservation that the house is expected to shelter families for several more generations. The contractor who moved the house said that not a single piece of lumber in the entire structure showed the slightest evidence of decay, and that all the wood was in as good condition as when it was first put into the house.

Another example of enduring wood construction capitalized on by the Cleveland group is the historic boyhood home of the late Archibald M. Willard, painter of the famous picture, "The Spirit of '76."

The house is in Aurora, near Cleveland. From the time it was built more than 100 years ago, the house has always been occupied. Its exterior is modeled after a true New England cottage type. The exceptionally well-preserved timbers, as seen from the basement, indicate that the house is as sound structurally as when first built. The original plank floor and the original four-paneled doors, after all the years of usage, are in good condition.

Another successful modernization job, according to Behan, was accomplished with an old frame dwelling where extensive changes were made in the interior as well as the exterior of the house.

In this case, the entire front room was removed. Ceilings of the lower rooms were dropped to provide sufficient space for arrangement of two spacious bedrooms and bath in what formerly was the attic. An entire partition was removed and one built in. A bedroom that formerly was dark was converted into a large well-lighted living room. A new hallway was built from the kitchen to a rear bedroom and a wash and dressing room and the basement. An artistic stairway now leads to the upstairs rooms, and the old floors are covered with shining new hardwood floors. New woodwork, new walls and paneled ceilings add to the charm of the interior. The old kitchen, dark and drab, and without conveniences now considered essential, was converted into an attractive workshop for a housewife.

Although the exterior and the interior both look like new construction, no changes were made in the foundation, floor or sidewall and roof construction. Shingles were laid over the old shingles, thereby giving an additional layer of insulation.

DEFERRED PAYMENT PLAN

Modernizing a Home in This Way Is Attractive.

Many building contractors and home building companies offer flattering opportunity to home owners to finance the modernization of their homes on the deferred payment plan.

The service costs only a moderate charge with the payment extending over a period of twelve or twenty-four months.

The plan requires small effort on the part of the home owner as the payments are applied to the original debt.

The purpose of the plan is for the mutual good of contractor, home owner and community alike, by rendering service and material benefits to all three.

LANDSCAPE GARDENING

Beautifying the Home Property Pays for Itself.

The right kind of landscape effects are not the result of haphazard planting, it must be borne in mind by the amateur gardener.

Careful study will reveal the fact that the small home grounds can be made attractive with the bloom of flowers for the greater part of the year, in moderate climes, if the planting has been worked out in rotation.

The more hardy plants will bloom from early spring until frost and the wise planter will even assure beauty throughout the winter by the judicious addition of a few evergreens!

RE-SIDING IMPROVED THIS FRAME HOUSE

Several Advantages Resulted From Modernizing the Residence Pictured.

The average person would be very well satisfied to live in the Forest avenue residence which is pictured on this page.

It is a solid, substantial appearing building with a compelling air of dignity and comfort.

When the owner of this house decided to improve his property by the application of siding he had several purposes in view, according to J. V. Trepel of the Dependon Asphaltum Co., who said the owner had in mind to add to the exterior appearance of his residence as well as to insulate the house and make it weatherproof, waterproof and fireproof.

The objects, he said, were all readily accomplished through the application of specially designed wall shingles guaranteed weatherproof and waterproof.

Preliminary to residing the building every crevice or crack in the four walls was thoroughly caulked.

As a result of being resided, the owner has a handsome residence of snowy whiteness which on account of the insulated material used, is not only attractive in appearance, but also more comfortable to live in, as the insulation repels both the summer heat and the wintry blasts from penetrating into the interior of the building.

By contrasting the before and after pictures of the dwelling presented on this page, the improvement in the appearance of the residence, through the residing process, is readily appreciated.

Trained Vines Attractive.

Rose ladders are easily constructed or may be purchased from manufacturers. They should harmonize with the surroundings and may be painted in keeping with the rest of the house.

NEW TENNIS COURT IS HOME IMPROVEMENT

All Weather Outdoor Tennis Court Presents Newest Idea in Recreation Modernization.

According to Mr. Henry C. Muskopf, of Henry C. Muskopf and Associates, a new all-weather tennis court has been designed that is the ideal.

The court pictured above was installed about one year ago, and has been played on under all conditions since that time. It is still intact and improving with age.

This court represents the latest type of outdoor all-weather construction, and is constructed on a clay surface properly drained, then covered with a non-oil absorbing rock, then filled with an asphaltic oil from Mexico and covered with a red cedar sawdust obtained from Tennessee. This surface is then rolled for several weeks until the volatile oils escape, leaving a hard crust on the surface and a sawdust cushion beneath. This surface improves with age and rolling. It should be rolled monthly, but is so perfect that even this is frequently overlooked. The court costs less than concrete originally, and counting maintenance as an item, also becomes cheaper than clay.

In the opinion of leading tennis players of the district, it is the closest to being the ideal court and has been pronounced to excel the grass courts of England.

Consider the Driveway.

A neat and serviceable driveway to the garage should be considered in the general modernization plan for the exterior beautification of a home place, because the appearance of the garage and the approach to it are important features of the home picture.

SLAIN WOMAN IDENTIFIED AS FRIEND OF DEAD GANGSTER

By the Associated Press.

NEWARK, N. J., May 31.—Newark and New York police today identified the body of a woman taken from the Harlem River Thursday as that of Anna Urbas, 24 years old, common-law wife of Eugene Moran, slain gunman.

An autopsy disclosed she had been thrown in the river alive. A copper wire bound tightly about her neck. Police think she was killed because she "talked too much" about three men who visited Moran Aug. 9, the day he was slain. Moran was sought in the slaying of Arnold Rothstein, gambler.

Identification of the woman came through a dentist who had formerly identified Moran. Police said they would continue to search for another man, one of the few still alive who "knows who killed Rothstein."

YALE HEAD SEES CIVIL WAR TENDENCIES IN U.S

Dr. Angell Says There Is Urgent Need of Vision of Another Lincoln.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 31.—President James Rowland Angell of Yale, in a Memorial day address to students and faculty, sounded a warning that there are abroad in America "tendencies which, unchecked and uncorrected, are not less grave in the perils they foreshadow than those which plunged the nation in civil war."

So serious and close are the threats to our national safety and tranquillity, he said, that the nation is in urgent need of the wise and patient vision of another Lincoln to spare it from fatal blunders.

Public opinion has become cynically indifferent to corruption existing in even high public office, President Angell said, in bitter condemnation of our national character. Aggressive and chauvinistic nationalism threatens the friendliness of relations to other people, he said, and our own economic prosperity.

"International relations in this country are conceived in terms of national selfishness and distrust, and not frank and honorable competition," he asserted in an implicit criticism of the impending high tariff bill.

The mass of Americans are given over to a "sordid and vulgar" materialism, worshiping money and the power it has achieved in our national life, he continued. "Our political life shows disturbing trends," he said, adding that "political parties are given to a grasping exploitation of the momentary power that comes when they sweep into office."

Even the Civil War has not finally settled the questions of states' rights and the extent of Federal, as against local jurisdiction, has not yet been worked out, he went on, declaring that "in our attitude toward law, we are undecided whether it should be really binding. Moral torpor keeps grave offenders in public office even after their offense is uncovered."

Schooner Rams Launch; 1 Drowned

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 31.—One man was drowned and seven others, including three women, were rescued from the water today after their fishing launch was rammed and sunk by a Canadian schooner, N. J. Taylor, on Long Island Sound. Emile Jessen, 36 years old, of the Bronx, owner of the launch, lost his life. Capt. Vettis of the Taylor was arrested on a technical charge of manslaughter.

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, May 31.—Bobby Jones today added another jewel to his golfing diadem by winning the British amateur championship, which he has long coveted, by a convincing defeat of Roger Wethered, 7-up and 6 to play, in the 36-hole final.

All the jewels of golf now have sparkled from Bobby's crown. He is the only man who has ever won the open and amateur titles of both the United States and Great Britain.

They gave him the cup on the terrace of the Royal and Ancient clubhouse this evening with all the patriarchs of golf gathered there.

12,000 Persons See Final.

The final between Jones and Wethered with 12,000 persons trying to see the shots, was the climax of a great week of golf in fine bracing weather and with enthusiastic galleries trailing over the famous links where putts have been missed for 500 years.

Nearly 300 matches have been played this week—all free—for St. Andrews is a public course and there is no admission fee. Never have the golf-loving Scots had such a good time as they have had watching Jones climb, round by round, over Englishmen, Scots and Americans, including the amateur champions of Great Britain and the United States, and the captain of the British Walker Cup team as a final opponent.

Jones Never "Down."

Wethered was a worthy opponent and a great sportsman. Although the tide was against him all the way, he never seemed worried or harrassed and played his normal game, which was good, but not good enough.

Jones played 30 holes in two under fours and there is the story of the 1930 British amateur final.

The former British amateur champion held the American open champion level for the first nine holes, with each one under par. Jones won five of the next seven holes and Wethered rallied with a birdie at the seventeenth to win and go to luncheon four down, when he had been five behind.

The Briton won the first hole in the afternoon when the American was stymied and seemed about to win the second when Jones made one of his few bad drives of the week. (It was also his last bad one.) The visitor, however, seemed always to have a great shot in his bag when needed and he recovered with an iron good enough to place him in position to win the hole after it seemed lost.

Wethered Cuts Lead to Three.

Wethered reduced the lead to three at the sixth but it was the last chance he had against the ma-

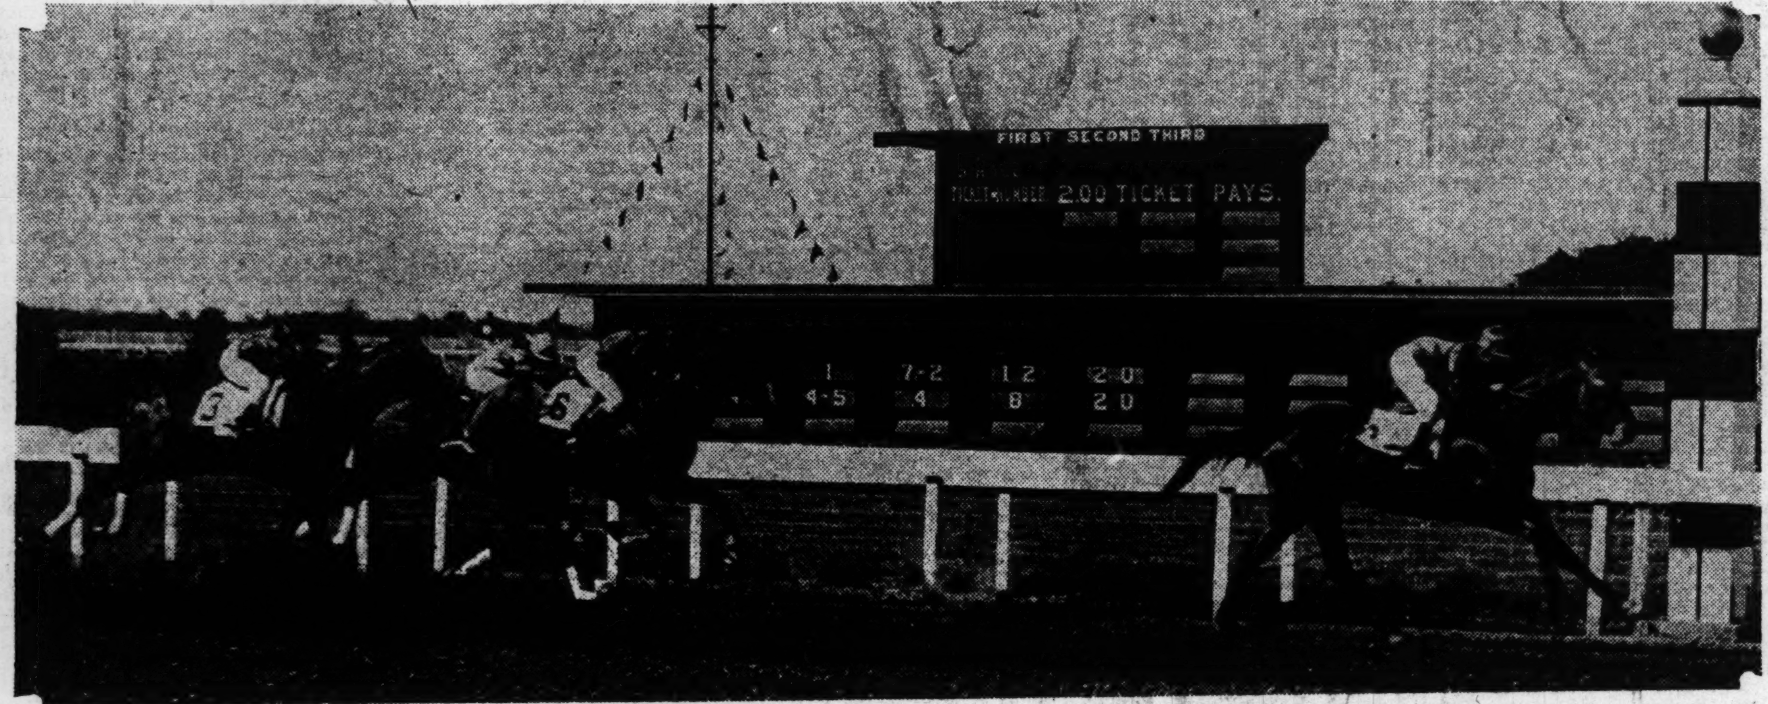
Chiclero Romping Home to a Surprise Victory in Handicap at Fairmount



Chiclero was well-played in this race, but the favorite, Easter Stockings, shipped here especially for this race, was backed into odds on, by post time. The best Easter Stockings could do was to run third behind Chiclero and Ormonbird.

Chiclero sprinted to the front soon after the start, set a fast pace under restraint and won with speed in reserve. Ormonbird forced the pace under slight pressure and held on gamely in the final drive. Easter Stockings, taken under restraint during the early racing, failed to respond when put to hard urging. Uluniu raced evenly throughout. By Product was a distinct trailer from the start.

$2.00 mutuels paid: Chiclero, win $9.02, place $4.28, show $2.22; Ormonbird, place $15.84, show $3.30; Easter Stockings, show $2.16.

By Dent McSkimming.

Chiclero, star of Mrs. James Chesney's barn, came through with what may be the finest race of his career yesterday in winning the Midwest Handicap, feature event of the Fairmount program. The son of Chicle was too fast for Easter Stockings, one of the greatest race mares in the country, and three others. He raced into a good lead in the first half of the mile and 70 yards journey and he withstood a prolonged drive from the head of the stretch to frustrate the rush of Ormonbird, which finished second. Easter Stockings went to the post a 2 to 5 favorite, one of the shortest prices of the meeting.

The Saturday crowd fell short of matching the Decoration day attendance. It was estimated that 6500 attended yesterday. The activity at the mutuel windows appeared to be slow.

Except for the defeat of Easter Stockings, there were no great shocks to the form players.

How Chiclero Won.

Chiclero took the lead at the rise of the barrier. Malvern Meyers hustled his horse to the front, beating Easter Stockings' bid for the rail position at the clubhouse turn. The mare seemed sluggish in getting into her stride and before they got out of the back stretch she had dropped back until she was eight lengths behind the pace maker, Chiclero. On the turn, instead of making a move, as the crowd anticipated, she continued to lost ground and Uluniu threatened to pass her for third position. Ormonbird was running second. In stretch, Ormonbird made a determined bid under Clyde Ponce's urging and then Easter Stockings seemed to come with a belated sprint, but she was only good enough to finish third.

Chiclero's time for the mile and 70 yards, 1:43 2-5, was the fastest of the meeting for the distance.

Ossie H. Wins Again.

It is rarely indeed that a horse of the claiming class shows such consistent form as does Ossie H. of Ed McCuan's barn. In six starts here the gelding has won four races, was beaten only a length and a half for the money

WORLD RECORDS FALL IN MOTOR BOAT RACES

By the Associated Press.

WORCESTER, Mass., May 31.—World's records were broken three times in the outboard motor mile time trials at Lake Quinsigamond today. Warren Harris of Worcester was first to crack the mark when he set his class in the division A, craft over the measured mile course at the rate of 42.706 miles an hour. The old figure was 40.90 miles an hour.

Harris' record was broken a few minutes later by Theodore Thompson of Lake Placid, N. Y., who was clocked at 42.947 miles an hour. Miss Hilda Mueller of Bay City, Mich., broke the record for men and women in Class C, Division 2, by navigating the course at the rate of 38.528 miles an hour.

Harris drove the Zip, a baby whale powered with a Johnson motor. Thompson, operating Dad Daddy, drove a ship powered by a Johnson 32. Miss Mueller's craft was powered by an Evinrude.

WHICHONE WINS WITHERS STAKE WITH EASE, AT ODDS OF 1 TO 10

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 31.—A great horse with a great rider laid claim to the 3-year-old championship today as Harry Payne Whitney's Whichone, with Sonny Workman in the saddle, galloped over the Belmont track winner of the historic Withers Stake and $26,150.

Showing championship form, the brilliant colt, which last year won the juvenile title, came from behind in the stretch after overcoming early interference, to outclass a field of five rivals by four lengths, trailing the Whichone-Workman combination in second place was Walter J. Salmon's Swinfield, while another length back followed Frank E. Brown's Starpatic.

Sande Out of Money.

Earl Sande, mounted on W. B. Coe's Maya, was fourth; Black Majesty, also carrying the green and white polka dot silks of the Coe stable, was fifth, and Mrs. Graham Fair Vanderbilt's Sarazen sixth and last. Caruso, Kai Fing and Dunsany were scratched.

Twenty thousand fans witnessed the triumph of Whichone, which drew only a mild cheer, as the son of Chile-Flying Witch went to the post at the almost unbelievable odds of one to 10, the second shortest odds in the 55 years of the running of the classic mile. Man O' War was quoted at 1 to 30 in his 1920 triumph, when he stepped the mile in 1:35 4-5, a new American record at the time. Whichone went the distance today in 1:38 1-5 over a track rated as good.

Workman was forced to show his best brand of riding to outclass the field as Sande and Inzelone on the Coe entry teamed together and all but shut Whichone out of the running in the early stages of the race.

Once clear, he set sail for the flying leader, Black Majesty. In a furlong he had raced up to Black Majesty and as the field swung into the stretch Whichone was in front.

From the quarter pole home it was just a question of how far Workman cared to win. Whichone drew away to win by four lengths. Swinfield beat Starpatic a length for the place.

2 World High School Records Shattered in National Title Meet

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, May 31.—Froebel High of Gary, Ind., today successfully defended its national track and field championship in the University of Chicago's twenty-sixth annual meet, piling up 53 points to win over Brazil, Ind., which was second with 40.

Oak Park High was third with 28, Kokomo, Ind., had 23, and Atwood, Ill., and Pittsburg, Kan., 18 each.

Two world interscholastic records were bettered and three meet records were improved, along with a pair of new relay race marks, as the Gary team won the meet in the last two events, the half-mile and mile relays.

Ivan Fuqua, the one-man team from Brazil, was the outstanding performer, placing first in the 440-yard and 220-yard dashes and second in the 100-yard dash for a total of 23 points.

New Record in Mile Run.

Glenn Cunningham of Elkhart, Kan., revived the record breaking with a new meet record for the one mile run, setting up a mark of 4:24.7, in the second section. Cunningham trailed Stout of Knoxville, Tenn., until the stretch, then easily outsprinted the Southerner. The old mark was set by Kiser of Wenatchee, Wash.

Delbert White, Negro discus tosser representing Pleasanton, Kan., High, established a new meet record in his event with a throw of 143 feet 2 inches. White's performance was nearly seven feet better than the 136 feet 11 inches set by Moreau, of the famous Fort Collins, Colo., team in 1929.

A tragedy of the track occurred in the finals of the 220-yard low hurdles. Amsden Oliver, Negro star from Roosevelt High, Dayton, O., who yesterday set a new national record of :23.6, had a big lead but stumbled and fell after he cleared the seventh hurdle, and failed to place. He bounced up and finished gamely, but was hopelessly beaten. The event was won by Heye Lambertus of Gothenburg, Neb., in :24.2.

COLUMBIA CREW GAINS VICTORY IN CHILDS CUP

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, May 31.—Sweeping down the wind-ruffled Schuylkill in championship form, the Columbia University varsity crew today won the Childs Cup race, feature event of the American Henley Regatta, for the third straight year. It was estimated 20,000 persons saw the race.

The New York crew, Poughkeepsie titleholders of last year, and beaten only by Yale this season, finished one full legnth ahead of Pennsylvania, with Princeton, the other entrant, only three feet back of the Red and Blue.

Columbia led all the way and covered the Henley course of one mile, 550 yards in 6 minutes and 42 seconds, just four seconds faster than Pennsylvania.

Only a few minutes earlier the Penn Athletic Club, in defeating the Columbia junior varsity by 10

Cards Protest Game With Cubs, Over Bat Tipping

CHICAGO, May 31.—Manager Gabby Street of the Cardinals announced tonight that today's game with the Cubs here was played to a conclusion under protest.

Street protested that Catcher Hartnett had tipped Chick Hafey's bat and that Umpire Magerkurth admitted there had been interference but not enough to prevent Hafey from hitting the ball. Degree of interference makes no difference, Street contended, in filing the protest with President Heydler of the National League.

Street said he was confident the game would be replayed.

CZECHO-SLOVAKIA LEADS IN DAVIS CUP MATCH

SCHEVENINGEN, Holland, May 31.—Jan Kozeluh and Roderich Menzel of Czecho-Slovakia gave their country a 2 to 1 lead over Holland in the third round of Davis Cup tennis competition today by winning the doubles match. They defeated Hans Timmer and A. Diemer Kool of Holland, 7—9, 6—2, 6—1, 3—6, 6—4. Yesterday's singles matches had been divided evenly.

TWO OUT, ONE MAN ON WHEN FARRELL FUMBLES; HAINES BATTED HARD LATE IN GAME

By J. Roy Stockton.
Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.

CHICAGO, May 31.—Jess Haines had his fifth victory of the season all wrapped up and ready to take home this afternoon, but with two out in the ninth inning, an error by Eddie Farrell gave the Bruins an opening and they took advantage of it by pounding three runs over the plate to hand the Cardinals their fourth straight defeat, 6-5.

Haines was leading, 5 to 3, when he went to the hill in the ninth and he disposed of the first two Cubs with ease, getting Gabby Hartnett, on a grounder to Frisch and striking out Clyde Beck.

Then Charley Tolson batted for Osborn and popped a dinky single to right field. Clarence Blair, hero of the Cubs' Memorial day double victory, was the next batter, and the fans groaned what they meant to be their final regrets of the day when Blair shot a grounder to short. In fairness to Farrell, substituting for Gelbert, who has a charley horse, it must be said, the grounder took a bad bounce just before it reached him. He stuck out his bare hand and stopped the ball, but fumbled and both runners were safe.

Cuyler's Single Ties Score.

Woody English drew a pass to fill the bases and up came Kiki Cuyler. Haines quickly put over two strikes, but Cuyler won the duel that ensued and shot a single to right that sent two runners home to tie the score.

Hack Wilson had gone hitless in four previous trips to the plate, striking out twice, sending a fly to Hafey and a grounder to Bottomley. But in the pinch he shot a single through the box. Farrell reached for the drive near second base and knocked the ball down, but in his eagerness he became butter-fingered and couldn't pick it up and English raced home from second with the winning run.

Haines plainly showed that he was not getting enough work to keep his pitching arm in condition. While he was strong, he was invincible. He allowed only two two hits in the first five innings, but then he began to tire and the Bruins lambasted him for nine safeties in the last four frames, bunching three in the eighth and three in the ninth. It was Haines' first appearance on the hill since last Saturday, when he beat the Reds, giving them only seven safeties and undoubtedly Manager Street will see to it that Big Jess in the future works more frequently than once a week.

Haines' Support Is Bad.

Haines' support was even worse than the two errors in the box score indicate. In the sixth inning, Beck walked, took second on a passed ball and scored when Teachout hit to right for a triple. Watkins should have held that hit to a single and after he did retrieve the ball, Frisch took his relay and threw wild to third, Teachout scoring.

In the eighth inning the Cubs scored their third run and it should have been prevented. Blair, first up, got a single on his grounder because Frisch was playing too close to second base. English then hit a slow bounder between Haines and Bottomley, Jim left the bag and when Haines picked up the ball, first was uncovered. Cuyler then beat out a high bounder to Adams, filling the bases, and Blair scored while L. Wilson was grounding to Bottomley, a momentary fumble preventing Jim from making a throw to the plate.

Cards Miss Many Chances.

While the Cardinals nicked three Cub pitchers for 11 hits and drew six bases on balls, they missed numerous opportunities to take an overwhelming lead. In the sixth and again in the eighth inning they filled the bases and then failed to score and during the contest 13 Redbird base runners were left stranded on the sacks.

Hafey walked to start the second

FOUR GOLFERS TIE FOR QUALIFYING MEDAL IN DISTRICT TOURNEY

MANION, LORD, GOODWIN AND SCUDDER GET SCORES OF 71

By W. J. McGoogan.

Four golfers tied for medal honors with a par 71 each in the qualifying round of the fifteenth annual tournament of the St. Louis district golf association at Algonquin Golf Club, yesterday. They were: Jim Manion, Normandie, Roger Lord and Benny Goodwin, Algonquin and Mason Scudder, St. Louis Country Club.

Scudder had the best chance to become medalist. He was on the 18th green in 2 shots, 15 feet from the cup, and only needed to get down in two putts for 70, but he took three for his 71. Scudder had 32 for the first nine, 3 under par.

Manion was in fine form, starting out with ten straight pars. He went one over at the eleventh, one under at the 15th, one over on the 18th and scored a birdie on the 18th.

Playoff This Afternoon.

The four will play off the tie this afternoon in an 18-hole medal competition starting at 2 o'clock.

The course was in excellent condition and the class of golfers so good that it took a 77 score to get into the championship class with a draw among those who had 78's for the four remaining positions. About 125 of those who filed entries played the qualifying round.

The 32 scores below the championship flight compose class A and the next 32 form class B.

First round matches in all classes are scheduled for tomorrow, second round Tuesday, third round Wednesday, semi-finals Thursday and finals Saturday. The last two rounds are 36 holes with all others at 18.

Algonquin's four-man team won the trophy offered to the club having the lowest total in the qualifying round. Algonquin's quartet was composed of Benny Goodwin, 71; Lord, 71; Don Bender, 72 and Bruce Miller 82 for a total of 296, six strokes better than North Hill's 302.

TOURNEY NOTES.

It was the first District qualifying round which Clarence Wolff, secretary of the association, had missed for 15 years. Wolff, recuperating from a recent serious illness, was on the ground and made up the pairings.

Chick Irwin, North Hills, actually had 69, although his score was recorded as 75. Chick suffered six penalty strokes, driving five balls outs of bounds and putting another in the lake at No. 10. He finished with four birdies out of the last five holes for his 75.

No. 10, the lake hole, caused considerable grief to the qualifiers while No. 18, par 5, seemed to provide most of the birdies.

Rock Springs Golf Club, Alton, Ill., and Madison Country Club, Madison, Ill., two clubs recently admitted to the district association under the expansion program, each qualified an entrant in the championship class. A. W. Duncan from Rock Springs had 78 and survived the draw, while M. H. Jordan from Madison shot 74.

Sid Le Gear and Dick Bockenkamp had a rough journey over the first nine, each scoring 40, but with their backs to the wall they stroked the last nine in 36 and 37, respectively, to get into the match play. Le Gear spoiled his first nine with a seven on the last hole, going into the trap at the right of the green with his second shot, then over the green into a trap at the left and back again into the trap at the right with his fourth.

Bobby Held, Mike Friedlein and John Griffin, all of Forest Park, placed in the championship class and give the Park a strong trio to bid for the championship. Both Schambach and McCoy of Osage were with Forest Park last year.

Jim Manion meets Chester O'Brien in a first round match tomorrow and this should prove one of the feature matches of the day, as Chester figures to be a hard man for Manion to defeat.

Don Bender, Algonquin, had 34 on the first nine and went to No. 16 under par on the second, but four-putted the sixteenth green for a 7 and wound up with 72.

Matches in Class A tomorrow are scheduled to start at 11:40 a. m., those in the championship class at 1 p. m. and those in Class B at 2:20 p. m.

The Gastronomical League.

IN days of old when dogs were cold,
And never eaten hot,
We went to see a game of ball,
And watch the batters swat.
We liked to see the pellet land
Among the bleacher seats,
But what the rooters now demand
Is more and better eats.

It used to take a winning club
Our interest to intrigue;
But now it is the line of grub
That dominates the league.
We used to go to see 'em win
A string of championships,
But now our interest centers in
The hot potato chips.

It's not so much the rabbit ball
That interests the fans,
As guys who pass along and call
Their wares with steaming cans.
While some prefer to see 'em bat,
And some a pitching feat,
We've come to the conclusion that
They ALL go there to eat.

The Big Shot.

There was a time when the manager of a ball team commanded quite a bit of attention. But now the concessionaire is the big cheese.

We don't know how the elaborate menu affects another important privilege, but a guy with a hot dog in one hand and a bottle of pop in the other can't have much use for a score card.

We don't know the name of the bravest man in St. Louis but some day you'll see him walking down Olive in a pair of shorts.

There always has to be a first. No doubt the first man to appear in public in a pair of long pants attracted quite a bit of notice.

It takes time to put over an innovation. It's only a question of a few more years until the girls will be able to smoke a cigarette in public without looking conscious of the fact.

And as in the case of long and short skirts just about the time they begin to really enjoy smoking, the fag will go out and they'll have to start chewing or something.

Dame Fashion has been getting away with a lot of funny stuff for years and years and something ought to be done about it. How about a Senate investigating committee?

The old Dame has been unusually kind to the ladies, Dad dress 'em, in regard to comfort, but she still insists upon men wearing coats in the good old summer time.

However, we are all slaves to fashion and when the old dame cracks her whip we just roll over and go through with the program.

THREE RECORDS BROKEN, ONE IS TIED AS U. S. C. CAPTURES MEET

By the Associated Press.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 31.—The superior all-around strength of Southern California's Trojans triumphed over the individual brilliance of Stanford's Cardinals, defending title holders, today at Harvard Stadium and swept them to victory in the fifty-fourth Intercollegiate A. A. A. A. track and field championships, a sensational battle featured by the greatest collection of performances in the history of the classic.

Three records were shattered and a fourth equalled in the two-day struggle as the two Pacific Coast rivals waged a spectacular fight for team honors. For a time, Harvard unexpectedly made it a three-cornered affair with a surprising show of strength but the Crimson was unable to keep up the pace all the way.

Score in 11 of 15 Events.

Scoring in 11 of the 15 finals, the stalwart band of 16 Southern Californians rolled up the impressive total of 44¼ points. This was sufficient to give the Trojans an eight-point margin over Stanford, which finished second with 36¼ points as the Cardinals yielded the crown they had worn for the past three years in a row. Harvard finished a good third with 23½ points, Michigan fourth with 14¼, as the Wolverines participated for the first time since 1919, and Yale fifth with 12¾.

Stanford, with her twin-stars, Eric Krenz and Harlow Rothert, in rare form, furnished most of the record-breaking thrills. The Cardinals also led in first places, collecting four titles, while Southern California bagged only two. However, the Trojans had too much all-around strength and they clinched the meet with a finishing burst as Bill Carls and Ed Payne ran one-two in the final of the 220-yard low hurdles.

Churchill Sets New Record.

The third record to fall was in the javelin throw, Kenneth Churchill of the University of California breaking the meet mark for the second successive day with a toss of 212 feet, 5 inches. Besides surpassing his day-old toss of 207 feet, 8½ inches, Churchill's throw equaled the American record, set at Los Angeles in 1925 by the veteran Finn, Jonni Myrra, former Olympic champion.

The complete point scores: Southern California, 44¼; Stanford, 36¼; Harvard, 23½; Michigan, 14¼; Yale, 12¾; Columbia, 10; Pennsylvania, ,8¼; C. C. Wray's Column

At Last a Tenant

IT won't be long now until the heavyweight fight throne, which for two years has been given over to cobwebs and conjecture, will have a definite occupant. Max Schmeling and Jack Sharkey will settle all that at Yankee Stadium on June 12. Messrs. Muldoon and Gene Tunney will give it the "compound semi-annual" by handing over to the victor the Muldoon-Tunney trophy, presented by Mr. Muldoon to Mr. Tunney after Gene had defeated his hand-picked opponent, Heeney.

Tunney will pass it along to be engraved with the winner's name and it's up to you to guess whether the next monaker on the pedestal will be Schmeling or Sharkey.

Take Your Pick.

GUESSING as between only two options is not so difficult. One fighter being American born will make it a lot easier for the patriotic forecasters. This system of clairvoyance, however, carries some risks of failure. In fact, it is quite easy to pull a Jim Corbett. Schmeling as has been told may be a bit crude with his left, but he is extremely convincing with his right. Subpoena Risko and Paulino if you want first hand testimony.

It is hard to go against a fighter whose right hand has rendered plastic two such rubber editions of manhood as Risko and Paulino. Sharkey tried his artisanship on one of the men softened up by Schmeling—Johnny Risko—and pulled a complete flop, in 15 rounds. In fact, Sharkey lost the decision.

It is rather hard to work up a storm of enthusiasm over a fighter, even though he twines the American colors around his belt, who has been knocked out a couple of times and beaten on half a dozen other occasions, especially when one of the men who defeated him has fallen victim to his opponent!

Well, What of It?

BENNY LEONARD, a competent observer, remarks that Schmeling has a fatal weakness. He has no defense against a left hand.

Well, Benny, here's the counter: Neither had Jack Dempsey.

But don't follow that trail too far, either. Dempsey is Dempsey. He could take and give. And in his fight with Sharkey what he took was appalling. After the first round this writer, at ringside, thought Sharkey would win by a knockout.

It never happened, because Dempsey is Dempsey. We do not believe that Schmeling IS a Dempsey, in anything but a slight facial resemblance and in a weak imitation of right hand punching power. No fighter could have stood up against the many blows that Schmeling landed on Paulino had Dempsey's power been behind the blows.

As the Record Sees It.

THE rivals will be in fine condition for this fight, that is evident. Pictures of their workouts show the men practicing seemingly in earnest. Schmeling has not fought seriously in a year but he has been in constant light training and has had some exhibitions. He will have no physical excuses to offer.

Because he is a cool, canny planning fighter, and because he has done things that Sharkey failed to do, as indicated in their records, one is tempted to give him first consideration, as the next champion of the world.

All for the Best.

IT would be better for all concerned if he wins the title, even though it sends the title to Germany. Sharkey's reputation has been punctured full of holes and can not be patched up so that he will be a popular hero. He will be just Sharkey the man who put up a pitiful fight against Scott, who did very little better against Stribling, who was knocked out by Dempsey and Rojas and who was beaten by Risko, Weinert and others.

Schmeling, if a winner by a knockout, will give the fight world something to think about. Just now, the world needs a champion who can win decisively.

CARTMELL NAMED HEAD OF TRACK COACH BODY

By the Associated Press.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 31.—Nate Cartmell of Pennsylvania State today was elected president of the Track Coaches' Association of America at the annual meeting held in connection with American collegiate championships. Robert L. (Dink) Templeton of Stanford was chosen vice president and Harry Hillman of Dartmouth was re-elected secretary-treasurer.

TILDEN-COCHET, MRS. MOODY AND MISS JACOBS IN FRENCH FINALS

By the Associated Press.

AUTEUIL, France, May 31.—America's standard-bearers outdid themselves in the French tennis championships today, creating an all-California final for the women's title and landing big Bill Tilden in the title round against Henrie Cochet for the men's singles crown.

Mrs. Helen Wills Moody mowed down Fraulein Cecilie Aussem of Germany, 6—2, 6—1, in a match interrupted by rain, and big Bill Tilden turned back his old rival, Jean Borotra of France, 2—6, 6—2, 6—4, 4—6, 6—3, but the biggest surprise was the smashing victory of Helen Jacobs over Senorita Elia de Alvarez of Spain to the tune of 6—1, 6—0.

Miss Jacobs, for the first time since she came to Europe, gave proof that the American Ranking Committee made no mistake when it selected her as second only to Queen Helen herself. She overpowered the highly rated Spanish player by strong driving, cunning change of pace and length and a magnificent overhead game that coupled with unusual agility and speed at covering court.

Paris fans, leaving the Stadium under the spell of Miss Jacobs' splendid effort, were bemoaning the fact that Europe must look to the United States for a woman player capable of giving Mrs. Moody a real battle. These two Berkeley, Cal., girls playing from home, will meet at 3 p. m. tomorrow for the title Mrs. Moody has held for the last two years.

The world's champion, in her match with Fraulein Aussem, went at the assignment in her usual business-like manner, apparently caring no more for the drizzle of rain which fell than for the few winning shots her opponent scored. Both players were drenched and a halt had to be called in the second set when the rain increased to a downpour.

Mrs. Moody's victory, although not quite as spectacular as that of her California rival, left her still the favorite to win the title in the minds of most of the 10,000 spectators present today.

Tilden again proved that he can generally handle the bounding Basque, but Cochet maintained his position of favorite for the title by crushing Baron Humbert de Morpurgo of Italy, 7-5, 6-1, 6-2.

Big Bill had mapped out a plan of campaign which he carried through without faltering, even in the face of an interruption by rain which gave the fast tiring Basque an opportunity to recuperate.

The American champion played as though glued to the baseline and forced Borotra to play the same type of game. The result was that the bounding one had few opportunities to charge to the net where his smashing and volleying talents make him most formidable.

Intent on keeping Borotra at a safe distance, Tilden refused sometimes to take advantage of opportunities for winning strokes if they were the least hazardous. He preferred merely to keep the ball in play. These safe and sane tactics made the match less sensational than some of the previous clashes between these arch rivals have been.

Cochet looked decidedly more impressive in eliminating De Morpurgo in straight sets, and the little French wizard will be favored to trim the American.

Always a slow starter, Cochet appeared to be experimenting in the first set. He had some difficulty dealing with De Morpurgo's high-bounding first service, but soon found the solution lay in taking the ball on the rise. His lightning returns several times caught the Italian nobleman before he had finished his service contortions.

Cochet's uncanny anticipation baffled De Morpurgo. The Frenchman always seemed to divine the exact spot where his rival intended placing the ball and was waiting there for heart-breaking volleys or drop shots.

lengths to win the Steward's Challenge Cup, lowered the Henley course record of the Schuylkill to 6 minutes, 22 1-5 seconds. The old mark of 6:25 that had stood since 1908 was held jointly by the New York Athletic Club and the University of Pennsylvania crews.

Princeton won two college races, taking the varsity 150-pound race by almost a full length from Pennsylvania soon after its freshmen eight had beaten the Navy plebes by three-quarters of a length.

For the first time in many years, Pennsylvania rowed in four-oared shells, with coxswain, and won from the Penn Athletic Club. The college four was taken out of the junior varsity and stroked by Clark Thrasher.

Ken Myers, Bachelors Barge Club senior national sculling champion, was entered in the first singles for the Farragut Challenge Cup, but did not go to the starting line, and Al Vogt of the Penn A. C. won by four lengths from Russell Codman of the Union Boat Club, Boston.

Bobby Jones Beats Wethered 7 Up and 6, for British Title

chine-like precision of the American's game.

The home player's wild tee shots cost him dearly in the morning and forced him to struggle to keep within reasonable distance of his opponent. In the afternoon his long game steadied but his loose play on the greens ruined his chances, and play ended on the thirtieth hole with a missed putt by Wethered from three feet.

Tribute to the Victor.

"I didn't drive or putt well today," said Wethered tonight. "Somehow or other I seemed to pull every ball off line, but Bobby Jones is a great golfer who may put anyone off his driving. Everyone does it, and I had my bad lapse in the morning. But I did not play so badly and would have won from many other golfers. All day Jones drove magnificently, and I envy him his long game and his fine touch on the greens."

"I was lucky to win," was Bobby's comment.

Jones' victory was popular with the Scots. They swarmed after his shots and climbed on each other's shoulders. Many placed their youngsters on their heads and had the story of the putting relayed.

When the finish came, the crowds engulfed Bobby like wild tribesmen. Half a dozen bobbies rescued him and escorted him back to the clubhouse, more than a mile away, for the match ended at the twelfth hole, far out on the neck of the links.

Jones received the cup he wanted most of all from the hands of Col. P. G. M. Skene, captain of the Royal and Ancient Club, who called attention to the fact that the new champion is an honorary member of the Royal and Ancient.

Bobby told again of his love for "Old St. Andrews," in accepting the trophy.

"I never have been happier to get any cup," he said, adding, "and I never worked so hard, nor suffered so much either."

Jones' relentless battle against par proved too much for his slender opponent. The fact that Wethered was playing his ball seemed incidental. Bobby was trying constantly to better or at least remain level with par, and in this he was highly successful.

In the morning round he never

went above the figures called perfect for each hole. He had one five at the long seventh—where Wethered got a birdie four, but Jones had birdies at the fifth and fourteenth and with all the others in even par, he was two under for the morning round.

Match Ends on 30th Hole.

In the afternoon he went over par on two of the first four holes but after that he never slipped, and birdies at the twenty-third and twenty-eighth holes offset these, so in his battle against par he had a two-stroke advantage for the day.

Turning at the ninth—the twenty-seventh of the match—for the last time, Bobby shot 3-3-4 and it was all over. With a fourhole advantage at the intermission he added one hole on the first nine of the afternoon, and was five up. He made it six with a birdie three at the 312-yard twenty-eighth, where he almost drove the green. His par three at the short twenty-ninth was good enough for a half, and a par four at the thirtieth brought him the title when Wethered missed a putt for the half, which could only have served to postpone the decision.

Another world interscholastic record fell in the 120-yard high hurdles when Charles Casper, 16-year-old senior from Harlandale, Tex., stepped the barriers in :15., to defeat Amsden Oliver of Roosevelt High, Dayton, O., by about two inches. The former mark was :15.2, held jointly by Stokes and Baton Rouge, La., and Keller of East High, Columbus, O., both made on Stagg Field.

SOLDAN BEATS CLEVELAND 11-6, FOR HIGH SCHOOL BASEBALL TITLE

By Harold Tuthill

The Soldan High School baseball team yesterday proved that the last shall be first, when it defeated Cleveland, 11 to 6, at the Public Schools Stadium, to win the City League championship. The preliminary consolation game, between Roosevelt and Beaumont was won by Roosevelt, 7 to 0. About 400 spectators were at the double-header.

The West Enders were a surprise because they finished the first round with one victory and three defeats. In the tournament pairings Soldan was drawn last and defeated Beaumont. The poor performances turned in by Bob Lahey warranted the pre-game prediction that Cleveland would win, because Bob Wilfert, the Cleveland twirler, had pitched fair ball the week before.

Lahey's Day.

Yesterday's was Lahey's day, with the exception of the second inning, when he was hammered. The rally put Cleveland ahead, although Soldan had scored one run in the opening round. Harry Vierheller doubled with the bases loaded and scored a minute later on Gene Poteet's home run smash into the right field seats, for a total of five runs.

The new champions reduced the Cleveland lead to one run by scoring once in the second and twice in the third. In the fourth Wilfert was soundly pummeled. After McGreevey had been called out on strikes, Lee Handley and Wilbert Siesennop walked. Wilfert was relieved by Benecke. Machens' third straight hit was a single to right which scored Handley and Siesennop to put Soldan ahead. Jones was hit by a pitched ball. Butts forced Machens at third, but Keith Walker sent three runs across with a home run in deep left. Lahey grounded out to end the inning.

The West Enders added two superfluous runs in the sixth on a walk and two singles.

Roosevelt's Victory.

Five Roosevelt hits, coupled with seven errors by Beaumont, produced enough runs for the Rough Riders to win easily. Baumgartner was also stingy with hits, permitting Beaumont to gather only four, no two of which came in the same innings.

The baseball title gives Soldan the championship of the three major sports—football, basketball and baseball. Soldan's victory also deprived Cleveland of becoming permanent possessors of the Harvard trophy, which had been won by the Carondelet school four times.

Roosevelt	1	1	.500
Beaumont	0	2	.000

By James M. Gould.

Two veteran pitchers, both of whom have found the 1930 going rather difficult, fought a great fight at Sportsman's Park yesterday in the third game of the Browns-White Sox series. Al Crowder and Urban "Red" Faber were opposed and the two gave the few fans present the pleasure of watching one of the old-fashioned ball-games, reminiscent of the times when a pitcher had at least an even chance with the batsman. There was no rabbit-ball in those days, there didn't seem to be any yesterday for hits were few and far between. The decision went to Crowder, 3-2, after nine innings of the closest kind of battling when Oscar Melillo, in the last of the ninth, with two down, stole home with the winning run.

Thus did Crowder win his second decision in eight chances while Faber was losing his seventh in as many chances for victory.

Each Allow Only Five Hits.

Crowder and Faber, both in rare form, each allowed but five hits. The "General" never worked a more clever game. His change of pace was amazing and no fewer than nine of the White Sox went down on strikes. Faber got five the same way and walked four while Crowder was passing only two. Twice the Browns came from behind when defeat seemed certain.

As a result of the really thrilling victory, Killefer's men are virtually tied for fifth place with the Detroit Tigers who lost at Cleveland. There is the same margin of six games between victories and defeats but a difference of four percentage points.

In the first four innings, each team made but one hit and neither threatened to score. In the fifth, with two down, Dave Harris, White Sox left-fielder, got the second hit off Crowder and it happened to be a home-run which landed high in the left-center bleachers. With Faber moving along with clock-like precision, the Browns failed to score until the seventh. In fact, they were held to a single hit—a double by Blue in the third—in those six innings.

The Browns tied it in the seventh. Manush led off with an infield hit, but Kress flied out. Fred Schulte produced a single to send Manush to third and Heine scored when Melillo sent a sacrifice fly to Reynolds, Manush beating the ball home by inches.

This tie was broken by Chicago in the eighth. With one out, Catcher Riddle shot a single to left and, after Faber had dutifully sacrificed, scored on a clean wallop to center by Johnny Kerr, the shortstop.

Melillo Steals Home.

When the Browns failed to score in the eighth and Manush opened the ninth by striking out, the Brownie cause looked hopeless, but the thrills were all to come. Kress worked Faber for a pass and Schulte came through with his second hit to push Kress to third. Melillo's best was a roller to Cissell, whose throw to Riddle got Kress at the plate and hope, apparently deferred, was making the hearts of fans sick. McNeely, who had fanned twice and popped out once, planted a double in left, scoring Schulte with the tying run. The blow moved Melillo to third and Oscar proceeded to literally steal the game when he dashed for home and beat Faber's hurried peg to the plate.

Only about 4000 fans got the big thrill.

In the final game of the series today, the fans probably will see a southpaw duel between Walter Stewart for the Browns and Dutch Henry for the Sox. Stewart will be seeking his eighth victory of the season.

Brownie Notes

ACCORDING to the literati traveling with the White Sox, Saturday stands out as the most unlucky day for the club. They pointed out that every Saturday exhibition game down South was a defeat and that, since the regular season started only Ted Lyons, their big winner, has been successful on that day of the week.

The umpirical combination of McGowan, VanGraflan and Connolly is a hard one to figure. They don't work "in order" like other threesomes do. Connolly never goes behind the bat, but whether he is to work at second or third is a mystery until the start of the game.

Cissell's double in the first missed being a homer by less than a foot, the ball hitting the top of the rather low barrier in left. No damage was done as Cissell was out trying to steal third and the long-swinging Jolley struck out.

The Sox thought Crowder was "monkeying" with the ball so effective was he in the first two innings. After Reynolds flied out in the second, Crowder fanned Shires. When he shot over two strikes on Harris, Donie Bush asked for an examination. Al passed this with flying colors and then put the third one over on Harris.

There must be something that causes sleep around first base. In the Browns' second, the usually alert Melillo dozed and was snapped off by Faber. He was the fourth to be caught thus napping since the Browns returned home.

In the first four innings, Blue had only one putout. Hale had one, Manion six, and the outfielders got the remaining four. It took only 36 minutes to play them.

Only 14 Sox players faced Crowder in four and two-thirds innings. Then Harris hit his long homer.

During the first six innings, only three Brownies reached first on Faber. Two of these Faber issued passes. Blue's double provided the only St. Louis tenant of second during the stretch.

Whenever the Sox get a short lead, Manager Bush replaces Jolley in right with Watwood, because of the latter's superiority as a fielder.

inning, but was forced by Watkins. Jimmy Wilson was awarded first base when Hartnett tipped his bat, but Farrell forced him at second. Watkins scored and Farrell reached second on a double steal, but after Haines walked, Douthit ended the inning with a grounder to Blair.

Adams beat out a hit to English in the third and scored on Frisch's single when the hit bounced past Stephenson, and in the fourth Jim Wilson's double and Farrell's single produced another run.

Bottomley and Watkins doubled in the fifth to make it four to nothing and the Cards scored their fifth and final run in the seventh on Hafey's double and Farrell's triple to left center.

Redbird Notes

Bill Sherdel and Fred Frankhouse will pitch against the Reds in tomorrow's double-heater at Cincinnati. It will be the Cincinnati team's first appearance at home since Don Howley's trades with the Giants and it is expected that there will be many razzberries.

About 25,000 persons paid to see the series final between the Cards and Cubs and to cheer for Rogers Hornsby as he hobbled on crutches to home plate to receive his $1000 and medal as the National League's most valuable player. President Heydler handed Rogers the money and Jim Crusinberry, president of the Baseball Writers' Association, gave him the medal.

Chick Hafey grounded to Beck in the fifth inning but didn't run to first, as he thought Catcher Hartnett had interfered with his bat.

Beck fumbled the ball and Chick could have reached first safely had he run. Umpire Magerkurth disallowed Chicken's protest and he was out. It cost a run, as Watkins followed with a long double to right center.

The Cards filled the bases in the sixth on Haines' single, Blair's error on Douthit's grunder and a pass to Adams, but Teachout relieved Blake, struck out Frish and got Bottomley on a foul to Grimm.

Former Manager Dies.

NEW YORK, May 31.—"Three Finger" Jack Dougherty, one of the most colorful and famous of the old time fight managers, died suddenly of heart disease in his lodging here yesterday.

Women's T-M Golf Tourney Opens Tomorrow

TULSA, Ok., May 31.—Numbering in its ranks the Mid West's leading feminine players an army of women golfers was assembled here tonight, ready to take up the quest for the 1930 championship of the Women's Trans-Mississippi Golf Association.

The qualifying rounds in the association's fourth annual tournament will start at 8:30 a. m. Monday over the Tulsa Country Club course. The entry boks listed 180 players, the largest field in the association's history. Entries will be received until the opening of the tournament.

Absence from the competition of Mrs. O. S. Hill of Kansas City, 1929 champion; Mrs. Marion Turpie Lake medalist in each of the previous tournaments, and Mrs. Miriam Burns Horn Tyson, 1927 champion and 1928 runner-up, leaves the field without an outstanding favorite for the title left undefended by Mrs. Hill when she joined the American women's team now in Europe. Mrs. Luke, formerly of New Orleans, and Mrs. Tyson, formerly of Kansas City, have moved from the Trans-Mississippi region.

Mrs. Dorothy Klotz Purdue of Sioux City, Iowa, has been mentioned prominently in discussions of the possible title winner, as was Mrs. George E. Ripple of Hutchinson, Kan., four times Kansas champion. The practice round yesterday of 16-year-old Mary Elizabeth Ford of the Milburn Country Club, Kansas City, evoked considerable comment from those who watched her. She did not turn in a card.

The championship course is 6395 yards from the first tee to the eighteenth green. Women's par is 78.

and was far back in his first trip to the post. He had 115 pounds up in the first race yesterday and he had some difficulty reaching The Moon, but he finally caught him a sixteenth of a mile from home and then drew away quickly. Domina was third.

If Princess Peroxide is not the 2-year-old champion of the meeting it will take something other than Red Chili and Civollag to prove it. She beat this pair and six others in the second race. Civollag lost much ground in bolting to the outside fence at the head of the stretch, and then recovered to finish a strong second, but Red Chili was simply outrun. Sun B. may yet give Princess Peroxide an argument, but he is a bad actor and has been on the schooling list since his victory two weeks ago.

Essie Captures Third.

Two heavily played favorites took a bad walloping in the running of the third race when Essie, following close on the fast early pace, popped through between the tiring Genuine and Theo Rochester to win going away. The latter two fought a head and head battle for half a mile and the duel took a lot out of both so that Essie had only two tired horses to pass in the stretch. Joe Cavens handled the winner in excellent style. Ultimate Vote, running much the same sort of race, finished second and Genuine third.

Frankie Seremba, former jockey, now training a stable, all but put over a surprise when he woke up Judge Dixon in the fourth race. Consistently last or thereabouts in his last half dozen starts, Judge Dixon went to the post 8 to 1, while Guide Right and Bub McFarland were installed favorites. When the barrier was sprung, Judge Dixon almost flew. He put six lengths between himself and Guide Right before they left the back stretch and it was all Hanford could do to get the favorite up to him at the head of the stretch. Bub McFarland, making his first start at this track, was off slowly but came with promising speed in the last eighth, to finish third.

When the early pacemakers weakened after going three-quarters of a mile, Jem, Selection and Mary Dale came with a rush to finish first, second and third in the sixth race. Bozo, as usual, set the pace, then quit. Luck Piece did the same. Battler, in his first start here, was within striking distance of the leaders for half mile but weakened, apparently needing the race to tighten up. Highway was off in a tangle and Joe Cavens rode him wide through the journey, trying to get him into the clear. The effort sapped his strength.

Aspin Lake, on which there was a late splurge of come-back money which dropped his price from 40 to 1 down to 6 to 1, captured The Cossack at the half mile ground and then had to hang on gamely to prevent Pebble's Last from catching him in the stretch. Pebbles last finished second and Ocean Current, the favorite, third. Earl Goodrich rode the winner.

Endor, the "good thing" was a badly beaten fourth in the last race where Classy really showed all sorts of class in winning. Evergreen Queen well ridden by M. E. Meyers was second and MacFogle third.

ATHLETICS BEAT SENATORS, 7-3, AND GAIN TIE FOR 1ST PLACE

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, May 31.—The world champion Philadelphia Athletics presented a makeshift line-up today but had little trouble in taking their third straight game from the Washington Senators by a score of 7 to 3. The victory put the Athletics in a tie for first place.

Jimmy Fox started the Rookie cast to victory in the second inning when he opened a four-run attack against Lloyd Brown, with his eleventh home run of the season. Four more hits that followed chased three more tallies over the plate.

Walberg went the route against the Senators, and though wild enough to issue seven passes, held them to five hits, one of which was a double by Brown that scored two runs in the second inning.

The Athletics had Al Simmons, Mickey Cochrane, Jimmy Dykes and Max Bishop on the bench nursing injuries.

Wisconsin Wins Baseball Title

By the Associated Press.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., May 31.—Wisconsin won its first Western Conference baseball title today by defeating Michigan, 1 to 0 in a game which was a pitching duel between Summerfield, badger sophomore and Compton, Michigan.

The highest the Badgers have been in the competition before was in 1912 when they tied Illinois for the championship. Illinois was the strongest contender again this year. The final standings gave Wisconsin nine victories and one defeat, while Illinois has won eight games and lost 2.

Each of the pitchers today allowed seven hits and both were airtight in the pinches.

The run that earned the championship in the eighth inning when slow fielding gave Summerfield a double. Winer sacrificed and a squeeze play was tried, but Mathewson missed the ball. Summerfield was caught between third and home. Superko tried to run him down but Umpire Byron decided that Summerfield was on the plate before he was touched.

BROWN WINS FIFTH VICTORY AS INDIANS BEAT TIGERS, 7 TO 4

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, May 31.—Three Detroit errors helped Clin Brown, right-hand recruit, to hang up his fifth victory of the season as the Cleveland Indians won the third game of the series here today from the Tigers, 7 to 4.

In the third, with three Indians on the bases, L. Sewell scratched a hit through Rogell. The Detroit shortstop threw into right field trying for a forceout at second, and Outfielder Johnson made another wild throw, allowing L. Sewell to score behind three teammates.

HORNSBY GIVEN 'MOST VALUABLE PLAYER' AWARD AND $1000 CASH

CHICAGO, May 31. — Rogers Hornsby, the "wounded in action hero" of the championship Cubs, hobbled into Wrigley Field supported by crutches to day to receive the National League's most valuable player award for the second time.

Thirty thousand fans, most of whom saw the famous "Rajah" break his good left ankle while sliding to third base in yesterday morning's game with the St. Louis Cardinals, stood during the presentation ceremony and gave a tumultuous cheer. It was a li ttle solace anyway for Hornsby who will be out of the game six weeks or more because of his accident.

President John Heydler of the National League presided at the brief ceremony, which was held before the day's game between the Cardinals and Cubs. He handed the "Rajah" $1000 in gold and prasied him not only for his baseball playing ability but for his spirit, one of the big factors that enabled the Cubs to win the National League pennant last year.

James Cruisenberry, president of the Baseball Writers' Association of America, who made the award, also praised the "Rajah" and presented him with a bronze placque.

What Hornsby Achieved.

Hornsby, not only led the 1929 champions in hitting with a .380 average, but was invaluable as a field general. He was the leader of the league in runs scored, breaking the all time record, and was the only player on the team to play every game, including exhibition contests.

Hornsby, who won the award in 1925 and the only player to win it twice, is also the last man to receive the honor. The award has been discontinued, ending with 1929, the league magnates believing it instrumental in higher salary demands.

The "Rajah" plans to leave for his farm on the outskirts of St. Louis tomorrow night to recuperate. While the fracture is not exceptionally severe he and the Cubs will be fortunate if he gets into action again this year.

ROBINS GET 10 HITS, BUT LOSE TO PHILS, 3-1

By the Associated Press.

BROOKLYN, May 31—Earl Collard, young Philadelphia right-hander, outpitched Dazzy Vance, the great man of the National League's hurlers, to give the Phillies a 3 to 1 victory over the Brooklyn Robins today.

Collard allowed 10 hits, but was effective with men on bases. Bissonette's homer bringing the only Brooklyn run. Vance had a poor first inning, then went at his usual pace until taken out for a pinch hitter in the eighth. He allowed only seven hits and fanned seven.

The Phillies put together a pass, a double by Klein and a single by Whitney for two runs in the opening inning and held the lead all through the game. Their third run came off Jim Elliott, in the ninth on Southern's triple and a sacrifice by Thevenow.

ALCIBIADES GALLOPS TO VICTORY IN FIFTY-SIXTH KENTUCKY OAKS

HEADLEY'S FINE FILLY DEFEATS RICH WIDOW AND SPEEDY GALADAY

By the Associated Press.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 31.—Hal Price Headley's Alcibiades, crack 3-year-old filly, won the Kentucky Oaks today and a purse of approximately $10,000. Rich Widow, owned by J. W. Parrish, was second and R. S. Clark's Galaday was third. Alcibiades ran the mile and an eighth in 1:52 3-5.

It was the fifty-sixth running of the Oaks, a race for 3-year-old fillies over the mile and an eighth distance, and featured the concluding program of the 19 days' meeting here.

There will be no Kentucky racing until Latonia opens on June 28.

Ideal conditions prevailed and a large throng gathered for the farewell program of a successful season.

The Oaks carried a net value of $9760 to the winner, $2000 to second, $1000 third and $220 to the fourth stable. Alcibiades enriched her backers at $14.58 for a $2 ticket.

Under a clever ride by Jockey R. Finnerty, Alciabiades was taken into the lead on the first turn, relinquished command to Galaday on the turn into the home stretch, but responded well when called upon through the drive, was up to win by a length.

Rich Widow was hustled into fourth position early and, continuing evenly under a timid ride by H. Fisher, just managed to nose out Galaday for the place.

Thistle Ann, Elizabeth Kennedy and Niato finished in the order named. The winner's time was 1:52 3-5.

Is He Another Man O' War?

H. P. Whitney's Whichone, champion as a two-year-old, now making the race world look up with two victories in his only two starts as a three-year-old.

Whichone and Gallant Fox Duel May Produce Another Man o' War in Turf World

The greatest turf duel since Zev and In Memoriam had their head-to-head struggle seven years ago will take place next Saturday afternoon when Whichone and Gallant Fox will meet in the sixty-second running of the classic Belmont Stakes.

This event, which in the course of its long existence has been run at varying distances and for values ranging from $3000 to $75,000, will this year be contested over a distance of a mile and one-half, the route that has been assigned to it since 1926, when Crusader, great son of Man o' War, captured the event. Its value to the winner this year will be in the neighborhood of $70,000, and the horse that wins it will come close to being adjudged the greatest 3-year-old of the year.

There is, in view of the circumstances attending the running, a possibility that the winner of this event will earn the right to be classed with Man o' War as one of the real great horses of American turf history. That is because there will be at least two contestants which seem likely to attain super laurels this year—the two named above.

Gallant Fox Has Great Record.

Of these, Gallant Fox has gained a 3-year-old record such as has been equaled but once in history. In his three starts this year he has won something like $110,000, capturing the Wood Memorial Stakes, the Preakness and the Kentucky Derby. In all of his races he has been well in hand and was unextended. He merely galloped to win the Kentucky Derby from a really fine horse—Gallant Knight. And when he is set down there is little doubt that he will be a formidable opponent. That he will go on for the full mile and one-half distance is conceded, as he has come from behind to lead his fields home.

At this writing Whichone is not so well tried as Gallant Fox. He has had but two tests this year and both of those were at a mile. Yet so confident are the Eastern followers of this horse that they have made him favorite over Gallant Fox, in spite of his proved worth. That Whichone will be able to do all this asked of his has been accepted in the East with as much confidence as was Man O' War's reputation back in 1920.

Whichone Beaten Twice.

On his 2-year-old form, Whichone was as great a standout as was Man O' War. He won $135,000, and, after losing his first race, the only time he suffered defeat was when his stable mate, Boojum, was allowed to lead him home in one event.

Weather and track conditions will bother neither performer, for both have proved their worth over any kind of going. Both can carry weight. The only doubt is whether Whichone can do his stuff over a distance of ground.

In spite of the fact that Gallant Fox is a better proved-up horse than Whichone, the Whitney entry is favored to win by a slight margin. Here in the West, however, the belief is strong that Gallant Fox and Sande will be a tough combination to defeat.

The Belmont Stake has been won by some famous horses—names that stood out like beacons in turf history. Blue Larkspur, last year's winner, was a truly great performer, winning $153,000 in his 3-year-old form alone. Before him came Vito and Chance Shot, the two Man o' War champions, Crusader and American Flag. American Flag, however, ran the distance at one and three-eighths miles—not one and one-half miles. It was at this distance that Man o' War won this race from Donnaconna, setting a new American time record for the distance—the amazing figure of 2:14 1-5.

2:32½ Best Time in Stakes

Man o' War, by the way, in the same year won the Belmont Jockey Club Stakes, which was then at one and one-half miles. He set the American record for this distance, that of 2:28 4-5. The best mile and one-half ever done in the Belmont Stakes was 2:32 1-5, by Man o' War's offspring, Crusader.

Other famous names in the victory list of the Belmont are Zev, Grey Lag, Sir Barton, the unbeaten Colin, Afrikander, Commando, Henry of Navarre, etc.

Almost as interesting as the result of the duel of the horses will be Jockey Earl Sande's bid for his fifth victory in the Belmont.

Jockey Sande four times has piloted home the winner of this rich race. He had the leg up on Grey Lag in 1921, on Zev in 1923, on Mad Play in 1924 and on Chance Shot in 1927. Many famous riders have preceded Sande in this event, but only one ever surpassed the present day king. That was Jockey J. McLaughlin, who won the Belmont Stakes six times in seven years. Starting in 1882, McLaughlin rode in succession Forester, George Kinney and Panique; and then, with a gap of one year between, rode Inspector B., Hanover and Sir Dixon to victory.

New Bet Refund And Time Records Set in Dog Races

A new record refund and a track record, with some long prices on winners, marked the dog racing at Kingshighway track last night, viewed by a crowd that track officials declared was the largest of the meeting.

Roaming Pride, second in the opening race, paid $57.40 for $2 to place, the highest price recorded so far at the track, which is in its first season.

In running the five-sixteenths mile in 32 2-5 seconds, Jolly Irishman clipped one-fifth of a second off the track mark.

The last two winners, Davies in the ninth race and Good Blend in the tenth, paid $34 and $43.40 for $2, respectively.

TORO CAPTURES WASHINGTON PARK FEATURE

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, May 31.—Toro, a 5-year-old bay horse by The Porter-Brocatelle, carried the colors of E. B. McLean to victory in the Robert M. Sweitzer Handicap, the best race at Washington Park here today. Galahad, from the Reuter Stable, was second under the wire, with Lady Broadcast finishing third.

The event was a $5000 added allowance affair for 3-year-olds and upwards and attracted 10 starters and was worth $6210 to the winner. Toro covered the mile and one-eighth in 1:51 4-5.

Toro, away well and full of speed, was kept under a strong pull until rounding the home stretch, where, given his head, he rapidly sprinted into the lead and was being eased up to win by a length and a half.

Martie Flynn, Jean Valjean, Bobashela, Brown Wisdom, Blackwood, Stars and Bars and Karl Eitel finished in the order named:

Toro rewarded his backers at $10.66 to $2.

Clubs to Carry 15 Men.

TOPEKA, Kan., May 31.—Dale D. Gear, president of the Western Association, today announced Western Association baseball clubs will be permitted to carry 15 men on their rosters for the remainder of the season. The increase of one man over former authorized strength was, he said, because of the number of double-headers on schedules.

Ossie H. gained rapidly after reaching the stretch, wore down The Moon to win with speed in reserve. Domina, far out of contention, made up some ground to finish strongly under severe punishment. Griff W. had no mishap. Toltec weakened during the final quarter. Forecaster, away in motion, dropped out of contention and was outrun thereafter. Dunbeath was always a distant trailer.

Princess Peroxide, racing as if much the best and showing the most speed, sprinted into a long lead to win as her rider pleased. Civollag, well up to the stretch, where he ran out, losing much ground, came again to finish strong. Red Chili had no mishap. Too Much Talk showed a good performance despite racing greenly. Alton N. raced evenly. Bilson quit.

Essie followed the pace under restraint, responded gamely when urged, drew into the lead, but had to be hard ridden to withstand the determined challenge of Ultimate Vote. The latter gained rapidly after entering the stretch, was gradually wearing down the winner, probably could have won in another stride. Genuine, in close attendance from the start, weakened when put to hard punishment. Theo. Rochester had a good lead when rider was forced to ease up due to the saddle slipping. Thomas Seth made up some ground. The others were outrun.

Blue Ash was a distant trailer throughout.

Jem, racing improved, followed the pace to the final quarter, where he drew into the lead, but had to be roused briskly to withstand the determined challenge of Selection. Aspin Lake, sprinted into the lead after going a quarter-mile, withstood game challenges from Pebbles Last, drew away to win as his rider pleased. The latter, well up throughout, offered good contention, was no match for the winner, but held on with good courage for the place. Ocean Current finished with a rush. "BOOTS" DURNELL IS AGAIN REFUSED A TRAINER'S LICENSE

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 31.—C. E. "Boots" Durnell, race horse trainer, today lost his appeal to the Kentucky State Racing Commission for a trainer's license.

The Commission held its third hearing on Durnell's case today and upheld the report of its license committee, which had reported unfavorably on Durnell's application for a trainer's license earlier in the year. The license committee recommended that Durnell's request be tabled until his status in New York is cleared.

PRIMO CARNERA WILL LAUNCH HIS REAL PENNANT DRIVE THIS WEEK

K O CHRISTNER IS EXPECTED TO GIVE VENETIAN A SEVERE TEST

By John E. Wray,
Sports Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Primo Carnera, who has been somewhat in eclipse since they handed him the native-son reception (reserved for intruding foreigners) out there where the Hollywood tom-toms murmur, will have a chance to shine with renewed effulgence this week. Although still under the cap-pistol threat of the National Boxing Association, Carnera has been given his chance by Michigan and Detroit in particular. There, at the stadium next Thursday, Carnera will take on an opponent who, matchmakers believe, would remain vertical even under the baleful influence of a couple of "grand" to him in hand paid, and who, be it further attested, would try to, and probably succeed, in delivering to the button of the aforementioned Carnera, one or more two-ton stocks calculated to relieve that tired feeling with sleep.

The party is none other than K. O. Christner, the big rubber man of Akron, O. There is no doubt that this Christner is a Socko Kid. When he hits he hurts the ordinary feller. He hit Knute Hansen so hard he knocked all the title thoughts clear out of that Scandinavian's dome. He had the big Otto Von Porat steering his course in circles around the ring for five rounds. And if Otto's mamma could have seen him at that moment there would have been a hurry call for the S. P. C. A.

Otto, who is by way of being built of steel, concrete and rhinoceros hide, survived to tell the story and get the big end of the purse. But those who looked on felt that Kayo Christner was not the kind of dynamite you can take liberties with.

Will Be Primo's Toughest Opponent

Which brings us to the conclusion that Kayo is the toughest opposition that Primo has had to face as yet. He has had experience, fought good men, can hit and he may be able to show whether mere gigantic mold can beat good hitter. Seventy or 80 pounds is a tremendous advantage. And, frankly, we do not expect Christner to report to the ring center when the men are supposed to come out to shake hands for the final round.

With Carnera safely past the Christner hurdle his next big contract will be to debunk the inflated notion that Jawge Godfrey, 240 pounds of soft, dark fighting meat, is a Black Menace. The world has been kidded into believing that Jawge is another truly great fighter and that is something that remains to be proved. Jawge may be hard to beat, but he hasn't beat much himself.

However, with his somewhat false prestige, his defeat by Carnera would give that fighter a prestige he could get in no other way. A great many persons actually accept Godfrey as a better man than any white fighter in the country, and so a victory over him would assure Carnera the next title fight.

Incidentally, the Carnera-Godfrey engagement will come after the title has been handed to the winner of the Sharkey-Schmeling battle, the play being Tunney to Muldoon to—well, you do the picking. When it comes to a battle between second-raters, you can't guess what will happen, unless it is a foul.

Titleholder Would Sidestep Carnera

Certainly if Carnera defeats Godfrey, the new world champion, by authority of Muldoon-Tunney and Co., will be in no hurry to hurl himself against Primo. The world champion will go into escrow for at least a year—and there's neither perhaps nor maybe to that situation. You can visualize all the title hopes beating it for the dock to embark for all points East or South.

However—let's not draw too much on the imagination about this Carnera man. It is true he is a different big man from any giant that ever pretended to the throne. But also, the bigger they come the larger their weak spots. Somebody may find the Achilles heel and step on it. In the meantime, one and all would like to see him put to the real test to show if he is punch proof or just human.

Five Local Girls Train for A. A. U. Meet With Eyes on International Event

By Damon Kerby.

Training for the National Woman's A. A. U. track and field meet at Dallas, July 4, but with their eyes on berths with the United States team that will compete in the women's international meet at Prague next September, five St. Louis girls, members of the Western A. A. U., are working out each evening in track and field events on the Washington University campus.

The girls are Miss Dolores Boeckmann, a member of the 1928 U. S. Olympic team; Miss Olga Becker, who participated in the Olympic tryouts at Newark, N. J., in 1928; Miss Agatha Spanholtz, former Headlight A. C. dash star; Miss Ruth Reilly and Miss Garnita Roewe.

Miss Boeckmann in Discus.

Although Miss Boeckmann formerly held the world's record for women in the 50-yard dash, she will compete only in the discus throw, in which she placed second in the National A. A. U. meet last year.

Miss Spanholtz, 16 years old, will represent the Western A. A. U. in the dash events. A remarkable feature in regard to her near-record performances is that she has attained proficiency despite the handicap of having had a leg broken in two places in an accident three years ago. Until the past few days she has been training with her right arm in a sling, having broken the arm some time ago in the Concordia gymnasium.

Runner and Shot Putter.

Miss Reilly in the last few days has been consistently reaching a height of 4 feet, 9 inches and has gone as high as 4 feet, 10 inches, in the high jump. That event was won in the national women's meet last year with a mark of 4 feet 9¾ inches. She is believed to have the best chance of the local girl athletes in placing as an entrant on the United States team. She competed last year in the national in the 220-yard dash, but failed to place.

A former Washington University student, Miss Becker, who now specializes in the 220, 440 and 880-yard runs, holds the girls' records at Washington U. in the 50 and 100-yard dashes and the discus throw.

Miss Roewe, a 16-year-old girl, will compete in the eight-pound shotput.

The five girls will compete in the Western A. A. U. girls' track and field meet here June 21. If their marks should be surpassed, which is not considered likely, the successful entrants would be added to the squad for the National meet.

JAPAN VICTOR IN FAR-EASTERN OLYMPIC GAMES

By the Associated Press.

TOKIO, May 31.—Japan won the championship of the Far Eastern Olympic games, which closed here today, by a wide margin, the event ended with an interesting battle between three great breast stroke swimmers.

Tsuruta, Japan, who won the 200-meter breast stroke race in the Amsterdam Olympic games in 1928, finished third in that event today, bowing to Ildefonso, of the Philippines, who won in 2 minutes, 53 2-5 seconds. At Amsterdam Ildefonso finished third.

POKINGHORN MAY BOX HERBST ON AMATEUR PROGRAM THIS WEEK

There is a strong possibility that Elmer Pokinghorn, Western A. A. U. welterweight champion, and Joe Herbst Jr., Mississippi Valley Amateur Association junior welterweight title holder, will be matched to trade blows in one of the bouts on Thursday night's all-star amateur boxing program at the open-air Olympian A. C. arena, 3547 West Pine, according to an announcement by Matchmaker George Wilsman.

Pokinghorn is now a member of the Sherman Park C. C., which is one of the 10 local athletic clubs belonging to the Mississippi Valley A. A.

Dan O'Keefe states that his national heavyweight champion, Les Schulte, is in condition for his inter city scrap with Bob Elliott, a kayo artist from Jacksonville, Ill.

Another star bout will bring together Steve Marre, district senior middleweight champion, and Russell Kinder, the "fighting policeman," who a few years ago was one of the best simon-pure fighters in the city.

It is expected that Clifford Doetzel, city bantamweight title holder, will accept a match with Woodrow Williams, a speedy Olympian A. C. boxer, who made Doetzel extend himself in their previous meetings.

Phelps Defeats Barry for Pro Sculling Title

MORTLAKE, England, May 31.—By the big margin of 35 lengths a young Londoner, Ted Phelps, wrested the world's professional sculling championship from the holder, Bert Barry, likewise an Englishman, in a race over the Putney-to-Mortlake course of four and one-quarter miles today.

A son of "Bossy" Phelps, Putney Riverside waterman, who has much to do with the Oxford and Cambridge crews during their annual races, Ted Phelps has won several minor races and has recently been coaching in Argentina. He trained for the last three months at Putney with the assistance of the well-known scullers, D. H. L. Gollan, J. Beresford Jr. and T. R. A. Collett.

After trailing slightly at the start, Phelps forged ahead gradually and led by four lengths at the halfway point, after which it was something of a procession, Barry being hopelessly outdistanced and outclassed. Phelps' time was 22 minutes and 48 seconds.

May File Protest.

Several Southern colleges are seriously considering the filing of a protest with Commissioner Landis over the invasion of their territory by major league scouts so early in the season. Two stars from Oglethorpe University were signed by major league clubs before the team had finished its season, and scouts are common sights now at intercollegiate ball games.

Twilight League to Try Night Soccer Experiment, This Week; "Pro" Team Heads Interested

If Amateur Contests at Francis Field Next Thursday Prove Success, Glasgow Rangers May Meet Local Professionals in Game Here.

By Dent McSkimming.

Aside from its appeal as entertainment, the benefit soccer double-header to be played at Francis Field next Thursday evening merits attention as an experiment in a new field, in the opinion of leaders of the sport here. It will be the first effort at night soccer under floodlights and upon the success or failure of the venture will depend largely the attitude of the local professional organization toward such night soccer.

As has been told, the four clubs of the St. Louis Twilight Amateur Soccer League will play two games at the Washington University Field, under electric lights, the funds derived therefrom to be used to assist two St. Louis players who are going to South America as members of the United States team which plays in the world soccer championship series in July. The players, Frank Vaughn and Raphael Tracy, are both married and they will lose their salaries during their three months' absence from their present employment.

May Bring Rangers Here.

Seeking a means of reviving interest in soccer here, W. E. Barker and other officials of the local professional soccer League have turned their attention to night games. Thus far, they have had no opportunity to test the arrangemen, but if they are successful in their efforts to bring the Rangers of Glasgow, Scotland, here for an exhibition match the game probably will be played under electric lights, on or about June 16. The benefit game of Thursday night will determine largely whether the professional league will wish to adopt the night soccer idea. Dr. Al H. Sharpe, athletic director, is lending the aid of Washington University to this week's experiment because it is being held as a benefit show.

The two games to be played are part of the Twilight Soccer League championship series. Two of the clubs involved are tied for the league lead and a third is just one point out of first place. Should the German Sports Club team defeat the Cook Club in the first game of the evening, the Germans would pass the present leaders. In the second game, the Academy Club has an opportunity to get up among the leaders if they can defeat the Dolan Club.

Neighborhood Rivalry Keen.

Each of the four teams involved is a distinctive neighborhood unit with its own traditions and club following. Almost every man of the German Sports Club team was born in the "Old Country" and their team play is characterized by much of the European style. They are especially strong on defense and they play with a show of vigor that has worried their opponents as well as the league referees. In point of ball control and passwork the Germans are probably the most polished team in the league. They have gone through five games without a defeat and in each succeeding game they have appeared to better advantage. Nick Jost is their manager.

The Dolans, tied for the league lead with the Cook A. C., are coached and managed by Danny Murphy, who played forward and halfback for the Scullins when Tate Brady guided the team to the national cup finals. They are a sound team from goal to forward line and thus far have suffered but one defeat and that by a 1 to 0 score. They rely greatly upon Center Forward Joe Phelan to supply the scoring punch but the other forward especially Schuette, are all very capable.

Academy's Rebuilt.

In their league games thus far the Academys, last in the standing, have been going through a state of transition. Manager Joe McConnell has experimented a great deal with his forward line and it seemed in the game of last Thursday that he had hit upon a proper combination. The Academys have in their lineup several colorful players, among them the Murphy brothers, Pete and John, both transplanted from Ireland. They are both very clever forwards but because they are young and not fully matured physically, they have not been used regularly. Oscar Mossmann, the league coach, after one glimpse of the Murphy boys, exclaimed: "There we have two born soccer players."

Another interesting lad in the Academy team is Joe O'Meara, outside right forward, who plays all games with spectacles. This is considered a hazardous practice in soccer, but O'Meara has never yet suffered an injury because of the specs and he never hesitates to head the ball. His crosses from the wing are better executed than those of any other player in the league.

C. B. C. Ex-Star Heads "Cooks."

A former star player of the old Christian Brothers' College regime is managing the Cook A. C. team and he has the club tied for first place. He is John Scully. In recent tests the Cooks have shown an aptitude for combination passing which is at times very attractive and effective. They have the steadiest center halfback in the league in Ed Gallagher, a very important factor in the team's success. The Reidy brothers, Pat at outside left, and Jim, at outside right, also have displayed skill above the ordinary.

Three former professional league stars, Jimmy Brannigan, George Corrigan and Jimmy Dunn, are the league referees. They have alternated in haandling the games and they have been assisted on the lines by Tal Mulroy, Allen Peterson and Johnny Hamm, all of whom have had professional league experience.

The benefit game program will conclude the sixth week of the league schedule of nine weeks' play. The regular games are played at Sherman Park, play starting at 6:30 and ending about sundown.

The admission charge Thursday evening will be 50 cents with ladies free. The first game will start at 8 p. m. and the halves will be 25 minutes each.

McBride High to Get Lane Trophy

The Lane trophy, emblematic of supremacy in the five competitive sports in which Prep League schools participate, will go to McBride High again this season, it becomes evident from an examination of the records chalked up by the various teams. The award will be made official at a meeting of league officers next week, the Colonnaders taking the three-time prize for the second consecutive year with a total of 3146.2 points, one of the largest point scores rolled up by any winning team in the history of the league. St. Louis U. High is second with 2469 and Christian Brothers' College third with 2336. Western drops to its lowest total in five years with 1916.8 points, and Country Day is fifth with 1500.

The Colonnader squads took three championships out of a possible five, winning the conference titles in tennis, football and baseball. In all three of these sports the Orange and Green finished the season undefeated, the most outstanding work of St. Louis U. High coming in the basketball season. The Junior Billikens won the league basketball title with seven victories and one defeat. In tennis they finished second, and were third in football.

C. B. C. failed to capture a title but did consistently well in all sports. Their best work was in basketball, in which they finished second with six victories and two defeats.

The trophy is a three-time cup, toward which points are given on the following basis: football, 250 points for a victory, 125 for a tie; basketball, baseball and tennis, 125 points for a victory; track, 20 points for every point earned in the meet, with the points being apportioned if the winner gets more than 1000. McBride now has two legs on the cup, as has St. Louis U. High, while Western has one leg, and Country Day and C. B. C. have failed to win the trophy thus far.

12 TEAMS OPEN JUNIOR LEGION BASEBALL RACE HERE TOMORROW

Twelve St. Louis junior teams will be represented in the third annual American League Junior Baseball championship which will be launched tomorrow, in the St. Louis district.

The teams, sponsored by as many local legion posts, will battle through an elimination series ending early in July.

The 12 local clubs are divided into two leagues, the "Cardinals" and the "Browns," and at the end of the eliminations the leaders of the Browns and Cardinals groups will play for the right to represent St. Louis against the winners of the county Legion league and Festus Legion teams.

The winner of this district series will then compete with the winners of the other Missouri districts for the State championship and then move on to the battle for regional championships at Emporia, Kan.

Goldmans Won Last Year.

Last year the team representing the Goldman Post won the district title and the State title, and represented Missouri at the regional championships. They were defeated there however.

This year's Goldman team is again entered but only five of the original players are with the club. However, the Goldmans have fortified by adding Stubbs, last year's pitcher for the Anderson Post, and other stars.

The 12 posts represented in this year's eliminations are as follows:

CARDINALS—Quentin Roosevelt, Richard Anderson, Peers, Williams, Jackson Johnson, Missouri Pacific and Edward E. Walker.

BROWNS — Jerome Goldman, Fred W. Stockham, Aubuchon Dennison, Walter J. Hatzfield, St. Louis Post No. 4 and Atwell T. Lincoln.

BROWNS

(All Games at Forest Park.)

Goldmans vs. Stockhams, No. 8.

Dennisons vs. Hatzfeld, No. 7.

St. Louis No. 4 vs. Lincoln.

CARDINALS

Roosevelt vs. Anderson, No. 22.

Peers-Williams vs. Johnson, No. 23.

Teams are permitted under the rules to have 14 players.

An open archery contest, in which five clubs will take part, will be the intitial event on the Tuberculosis day program, June 24, at Sportsman's Park. Women archers will shoot the Columbian Round and the men the American round.

Clubs participating are East St. Louis Archers, Webster Groves Archers, Maplewood Archers, Tower Grove Archers, and St. Louis Archers. The day's program will begin at 12:30 o'clock, the archers leading off the three hours of entertainment features which will precede the ball game between the Cardinals and the Boston Braves. The game has been set for 4 o'clock.

TRAUTWEIN ALLOWS ONLY THREE HITS TO WIN FIFTH GAME IN ROW

VICTORY GIVES EBENEZERS THE LEADERSHIP IN SENIOR LEAGUE

If their star pitcher, Trautwein, can continue his present stride, there appears no reason off hand why the Ebenezers won't top the Senior Evangelical League this season. Of course, there is a hot and dusty road to travel before the final pay-off, but on Trautwein's showing to date he can't well be improved upon.

Yesterday the Ebenezer pitching star won his fifth victory in a row when he held the St. James team to three scattering hits, winning by a score of 15 to 0. The one-sidedness of the score might indicate that St. James was outclassed. They were—yesterday—but when they entered the game they were tied for the Senior Evangelical lead. Ebenezer now holds undisputed first place.

In the Commercial League, the Tower Camps kept their slate for the season clean by trouncing the Bell nine, 14-1. Kraus allowed four hits and one run in six innings. Then Harshany went in and sent the Bell boys back during the final three innings without a hit or a run.

Orf, of the Optimists in the South Side Employed Boys' League, pitched a no-hit seven-inning game against the Brownies. Orf's team won, 27 to 0. Another lop-sided game was played in this league when the Tormentors, behind the two-hit pitching of Krieg, blanked the Agogas, 24-0.

Forrest Fenton, pitcher for the Immanuel team in the Junior Sunday School League, suffered an injured ankle when sliding into third base during his team's game with Memorial M. E. Fenton was taken to a hospital where an examination disclosed a broken bone in the left ankle.

PART THREE ST. LOUIS, SUNDAY MORNING, JUNE 1, 1930. PAGES 1—4C

STOCK PRICE TENDENCY IS UPWARD IN SHORT WEEK

List Shows Marked Firmness in Prominent Places at Last Trading Session of Period—Professionals Shift Positions.

MONEY MARKET REMAINS EASY

Little or Nothing of Importance or Interest to the Financial Markets Develops in the Four-Day Period—Decline in Silver Price.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 31.—The current week contributed little or nothing of importance or interest to the financial markets. Security traders called it a week after the close of business on Thursday, leaving a stock list that was showing marked firmness in prominent places and a general tendency to move upward. The bond market was so apathetic that Tuesday's sales established a new low for the year. Commodities affected by speculation were irregular.

Money remained easy. The holiday and month-end settlement period brought some loan calling, but withdrawals were not sufficient to affect the New York Stock Exchange rate of 3 per cent.

Time funds, which have been drifting slowly downward for months, touched the lowest levels of the past decade. The weekly statement of Federal Reserve member banks in leading cities revealed a contraction of $76,000,000 in commercial borrowings, and also a fair gain in security holdings. There was a rather promising expansion in Federal Reserve credit.

Professionals Shift Position.

Stock market professionals shifted position frequently, with a preponderance of sentiment seeming to favor higher prices. Severe bear pressure against the farm implement shares early in the week and against the rails in each session was offset by increasing strength in utilities, the firmness of leading industrials and a bullish demonstration in a few specialty groups, notably the foods.

Railroad earnings for April were poor, as had been expected, but the decline in the class one carriers, either gross or net, was not as large, compared with a year ago, as was the March decrease.

Oil stocks improved under the favorable news of a smaller output of crude petroleum and the satisfactory progress made toward curtailment in the California field. It was generally believed that an advance in prices would soon be announced by companies operating in that territory, while the approach of the summer demand was also taken into account by the oil share group.

Demand for Steel Pipe.

The weekly reviews of the iron and steel trade reported virtually no change in conditions, noting another small decline in operations and further price concessions. The growth of the natural gas industry, which seems to be the feature of the news in the utilities, is being accompanied by an expansion in demands for steel pipe and this factor caused considerable optimistic comment. Inquiry for steel from the automobile industry is expected to be maintained at close to present levels into next month.

The bond market continues to disappoint its supporters. Although the spread between money rates and the yield from the best lines is about 2 per cent in favor of the latter, the list cannot shake off its dullness. The bank statement indicated improved buying from that important source, but the individual investor refuses to be attracted. Bond men hope for improvement after the German reparations issue is out of the way.

Clearings Are Smaller.

Bank clearings for the country as a whole showed a decline of about 10 per cent over the previous week, with a much larger decrease in New York City.

The Department of Agriculture's index of leading produce staples was at the lowest level for May in nine years.

Weakness of the Far Eastern exchanges was based on the slump in bar silver, which touched several successive new lows.

The $7,000,000 increase in brokers loans was accounted for by the rise in New York City member bank borrowings for their own account. Loans for out of town banks and for the account of others showed a rather sharp decrease.

FINANCIAL NOTES

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 31.—Slight increases in industrial activity and employment were noted in this district during April, the New York Federal Reserve Bank states in its monthly survey of finance and industry. Credit rates sagged substantially, the review points out, due largely to a reduction in the volume of currency outstanding, and large gold imports, mainly from Japan. Commercial paper outstanding throughout the country gained about $24,000,000 from the previous month, reaching a total of $553,000,000.

McGraw Hill construction daily reports that past week's total value of proposed heavy construction was raised to $103,945,000 by a $38,800,000 waterworks project voted by Los Angeles. This makes the largest week in May and compares with $59,959,000 in the preceding week and $65,250,000 in the like week of last year.

A special meeting of stockholders of Standard Utilities, Inc., has been called for June 9 to act on a proposal to split up the common stock on the basis of three new shares for one old share.

Engineering News Record reports that heavy construction and engineering contracts let throughout the country this week totaled $80,346,000, against $52,921,000 in the same week a year ago and $87,694,000 last week.

The annual election of the New York Cotton Exchange will be held on Monday. Philip B. Weld of Post & Flagg is named to succeed Gardiner H. Miller, who is completing his second term as president.

Raw silk futures reached new low records for all time on the National Raw Silk Exchange this week. The movement was in sympathy with continued bearish advices from primary markets in Japan.

Copper, Lead and Zinc.

NEW YORK, May 31.—The copper market remained quiet with moderate foreign demand reported and domestic consumers holding off. Export sales for the month were estimated at 115,000 tons. Trade ideas were that refined stocks at the end of the month would show a decrease of about 25,000 tons. Rather quiet conditions were said to be looked for as consumers were well supplied with metal for forward needs. Electrolytic continued to be quoted at 13c delivered in the Connecticut Valley.

Tin turned easy with the reaction on expectations of an increase in the world's visible supply of between 3000 and 4000 tons. There was a downward trend at London.

As a general rule, the situation in the lead market was unchanged with prices steady and the demand fair.

Zinc was steady with the tendency apparently to ignore the price reduction in ore. Demand, however, was quiet.

Antimony was slightly easier on the spot, but the buying interest was decidedly small covering all positions.

COMPARATIVELY QUIET TRADING IN COTTON

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 31.—The cotton market here has been comparatively quiet since the final evening up of May contracts. Evidently the liquidation of May eased the tension in old crop positions, for the time being at least, and traders did not appear to have found sufficient incentive in the new crop news to promote an aggressive position on the market in advance of the three-day adjournment.

Crop device have been rather less encouraging owing to the recent excessive rains in Western and Central sections of the belts. Reports reaching the trade here during the week indicated that some replanting was necessary and these rains combined with low temperatures, led to a belief that May has been rather an unfavorable month on the average. According to one view, the season which was slightly further advanced than normal at the beginning of the month is now from four to five days late. Less than usual has been heard regarding the boll weevil. It seems the general impression that initial infestation of these insects is light, but that the question of damage depends upon conditions later in the season. Reports as to acreage have shown little change but on the whole have rather favored the smaller estimate of reduction. Three private acreage reports have been issued. One of them estimating the reduction at 2 per cent, another at 3 per cent, while the third made it 3.3 per cent. The latter report included figures on the condition of the crop as of May 24, making it 69.7.

There was some nervousness over prospects for renewed showers toward the end of the week, and another spell of wet weather in Texas and central belt sections so soon after the recent heavy rains would be considered very unfavorable. June, however, has the reputation of being a generally favorable month for crop development and with good June weather it is felt that any delays experienced during May would be overcome. Unfavorable features in the crop news have been offset to some extent. Some traders here feel that the market has discounted the prospect for an increase in the world's carry-over.

Closing prices Thursday, the last trading day, were: July 16.16@19c; Oct. 15.19@20c; Dec. 15.24c; Jan. 15.23c. New contracts—Oct. 14.90@91c; Dec. 14.98@99c; Jan. 14.97c; March 15.11@12c. Spot, middling 16.30c.

HOG PRICES RISE IN SHORT WEEK'S TRADE

Improved Trend to Eastern Dressed Pork Is a Factor in Market.

NATIONAL STOCKYARDS, Ill., May 31.—(The United States Department of Agriculture livestock review, is for the four-day week, there being no trading Friday or Saturday and comparisons are with similar periods.)

Lighter receipts, with correspondingly better demand, placed steers, mixed yearlings and heifers on a higher level than last week. Compared with one week ago, steers, mixed yearlings and heifers sold 25c higher, spots up more; cows 25c higher; cutters strong; low cutters steady; bulls 25c lower; vealers $1 lower; stocker and feeder steers 25c lower; feeding cows and heifers steady. Tops for week: 1403-lb. steers, $13; 623-lb. mixed yearlings, $12.35; 804 and 942 lb. steer yearlings, $12; 655-lb. heifers, $11.75; cows, $9.50; sausage bulls, $7.75; vealers, $11.75; stocker steers, $10. Heavy steers were confined to three loads at $12.25, $12.35 and $13, averaging 1401 to 1424 lbs., and several loads, scaling 1300 to 1375 lbs., at $11.65 to $12.50; bulk, $11.75. Steers averaging 1200 to 1257 lbs. scored $10 to $11.75, while that group scaling 1100 to 1179 lbs. ranged from $9.75 to $12.60, bulk $9.75 to $11.65. Lightweight steers ranged from $8.50 to $12, the majority $9.25 to $11.35, while bulk of all steers scored $9.25 to $11.75. Fat steers went largely at $11 to $11.75; most fat mixed yearlings, $10 to $11; medium kinds mostly $9 to $10; cows, $7.25 to $8.25; low cutters, $4.25 to $5.35. Top sausage bulls earned $7.50 Thursday, with vealers scoring $11. Bulk and top prices the corresponding week last year were as follows: Steers, $12.50 to $14.20; top, $14.60; fat mixed yearlings and heifers, $13 to $14; top, $14.35; medium fleshed heifers, $12 to $12.75; cows, $8.75 to $10.50; top, $11.50; low cutters, $6 to $6.75; top sausage bulls, $9.75; top vealers, $14; bulk stocker and feeder steers, $9.55 to $12; top, $12.50.

Hog Receipts Larger.

Increased receipts of swine not only at this point but also in the aggregate at other principal centers this week were more than balanced by a decidedly improved trend in Eastern dressed pork trade. Shipments increased and after Tuesday live prices advanced. For the Thursday-to-Thursday period butcher and bacon hogs advanced 25c, pigs 25 to 40c and sows 10 to 15c. Top price on Thursday rose to $10.45 for the first time in more than a month. Bulk of 150 to 260 pound weights cashed on that day at $10.30 to $10.40, with less desirable kinds and a few 270-pound descriptions at $10.25. Odd lots of 270 to 310 pound butchers claimed the $10.05 to $10.20 terms. Most 120 to 140 pound weights cashed at $10 to $10.25, with 100-pound descriptions around $9.75. Packing sows bulked at $9.15 to $9.25.

Lamb Prices Advance.

Local marketings of sheep and lambs showed a 25 per cent increase over the runs of last week but this bearish factor proved to be of little importance. Total marketings at principal livestock centers declined and dressed lamb in Eastern wholesale centers scored substantial upturns. The result was continually rising prices. Spring lambs netted a gain of $1.25 to $1.50, while clipped lambs advanced 50 to 75c, the latter hitting the highest point since late in February. While a few prime spring lambs earned $13.50, practical top for the week was $13 with bulk of springers on Thursday at $12.50 to $13, culls around $9. Clipped lambs sold from $9.50 to $10.25, latter price taking two loads on Thursday. Sheep held steady, clipped ewes moving mostly at $4.50 to $5.

WHEAT PRICE HIGHER ON LOCAL EXCHANGE

Canadian Crop Comment Is a Factor in Price Movement on Local Board.

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, May 31.—The wheat market closed higher in the short session after the holiday following bullish Canadian weather news. A Chicago dispatch told of a private estimate putting winter wheat crop at 549,000,000 bushels compared with 525,000,000 sugested in Government May 1 report.

In the cash grain market soft wheat was down 1c. Premiums averaged about 2c lower. A two-day supply was on sale and the demand was only fair. There were a few orders from shippers who took selections of No. 1 and No. 2. Elevators here were fair purchasers. Sales of No. 1 were on a basis 7½c above the Chicago July figure, No. 2 at 5½c to 6½c above and No. 3 at 1½c to 3½c above. Hard wheat was up ½c to down ½c, with the downturn being registered on yellow wheat for which the demand was limited. Offerings were light. There was a quiet local demand and clearance was fair. Sales of No. 2 winter and No. 2 yellow were on a basis of 2c below the Chicago July figure. No. 3 winter 3½c below and No. 3 yellow 3c to 3½c below. Corn was steady to ½c lower. The basis as compared to futures was ½c to 1c lower. The demand was good. Bulk of the offerings went to elevators and industries. Oats were steady to 1c lower. Market was moderately active. There was a fair demand from local elevators, but shipping outlet was narrow.

Both July and September wheat ranged up a cent early. There was comment of dust storm crop injury in one Canadian province. Winnipeg was up fractionally early, but rose more than 1½c yesterday when American markets were closed. Liverpool closed ⅝d to ⅛d higher than Thursday. India's 1930 wheat crop was estimated officially at 71,000,000 bushels over last year. Corn was little higher early.

July wheat opened at $1.07; September wheat, $1.09½; July corn, 81c and September corn, 82¼c.

Local wheat receipts (2 days), which were 294,000 bushels, compared with 134,400 a week ago and 212,800 year ago, included 192 cars local and 18 through. Corn receipts (2 days), which were 142,800 bushels, compared with 145,600 a week ago and 264,600 a year ago, included 84 cars local and 18 through. WHEAT CLOSES IRREGULAR, 7-8C LOWER TO 1 1-4C HIGHER

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, May 31.—Dust storm reported as having swept into the Canadian prairie wheat country gave a general upward swing today to the wheat market here. Chicago May delivery of wheat, however, failed to hold gains, and finished at a decline because of lack of buying except from Federal Farm Board allies.

Closing quotations on wheat were irregular, ranging from ⅞c setback to 1¼c advance compared with Thursday's finish. Corn closed at a shade to 2½c gain, oats varying 4¼c off to ½c up, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 7c.

At first, the wheat pit here was dominated by advices indicating crop damage from Canadian dust storms, especially in Saskatchewan and Alberta provinces. Report at hand said that some of the crop otherwise uninjured in the path of the storm had been set back a week or 10 days as to growth. Influenced by such advices, the trade virtually ignored for at least the time being an official estimate that the 1930 wheat crop of India is 71,000,000 larger than last year's total.

Reactions from today's top prices for wheat were witnessed mostly in the late dealings and were associated with a monthly crop summary from a leading Chicago unofficial expert. He estimated the condition of domestic winter wheat at 74.4 per cent, indicating a crop of 549,000,000 bushels, against 525,000,000 bushels suggested by the Government's May 1 report. A decline of only 2.5 per cent in condition was given as the principal reason for today's increased unofficial forecast. It was explained that the average wheat condition decline in May for the last 10 years has been 6.6 per cent.

Although trade in May wheat and corn evened up well for the month without any spectacular change, May oats suffered a big drop at the close, and touched the lowest price yet this season. Oats, unlike wheat, had no Government sponsored support. A little belated buying for previous speculative sellers of May corn hoisted the final quotations for that month. Otherwise, corn market firmness was due to wheat strength and to cool weather.

U. S. PROMOTER'S FIGHT TOURNEY IN LONDON IS DISTINCT 'FLOP'

By Tom S. Andrews,
Author of "Ring Battles of a Century," Etc.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., May 31.—During 1929 Jeff Dickson, a former American boxing promoter, entered the promotional field in London after much battling back and forth with the British Boxing Coard of Control. The courts were resorted to and finally Jeff was given a permit to run shows at the old Albert Hall. Previously to this Dickson had promoted fight clubs in Paris and other French cities.

The first show promoted in London by the American was a big success, but since then the going has been much harder. Dickson was set on a Stribling-Scott match for the championship, but this fell through and in its place he ran an all-heavyweight tourney.

Writing of the affair from London, Col. Edward Dyer says:

All-Heavy Show a Flop.

"Jeff Dickson's all-heavyweight show was a fearful flop from every point of view. Very few of the cheap seats were taken, and by the look of those in them I guess the bulk of the more expensive chairs were 'dead-heads.'

"Of the boxing, the less said the better. Young Stribling was his only star and it was a shame to put him on with such a terrible dub as Hans Schoenrath. The latter was billed as having an unbeaten record in Germany, but he proved a rank novice and could have been finished off in a couple of punches. Even Stribling had to begin punching hard in the second round, and when he began it was all over.

"The rest of the card was made up of big fellows variously stated as coming from Germany, Austria, France, Spain and even Russia. Their only recommendation was size. You can tell how good the class was when the final pair were Bob Carvill and Bobby Shields, two English fighters. If Dickson cannot put up better cards than this he would be well advised to retire from London promotions.

"His projected open-air show, at which he proposed staging Phil Scott and Young Stribling, did not come off.

Scott Still Claiming a Foul.

"Scott is still claiming that he was fouled by Jack Sharkey at Miami and should have been awarded the decision. Some of the American sporting writers and others have written over here to the same effect; that Scott really was fouled and should have been declared the winner. However, there are few British sportsmen who think Phil can whip Sharkey.

"Scott has cabled a challenge to the winner of the Sharkey-Schmeling match and from word received here it is believed that he will be given consideration by the New York Garden people and the boxing commission.

"Phil is laid up at the present time, but will soon be ready and will probably take another trip to the U. S. A."

First New Wheat, $1.20.

By the Associated Press.

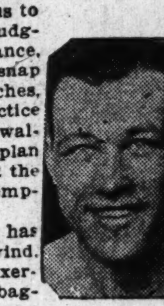
FORT WORTH, Tex., May 31.—The first carload of wheat of the 1930 crop was marketed here today at $1.20 per bushel. It tested 59.6 pounds to the bushel and broke local records for early marketing. The wheat was grown on the farm of Jake Smith, near McGregor, McLennan County, Texas.

"Schmeling Will Have No Advantage Over Me In Age," Sharkey Says

THIS is one of a series of articles by Jack Sharkey, who will meet Max Schmeling, June 12, for the world heavyweight boxing championship, in which the American fighter will tell in detail of his training for the title bout, and then describe the battle, for the Post-Dispatch.

By Jack Sharkey,
American Heavyweight Champion.
As Told to a Representative of the Post-Dispatch.

ORANGEBURG, N. Y., May 31.—Boxing will receive most of my attention from now until training ends for my 15-round bout with Max Schmeling at the Yankee Stadium on June 12.



SHARKEY

I am anxious to sharpen my judgment of distance, increase the snap of my punches, and to practice some of the wallops which I plan to use against the German Dempsey.

Road work has built up my wind, while gym exercises and bag-punching have tuned up my muscles. I shall continue that condition-building routine, but most attention will be devoted to boxing drills.

I have conditioned myself—to be sure of whipping Schmeling—very carefully. The fact I have kept in action in the ring has made the training period much easier than it would have been if I had been inactive. I fought Tommy Loughran in New York last September, while I battled Phil Scott at Miami, Fla., in February. I trained six weeks for each match and so have had plenty of strenuous work.

"Still Growing."

Between bouts I have lived in the open air, hunting and fishing, and in the mountains of New Hampshire. This kind of a life is healthful and tends to put and keep a man in good condition.

In some of the stories about my coming match with the German Dempsey, it has been said that Max will have youth on his side. He admits he is close to 25. I am only 27, and so am still fairly young.

I have been before the public ever since I defeated Harry Wills, three years ago last October, which is probably why some people believe I am older than I really am.

They don't stop to consider that I won from Wills three years from the time I quit the amateurs and started boxing as a pro.

Clark Griffith, owner of the Washington baseball club, told me in Florida a year ago last winter that I would continue developing until I was 30. Few heavyweights reach the height of their development until they are 28 years of age.

I am still growing. It is necessary for me to buy a flock of new suits after each bout. The training develops my chest and shoulders. My legs and waist line remain the same.

Expects to Weigh 197.

Tex Rickard once told me I would eventually become a 200-pounder. At the time I did not believe him, but I notice that I am putting on a pound or two of solid fighting weight with each bout.

I weighed 188 pounds when I defeated Wills, while my weight for the Loughran match was 196 pounds. I may scale 197 pounds against Schmeling.

The extra shoulder and chest development have given me greater punching power. I now feel confident I can knock out any heavyweight in the world.

It will be a well-conditioned, fighting Sharkey who will represent America in the coming international ring duel. Unless Maxie proves a miracle man, he's due for a worse shellacking than he gave the slow Paulino at the same Milk Fund show just about a year ago.

Springfield Is Again Defeated By Concordia

The Concordia Seminary baseball team made a clean sweep of its series with the Concordia Seminary nine of Springfield, Ill., taking the third game played between the two schools this season. The Preachers playing behind the steady pitching of their hurler, Ed Lang, defeated the visitors, 10 to 0, in the game played yesterday afternoon at the Concordia Field.

It was the final game of the season for the locals and the last game for the four regulars, Capt. Frerking, Gesswein, Spitzenfiel and Dobblestein. Lang turned in a well-pitched game, holding the opposing batsmen to four scattered singles, striking out 13 men and walking only two men. Spitzenfiel led the Concordia hitters with three hits out of five trips to the plate. Reuter, his teammate, hit a home run in the third inning.

Concordia scored two runs in the second inning on hits on errors by Frerking and Kretzchmar and a two-base hit by Spitzenfiel. Reuter added another run with a home run in the third.

Both teams went out in order until the sixth inning, when Springfield threatened by filling the bases. The visitors failed to score, however.

Concordia scored a final pair of runs in their half of the seventh, and three runs more in the eight inning, in which Hartman drove over two runs with a long three-base hit to left center.

Gallant Knight Near Fairmount Record in Trial

Gallant Knight, the Audley Farm's winner of the Fairmount Derby, gave an impressive demonstration of his speed in a mile and one-eighth workout between the third and fourth races at Fairmount yesterday. He was clocked by the timer for the full distance in 1 minute 51 2-5 seconds. That is just one-fifth of a second slower than the track record, made under the spur of actual competition, by Anaconda.

Gallant Knight was ridden by Jockey Herman Schutte. The workout was designed to prepare him for his test in the Ohio Derby at Thistle Down track next Saturday. Trainer Kay Spence will ship Gallant Knight Monday. The horse was cheered by the crowd as he pulled up, apparently still fresh.

SANDE MAY RIDE FOR LORD DERBY REPORT IN EAST

NEW YORK, May 31.—Ea Sande may soon be lost to Americ as a rider. There is a belief amon turfmen that the premier jocke may, at no distant date, follow th footsteps of other famous jockey across the Atlantic, where increasing weight is less of a handica than on the tracks of this country.

The report is current at Belmon Park that after fulfilling his engagements in this country as rider on Gallant Fox, Sande may ride fo Lord Derby in England. It is know that Lord Derby is much impressed with American riders, an with Sande in particular. The suggestion of such an arrangemen was first made at Churchill Dow at the recent Derby, where the English sportsman and the rider o the Derby winner came into contact a great deal.

Lord Derby was a close observe of the racing at Belmont Park, an especially of the riding of the various jockeys, and has on more tha one occasion expressed his opinio of Sande in complimentary term

Sande refused a contract in thi country but agreed on a commission basis to ride Gallant Fox. B winning both the Preakness and th Kentucky Derby, following th Wood Memorial victory of tha horse, he has sent the earnings o the Belair horse soaring into bi figures, more than $100,000, o the last two races.

Sande would not confirm the report that he contemplated crossing the Atlantic, but admitted tha the arrangements had been talked of.

Elisabeth Dyer and T. C. M'Call Wed in Candle Light Service

Reception at Hotel Follows Ceremony Performed by the Rev. J. W. MacIvor at Second Presbyterian Church—Out-of-Town Guests.

LACY frocks worn by the bride and her attendants and a profusion of white spring blossoms characterized the wedding last night of Miss Elisabeth Dyer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Thomas Dyer of the St. Regis apartments, and Theodore Carroll McCall. The ceremony was performed by candle light at the Second Presbyterian Church before an altar adorned with white candy tuft, peonies and larkspur combined with Easter lilies against a background of feathery asparagus fern. In addition to the lighted tapers in the chancel there was a candle-lit aisle through which the bridal party passed. The Rev. Dr. John W. MacIvor read the service. The bride was given in marriage by her father.

The bride was preceded by her sister, Miss Willis Dyer, as maid of honor, and by another sister, Miss Martha Dyer; Miss Jane Masters, niece of the bridegroom; Miss Márie Louise Hammett, and Mrs. David Teasdale. The bridesmaids' gowns were of aquamarine green lace combined with matching tulle, with long fitted lace bodices to the hips, where the full tulle skirts, reaching to the floor, were attached. The sleeveless bodices were cut to deep decollette with lace capes at the back reaching to the waistline. The bridesmaids wore satin slippers to match their gowns and carried Joanna Hill roses. Miss Willis Dyer wore a gown of peach tinted lace and tulle made like the others, and carried Talisman roses.

The bride wore ivory satin with a long filmy tulle skirt attached in pointed godets below the hips. The low U-shaped neckline was filled in with tulle bound in satin to give a soft effect. Instead of sleeves she wore long ivory kid gloves. A train of ivory tulle fell from the waist and over it cascaded an ivory lace veil depending from a lace cap finished with a band and side clusters of orange blossoms. She carried lilies of the valley in a shower bouquet.

The bride's gifts to her attendants were pearl embroidered evening bags, and Mr. McCall presented to his groomsmen gold tie clips with silhouetted monograms. His gift to his bride was a diamond and platinum bracelet.

James McCall of Chattanooga, Tenn., was his cousin's best man, and the groomsmen were Julius Pierce, Woodson Vogelgesang, Colin Selph of Detroit, Mich., formerly of St. Louis; Eugene Carroll, Chicago; Owen McCall, brother of the bridegroom, and Thomas Cowley of New York.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the Tower Room of the Congress Hotel. The wedding party received their guests in the foyer of the room before an arrangement of palms, yellow roses and yellow gladioli. In the ballroom dozens of orange trees laden with fruit concealed the windows and mirrors, producing an out-of-doors effect. A large buffet table at one end was decorated with marigolds, delphinium and gladioli in tones of yellow and the wedding cake formed the center piece. The bridal table seating 20 was laid on the terrace roof, and was decorated in the shaded of orchid, combining various spring flowers. Place cards and nut cups were covered with lavendar chiffon and adorned with lilies of the valley. The seated guests in addition to the bridal party were Mrs. Owen McCall, David Teasdale, Howard McCall of New York; Thomas Pierce, George Diamondon of Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. McCall will motor West on their wedding trip, visiting California, Banff and Lake Louise in the Canadian Rockies, and will return the last of August to make their home in Gibson City, Ill.

The bride is a graduate of Mary Institute and attended Smith College and a finishing school in Washington. She made her debut several seasons ago and is popular socially. Mr. McCall is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Warner S. McCall, 5145 Lindell boulevard.

Other out-of-town guests were an aunt of the bride, Mrs. W. F. Feland of Owensboro, Ky. and Mrs. Gaither Jones, of Baton Rouge, La., and Mrs. Hal Gerstle of Chattanooga, Tenn, who are visiting Mrs. McCall Sr.

A meeting of the stockholders of the St. Louis Woman's Club will be held Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Oscar Johnson, 38 Portland place. Following the meeting Mrs. Johnson will entertain the board of directors at luncheon.

THUMB-SUCKING

A very practical device for the prevention of this terrible habit has recently been invented by Dr. W. C. Darby, a Des Moines, Iowa, dentist.

It consists of a small aluminum attachment held on the thumb by means of adhesive tape, which allows the child the use of the thumb, yet prevents them from obtaining a "seal" with the lips.

It has already proven practical in hundreds of cases.

GIFT FROM MEXICO TO MISSOURI CHILDREN

Good Will Offering to Be Formally Accepted at Y. M. C. A. June 14.

A cabinet filled with Mexican juvenile treasures, a good-will gift from the children of Mexico to the children of Missouri, is on exhibition in the Central Public Library art room, and will be received formally at a children's ceremony to be held at 11 a. m. Flag day, June 14, in the Y. W. C. A. gymnasium, Fourteenth and Locust streets.

At the same time, treasure chests, which are being sent from the children of this and other states to the children of the Philippine Islands, will be started on their way. Bishop William Scarlett will be the speaker of the occasion.

In 1929, the American Committee on International Friendship Among Children sent school bags to the school children of Mexico. In acknowledgement, the children of primary schools throughout the Mexican Republic, by copper contributions, had 49 museum chests, or cabinets, built and stocked. One of these has been sent to each state, and one to the District of Columbia.

Contributions to the chests are general, coming from Federal, state and private schools in the states of Mexico, and from schools on the islands of Cozumel and Islas Mujeres in the Gulf of Mexico.

The cabinets, in their drawers and open compartments, contain various toys and works of juvenile skill. Tiny pieces of pottery, drawn work, pictures woven in straw and artificial flowers fashioned from shells are among the treasures. One of the most amusing of the doll figures is that of a bull, for which a toreador is duly provided. Both are puppet figures, with wobbly legs, and are operated by strings like marionettes. A Spanish don is another gaily dressed figure, and there are several effigies of men and women of the peon class, of various materials and sizes. Doll clothing and a great red trunk for a doll, besides serapes and sombreros for the tiny figures, are shown.

Local representatives of Mexico, the Philippines and Japan have been invited to attend the good-will ceremony. There will be a procession of children of various organizations, junior and senior girl reserves, Girl Scouts, public and private school children. Local Filipinos have been asked to furnish music.

ACTIVITIES OF BOY SCOUTS

IRONDALE CABIN CAMP OPEN NEXT THURSDAY

Others Will Be Put in Service Later—Several Innovations Introduced.

Camp Irondale, summer mecca of the Boy Scouts of St. Louis, will be thrown open to scout campers next Thursday. Only one of the Irondale camps, however, will be opened—the Cabin, or main camp. The other groups, such as the Ranger Camp, Tree House Section, and Jamboree Tent Camp will not be opened until later in the season.

While the camps in general will be conducted this year along the same lines as in the past, several new features have been added. For one thing, each section, or camping period of two weeks, will be named and the program will be built around the idea expressed by that name. For example, the second section, from June 18 to July 1, will be known as the "Pioneer" section and the projects will be centered around scout pioneering and customs of the early pioneers.

The other sections will be "Fun Section," July 1 to July 14, featuring a Fourth of July celebration; "Indian" period, July 15 to July 28, with Indian wars, pow-wows, and handicraft, including a inter-cabin totem pole contest; "Adventure" period, July 28 to August 11, with a treasure hunt in the Ozarks; and a "Mystery" period, August 12 to August 31, of which the only event that has been announced is the annual 24-hour sham battle.

A 22-acre tract of woodland has been added to the reservation, as a site for night games, and for nature study and tracking, while a 400 foot well has been drilled to furnish the water supply.

Breakfast will be served on the cafeteria plan, to allow the scouts to choose fruits and cereals.

Merle D. Shippey, camping director of the local scout council, will be in general charge of all Irondale camps, while Field Executives L. L. Hotchkiss and M. N. Leavitt will be in direct charge of the Cabin and Ranger Camps, respectively. J. L. Case, a new addition to the council staff, will act as assistant director of the cabin camp. Leavitt will be assisted by Junior Assistant Scoutmaster Bob Miller as riding master and Barney Mayer as Assistant Riding master.

Troop Notes

North District.

Instruction in first aid was given by Scoutmaster Hunt to Troop 205, of the Bates School, at the regular meeting last week. Each of the patrols gave a stunt in an interpatrol contest and several scout games were played. A new scout, Thomas J. West Jr., joined the troop recently.

Troop 131 of Jennings was formally presented with the keeping of the new North District flag, as an award for winning the district camparall, at the North District Court of Honor held at the Yeatman High School last Monday evening. The presentation of the flag was made by H. C. Finck, a member of the court.

The court, the last district court that will be held until next winter, was presided over by Alfred W. Pauley, chairman of the district, who also directed the presentation of awards to scouts who appeared before the court. Charles H. Mills, activities director of the council, spoke on "Playing the Game of Life." The scouts of Ferguson troop 2 led a closing ceremony, while the Rev. William Louis Meyer pronounced the benediction.

The Wolf patrol won a contest in knot-tying at a recent meeting of Troop 3 of the Grace Holy Cross Church. Scoutmaster Simons and Troop Committeeman Herzog spoke. The troop is making plans for summer activities.

South District.

Troop 234 of the Church of the Messiah, has obtained use of a 40-acre tract of timberland five miles south of De Soto, Mo., to be used as a campsite. The tract contains four large springs, the water from which the scouts are planning to use for a swimming pol. One of the attractions of the site is a two-story log cabin which was built 95 years ago. The scouts plan to use this cabin for sleeping quarters, while two smaller buildings will be turned into a mess hall and a kitchen. A large barn will serve as a place for games and other activities during bad weather.

The first annual entertainment of Troop 108 of St. Pius' Church was given recently. The entire troop participated in a playlet entitled "A Strenuous Day in Camp," while the Young Ladies' Sodality of the church gave a sketch from "Penrod and Sam." Roving tour motion pictures were also shown and several scout officials spoke.

The May South District Court of Honor, to present merit badges, first class badges, second class badges and Star Scout badges, was conducted at the Missouri School for the Blind Tuesday evening. This was the last court the district will hold until winter, as Troop Courts of Honor are expected to present awards to scout candidates in most troops.

Troop 32 totaled 1338 points in the Camparall at Forest Park last week-end. The troop, which was organized last February, now has a membership of 32, nearly all of whom attend St. Margaret's Parochial School. The troop attended the Court of Honor in a body last Tuesday evening, to witness the awarding of first and second class and merit badges. An unusual feature was the fact that two fathers and sons of the troop received merrit badges: Scoutmaster Elmer Kleykamp Sr. and his son, Elmer Jr., and Assistant Scoutmaster Robert L. Spelbrink and his son, Robert. Twenty scouts of the troop are planning to visit Camp Irondale during the section starting July 14.

West District.

The last court of honor that will be held in the west district until next winter was conducted at the Ben Blewett Junior High School Wednesday evening. First and second class badges, merit badges and Star Scout badges were presented to scouts who had earned them since the last court.

For the second year in succession a patrol from Troop 30 of the Y. M. H. A. won the West District camparall, held at Forest Park last week-end. As reward the patrol, consisting of Melvin Hertzman, Elliot Gillerman, Edward Hopper, Francis Klein, Stanley Lopata, Robert Carp, Arnold Singer and George Gillerman, will receive a two weeks' stay at Irondale Camp this summer in addition to retaining possession of the West District flag for another year. A second patrol entered by this troop finished eighth.

Since the first Camparall three years ago, Troop 30 has made a remarkable record. Entering two patrols each year, the troop finished second the first year, first and fourth last year, and first and eighth this year.

One of the two patrols entered by Troop 60, of the Union Avenue Christian Church, finished fourth in the Camparall at Forest Park last week-end.

Troop 113, of the Church of the Messiah, gave a dinner in honor of Eagle Scout Junior Assistant Scoutmaster Robert Miller last week. The mothers of the scouts served the dinner. Julius Seidel, who assisted the troop at the Merit Badge Show and at the Scout Circus, was the speaker. Troop Committeemen Chamberlain, Petring, and Foote also spoke.

CAMPARALL AWARDS TO 24 SCOUT TROOPS

Winning Ribbons to Be Given to Additional Patrol in Each District.

Six troops in each of the four districts of the St. Louis Boy Scout Council will be awarded ribbons for winning in the annual Boy Scout Camparall held at Forest Park last week, instead of only five, as originally intended, according to an announcement from local scout headquarters. The ribbons for the sixth place troops will be awarded as soon as they are prepared.

The final standing of troops in each district of the Camparall follows: West District, Troop 30, first; Troop 2, second; Troop 8, third; Troop 60, fourth; Troop 98, fifth, and Troop 26, sixth. North District, Troop 151, Troop 88, Troop 65, Troop 122, Troop 122 (second patrol), Troop Ferguson 2, South District, Troop 198, Troop 63, Troop 168, Troop 192, Troop 27, Troop 178. Suburban District, Troop Webster Groves 3, Webster Groves 4, Webster Groves 14, Webster Groves 8, Webster Groves 2 and Kirkwood 2.

The members of the first-place patrol in each district are: Troop 30, Melvin Hertzman, Elliot Gillerman, Edward Hopper, Francis Klein, Stanley Lopata, Robert Carp, Arnold Singer and George Gillerman. Troop 151, Walter Emmeth, Roland Brandley, Jack Dwyer, Ralph Mueller, Peter Hort, Roy Bergfeld, George Whitworth, Aubrey Staples, Charles Moody and Theren Bremer. Troop 198, Elliott Reed, Ernest Brach, James Harrison, Rudolph Schlatter, Russell Ingham, Edwin Edmonson, Robert Ewers, Jordan Manker, Warren Metzinger and Northcutt Coil, Webster Groves 3, Carl Bayes, Arthur Berry, Calvin Young, Robert Crane, Colvon Seville, Charles Curd, Edwin Baumstark and Walter Boettiger.

Each of the first-place patrols will be given a two weeks' camp at Irondale as an award for winning the meet.

SCENIC CHARMS OF MISSOURI TO BE FEATURE OF EXHIBIT

"The Scenic Charm of Missouri and the Ozark Region" will be the theme of the St. Louis Art League's third exhibition, at the old courthouse, devoted to depicting the neighboring landscape. The exhibition is scheduled to open the third week in August.

The exhibition will include oils and water colors, etchings, woodblocks and linoleum cuts. All artists of Missouri and the Ozark region and all members of the Art League are eligible to enter the competition.

Prizes and other awards are being arranged. At the last exhibition the prizes amounted to $1200.

Undergraduate law degrees will be conferred on 10 graduates, masters' degrees on 11, and collegiate certificates will be awarded to 22. Frank B. Coleman of the college faculty will present the degrees.

SALES MANAGERS' BUREAU TO ELECT NINE TO BOARD

Report Made on Year's Activities for Division of Chamber of Commerce.

Nine members of the Sales Managers' Bureau of the Chamber of Commerce will be elected to the executive board at the annual meeting of the organization at Hotel Statler Friday. They will meet later to chose officers.

During the last year the average attendance at weekly luncheon meetings of the bureau, at which speakers were authorities on sales management, increased from 163 to 197. Two trade extension trips, to Southern Illinois and Central Missouri, were sponsored and a one-day sales conference, which attracted 640 business executives from surrounding states was held.

Candidates for the executive board are Theodore Blaslew, D. L. Boyer, E. G. Brinkman, Louis Freund, David Hearsh, Henry P. Kallman, G. T. Lehmberg, O. D. Norwine, R. L. Priesmeyer, [illegible] Reinhardt, T. M. Scott and [illegible] Stevens. Hiram Martin is the retiring president.

Radio Trade Show Opens Tomorrow in Atlantic City

Two St. Louis Companies to Exhibit — Tone Control and Remote Tuning to Be Seen in Many Receivers—Nothing Radically New Expected to Be Shown.

While attendance from the Mid-West and Far West is likely to be much smaller than when the exposition was held in Chicago, the radio trade show, which is to open tomorrow in Atlantic City, N. J., is expected to attract so many more Eastern jobbers and dealers, that a record well above 30,000 is expected to be set.

A number of St. Louisans, including officers of the St. Louis Radio Trades Association, will go to the show. Two St. Louis firms—the Trav-Ler Manufacturing Co. and Sampson Industries, Inc., will have exhibits at the show. Virtually all the radio manufacturers, including some who have not been represented at Chicago, will be exhibitors.

Improvements in details, but nothing radically new, will be seen in the receivers at the show. Tone control and remote tuning will be the feature of many receivers exhibited, advance reports indicate.

Although tone control is not new to the public it has been the practice of the industry in the past to conceal the control device within the cabinet. The disadvantage is the fact that the average operator hesitates to adjust the control, fearing that the receiver may be thrown out of adjustment. On many 1930 receivers the control has been placed on the front of the panel where it may be adjusted at will without fear of disturbing the receiver.

Through the use of this control the high and low tones may be made predominant at will. It has long been a known fact that a radio receiver may reproduce well in one home, while in another it may sound "boomy" or the high notes become shrill. This trouble does not indicate that the receiver is at fault, but rather that the acoustics of the room are to be blamed.

There may be resonance in the room at low frequencies that makes sounds of low pitch reverberate and produce the booming effect, or the same trouble may be produced at high frequencies, causing the high notes to be intensified. Through the use of the added panel control either condition may be remedied by bringing out the high notes and suppressing the low ones or vice versa.

Remote control for receivers has been classified into mechanical and electric. This method of tuning appeared on a few of the higher priced receivers last year, but indications are that at least eight makes have adopted remote tuning.

Mechanical tuning is at the receiver itself, while the electric type may control the set from any part of the home. The mechanical device operates on a series of cams and levers, with stops for setting the various station buttons. The latter method usually employs an electric circuit with a selector disk

Warner Brothers Seeking Dominant Radio Position

By MARTIN CODEL.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 30.—More far-reaching in its importance and consequences than is apparent on the surface is the emergence of Warner Brothers, motion picture producers, as a giant factor in the radio and allied industries.

Its patent and industrial foothold is being accomplished without the ostentation that usually marks the activities of showfolk, yet with such tremendous effect was this company, which pioneered the talkies only a few years ago and showed the way to the rest of the motion picture industry, appears to be in a fair way to become a dangerous rival of the long-established "electrics."

The Warners are entrenching themselves independently, not only in the talking picture field, but also in the radio and phonograph industries, in television and in the production of recorded programs, officially known as "electrical transcriptions," for home and for broadcasting purposes. Moreover, they are keeping their eyes open for a chance to enter broadcasting and the short-wave field by acquisition of stations, if not wave lengths.

An overwhelming ambition is stirring Warner Bros. to produce something new and revolutionary in the way of home entertainment equipment.

Plan Set of Many Uses.

From high official sources the writer has learned that the Warners have laid plans for a home apparatus in the low-priced range—probably under $200—which will combine a radio receiver, phonograph machine, facsimilie television reproducer and talking motion picture projector. For the latter, they propose to rent feature film to the public on a "circulating library" basis. In other words, they propose to add still picture television and home talkies to the radio-phonograph combinations now common—and at a price within range of the average buyer.

The Warners already have the units to accomplish it. The task they face is to design the set, integrating their production and creating a market. It is a tremendous problem, but certainly not bigger than the one they made for themselves—and the rest of the moving picture industry—when they introduced Al Jolson speaking from the screen and caused all movieland to come around to the talkies.

There have been many trade rumors about the next step of the Warner Bros., including persistent talk that they may combine with Paramount and thus not only widen their motion picture activities but also acquire an interest in the Columbia Broadcasting System, which is 50 per cent owned by Paramount. It is doubted, however, whether Government authorities would permit such a combine.

Strongly Entrenched in Radio.

It is probably merely conjecture at this time, but there has even been talk, substantiated only slightly by Warners' known avidity for an even stronger radio foothold, that the Warner Brothers would ultimately seek to combine their Brunswick radio plants at Muskegon, Mich., and Dubuque, Ia., with the Chicago factories of Grigsby-Gruno Co., maker of the Majestic set.

Warner Brothers acquired the radio and phonograph business of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. only a few weeks ago for a price reported to be around $10,000,000. Immediately they began their advertising campaign, with an interesting motion picture star tieup, for the Brunswick radio set, which they continue to produce and market under the old trade name.

It is not generally known that the Warners have purchased the Fultograph, a new system for transmitting photographs by radio or telephone, the invention of a Britisher, Capt. Otto Fulton, who has demonstrated his set several times in New York. Its feature is its compactness, which makes it easily portable and easily to incorporate in a radio-photograph combination. The Fultograph is widely used in Europe, reproducing photographs, or facsmile writing with excellent results. It is simple and almost foolproof and can be produced and sold for less than $100.

Will the public care for radio photographs or facsmiles? The Warners thin kit will, proposing to transmit to the home receivers pictures of current news events, news pictures of radio performers as they appear, facsmiles of the day's radio personalities, and, possibly even a tabloid newspaper in facsimile.

Fight on Large Scale.

Another fact not generally known is that the Warners have acquired a controlling interest in National Radio Advertisers, of Chicago, which employs the Soatone recording system for full length continuities, containing feature programs and the usual types of sponsored announcements, for use by broadcasting stations. If they exploit this on their own, as now appears

Santa Fe Trail to California Traverses Fine Scenic Route

By SARAH ISABELLE LOWIS.

ALONG the Santa Fe Trail, under blue June skies, for 2427 miles, from St. Louis to Los Angeles—an excellent road flung across mid-Western prairies, the proud Rockies and golden deserts, joining for the traveler views of the apple orchards that are now bursting into bloom on the ampleness of Missouri's gently rolling hills and glimpses of the perfume-drenched orange groves of Southern California.

For those who would play vagabond this summer and lose themselves in the vastness of the great Southwest, and eventually sight the deep sapphire of the Pacific, the Santa Fe route beckons.

Along this historic old trail the Indian awaits you. Today he is weaving his rugs, hammering his silver and molding his clay, much as he did when the Spaniards discovered him, centuries ago. Majestic, awe-inspiring, the Grand Canyon of the Colorado lies close by the trail. Arid, mysterious, guarding its age-old secrets, the Petrified Forest is there to baffle you. Dazzling in its rose and purple tints, more vivid than any artist's pigments, the Painted Desert, alongside the highway, is a veritable living canvas.

Trip Can Be Made in 10 Days.

Traveling leisurely, exploring here and there, taking side trips to points of interest and stopping to chat with people, the trail may be followed from St. Louis to the coast in 10 days. It traverses five states, Missouri, Kansas, Colorado, New Mexico, Arizona and California, and threads its way through Kansas City, Mo.; Trinidad, Colo.; Santa Fe and Albuquerque, N. M.; Flagstaff, Ariz., and Needles and Pasadena, Cal.

People have been known to make the trip in five days, but to convert such a fascinating highway into a race track is to ignore its charms and to be blind to the miracles of nature which it so generously offers.

In this day and age any man or woman with four good tires on his or her automobile can have all the thrills of conquest that the first Spaniards had, without near the inconveniences. For in those dear old days the hotels were so few and far between that none at all are recorded in history, and the desert at that time was not piped for cross-country jaunts. Also, another advantage today is that one may follow the old trail and still keep one's scalp quite securely fastened to the skull, for the only scalping of modern times affects not the head but the purse.

Cross Stretches of Desert.

Generally, the first thing any novice attempting the Southwest asks is, "How did you get over the desert?" Then, much to his chagrin, the traveler replies, "What desert?" for considerable of the country traversed by the trip is barren of any sign of vegetation. When you forget what green grass looks like, and are about out of water, you are in the desert. From Colorado west, it is mostly desert, some small bits of which are reclaimed. But how it grows on one!

As one follows the pavement from St. Louis to Kansas City, speeding past green fields and flowering orchards, crossing streams and rivers, it is well to look long and lovingly for in a flash this is behind one. Leaving Kansas City, Mo., and crossing the bridge into Kansas, there are three things to see—the Haskell Indian school at Lawrence, as well as the State University, and the biggest salt plant in the world, at Hutchinson. Despite rumors that will persist, Kansas roads are well-graded ones.

Kansas Prairies Traversed.

One has to adjust ones self to philosophically as possible to the Kansas prairies. Flat land and sky. That is all. Outside of a sweet-singing meadowlark now and then, or an unpopular rabbit racing across the road, there is nothing much on which to rest the eye. Novels have been written about the prairie winds. Hot, fierce, unrelentless, with no break to stop them, they blow on and on. They caught our car at such an angle that the air would not circulate through the engine, and it boiled so protestingly that we had to turn on the windshield wiper in order to see the road. At night the wind's intensity did not lessen—it blew like a demon whistling through his teeth.

In Colorado one first glimpses mountains, the gorgeous, snow-capped Sangre de Cristos, so named by early Spanish explorers. They are covered with snow the whole year around and form a glistening white line along the horizon.

It was in this district that our car had a series of flats within three days, thanks to six nails and one sharp rock. Only two occurred out on the highway; the rest were near garages. Of course, in starting to fix the first flat, the jack would not work. In a few minutes, however, another car came along and a man helped us. Chivalry still exists in the West.

Bad Spots on the Highway.

Western roads, sad to say, are noted for their tacks and nails. Some drivers, of course, are lucky and dodge the nails, just like some children escape the measles. We also had the measles.

While the roadway of the Santa Fe trail is surprisingly well graded and wide, in Southeastern Colorado and a few other sections a sharp white rock that will cut the best tires made is encountered.

Climbing over Raton Pass, elevation 7800 feet, gives the traveler his first taste of mountain grades. The view from the summit is beautiful. Slip into second gear, make the descent and you are a mountain driver. This is one of the three big grades along the trail, none of which is anything to worry over. From it one swings quickly into the heart of the Indian country, in and about Santa Fe and Albuquerque.

Santa Fe, itself, has managed to hold the charm of the early Spanish days, express the spirit of the Southwest and still be most up to date. On its streets walk the decendent daughters of those Spaniards of yesterday, dressed in traditional black, wearing black scarfs over their heads.

Another "Oldest House."

Brushing their shoulders go the Indians, their black hair braided with red and green strings, their faces bronzed from the sun, and the women with full skirts sweeping the sidewalks.

Among the points of interest are the Museum, San Miguel Church, built in 1636, the oldest church in America, and the oldest house in this country, made of adobe clay. St. Augustine, Fla., also has the oldest house in the United States. (Respective chambers of commerce, please note.)

While any number of interesting Indian detours tempt one among the roads leading out of Santa Fe, the one to the town of Espanola and then across the open country to the Puye cliff dwellings should not be missed. This little side trip takes half a day or less, depending on the extent of one's curiosity.

Here, with the clear mountain air fragrant with pine trees, rises a sheer cliff, honeycombed with openings. At first glance, it looks as though a battery of cannons had been fired at the cliff. Closer examination, however, shows great scoops in the solid rock, where the Indians lived, and then a series of smaller holes, for poles leading out to the "front" rooms. Climbing up the ladders and stepping in the pockets made in the rock by now forgotten moccasined feet, one reaches the very top of the cliff and sees the first apartment houses in America. Constructed way back in B. C., still stand the walls, now in ruins, of the original "efficiency." These have only been excavated for five years. Nearby is a reservoir. From the top of the cliffs may be seen snow-capped mountains guarding the horizon, and the grand sweep of the valley of the Rio Grande. The ancient Puyes could see their enemies approaching for miles. When they neared the base of the cliff, all the defenders had to do was drop a boul-

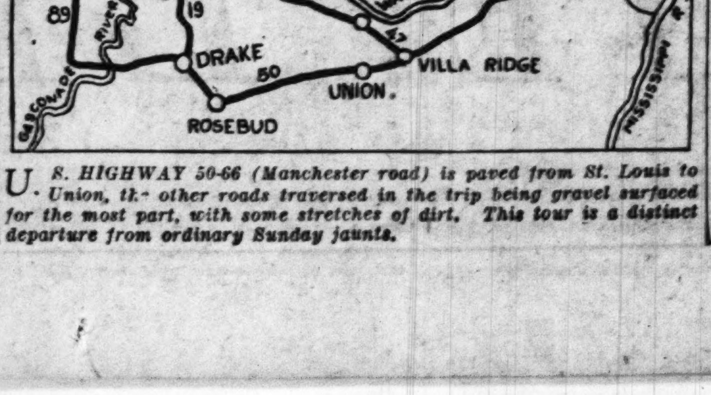
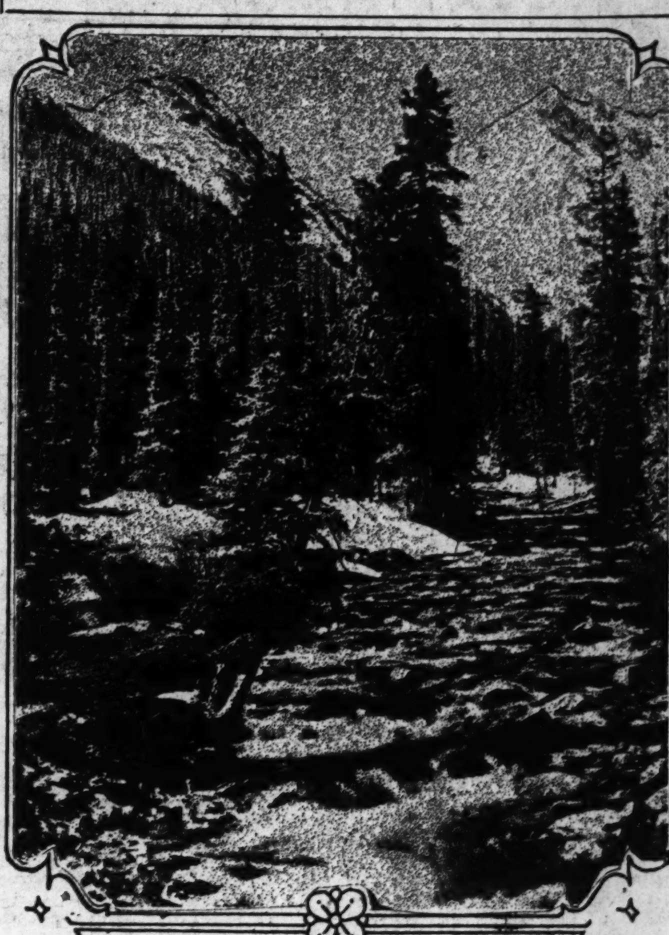
Route of Suggested Tour Along Missouri



U. S. HIGHWAY 50-66 (Manchester road) is paved from St. Louis to Union, th: other roads traversed in the trip being gravel surfaced for the most part, with some stretches of dirt. This tour is a distinct departure from ordinary Sunday jaunts.

Sangre de Cristos, on California Trip



TRAVELING west on the Santa Fe Trail, one catches one's first glimpse of the Rockies in Southeastern Colorado, when the Sangre de Cristo Mountains, named by early Spaniards, loom on the horizon. Many peaks of this range are snow-capped the year round.

Average Speed of Race Winner Was Unusually Fast

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 31.—The brilliant victory of Billy Arnold at the wheel of the Harry Hartz front-drive Miller Special in the 500-mile sweepstakes yesterday upset tradition and routed the experts.

The knowing ones among the railbirds previous to the race, drawing upon their knowledge of machinery and driving conditions, were convinced that the abandonment of superchargers and the carrying of mechanics in this year's event would slow its speed to a mere 93 or 94 miles an hour. Billy Arnold gave them something to think about by bringing his car, without artificial stimulation, under the checkered flag at the end of the long grind with an average of 100.448, the nearest approach ever made to Pete de Paolo's record of 101.13 set in 1925.

Banning the supercharger, on the other hand, proved to be a positive aid to the fast cars. It has become almost a matter of history at the Speedway that the pacemakers never finish. After leading the way for the field through the first 100 miles or so, they have usually dropped out, one by one, and in a majority of cases with supercharger trouble.

There was no supercharger trouble in the 1930 classic, and it is perhaps more than a coincidence that the three cars qualifying with the best time finished one, two and four.

Mark the race, again, as a victory for the front-drive principle of automobile construction. For years the front-drive cars have been trying at Indianapolis, but never before had one of them finished in front of the field. The victory, no doubt, will be heavily commercialized and perhaps will lead to an aggressive campaign to put the front-drive car over with the motoring public. Automobile men at the race expressed the opinion that manufacturers had been waiting just such a "break" to popularize the new idea on the market.

The front-drive move, in fact, is so well advanced that several types were represented in the race. In most cars of that type, the load is supported by an auxiliary axle. In the Coleman Special, driven into seventh place by Phil Shafer, the motor is supported on the front axle, making an extremely heavy unsprung weight.

To the popular fancy, no doubt, there was no change in this year's race as exciting as the interest taken by stock car promoters. Racing in the recent past, with rules favoring specialists in racing car construction, narrowed the field of entries largely to the creations of three men—the Duesenbergs and Harry Miller. Broader rules in effect this year, however attracted a number of stock car entries and, while most of them passed under assumed titles, eventually they will give the public what it wants most in a race—names with

Race Expected to Stimulate Retail Automobile Sales

Executives Say It Creates Considerable Interest Among Buyers.

By MARE BRAUN.

DETROIT, Mich., May 31.—The annual Indianapolis race is expected to be a stimulus for automobile sales, according to a number of executives here. In fact, some declare that in past years for quite a period after the running of this motor classic, a good many new sales prospects were listed and sales made which were traceable to the race. Old timers in the automobile industry say that in the early days the Vanderbilt road race was one of the principal mediums of arousing interest in motor cars. In Europe, even today, especially in France and in Italy, the Grand Prix automobile races are considered of the greatest importance from a sales as well as a sports viewpoint.

A number of automobile men here are of the opinion that it would not be a bad idea if some organization like the American Automobile Association or the National Automobile Dealers Association would promote a composite event, of national character, to boost the business.

Several announcements of new-model passenger cars are expected to be made within the next fortnight, one by a Cleveland concern. There is also a rumor that an Eastern commercial car manufacturer will shortly bring out a low-priced truck.

There has been no marked increase in motor car sales in and

Picturesque Tour Along South Bank Of Missouri

Circuit of 225 miles may be completed in one day by St. Louisans—Route passes over hills along the river for 75 miles, touching at Washington and Hermann, as well as other valley towns.

By RICHARD G. BAUMHOFF.

SPRING in all its glory along the Missouri River furnishes the setting for an interesting one-day jaunt away from the beaten paths, for motorists possessed of the gypsy instinct. In a circuit of about 225 miles from St. Louis and back it is possible to lose traffic for nearly half the distance and to traverse the hills along the Missouri for 75 miles, with frequent views of that mighty stream.

The route follows U. S. Highway 50 (Manchester road) out of St. Louis and State Highway 47 into Washington, thence to country roads of Franklin, Gasconade and Osage Counties into Chamois. Returning, it goes south on State Highway 89 to a point east of Linn, and back to St. Louis on No. 50. It is no boulevard between Washington and Chamois, but a picturesque rural road—all-weather as far as Hermann, but with considerable earth beyond Hermann that would be troublesome soon after a hard rain. There is a ferry trip across the Gasconade River, but no other toll.

While the whole journey is amid quiet scenes of beauty, the finest part is that along the Missouri River, beginning soon after No. 50 crosses from St. Louis County to Franklin County. From high on the ridge east of Gray's Summit the white rock bluffs of the Missouri can be seen several miles to the north, across a veritable forest of green trees. On the other side of the car the woods stretch down into the Meramec River Valley.

View of Bluffs at Close Range.

A few miles farther on, after the car has turned onto No. 47, the Missouri's bluffs can be seen at closer range, and then, unexpectedly, the swirling, muddy stream itself comes into view below the highway. Washington is an interesting old town, with a mixture of distinctive old and new architecture and many comfortable homes up on the hills. No. 47 enters from the east on a hill-top street and the road to Hermann leads straight ahead on that street, but most visitors wish to detour through the town and drive along the river front. Washington, which achieved a population of 5905 this year, is known for its corncob pipe and zither factories.

It is about 35 miles from Washington to Hermann by way of New Haven and Berger, over a good enough rock and gravel road. There are occasional descents into valleys, but most of the distance the route traverses high land, sometimes quite close and never very far from the big river. The intermittent glimpses of the Missouri are impressive. The water, a broad, twising strip of brown, is bordered by green lowlands and the tree-studded, rocky confines of the bluffs.

Many of the vistas would challenge a painter's attention. An inder down. To enter these grounds, the Government charges 50 cents a person.

Noted for Black Pottery.

Nearby the Puye ruins are the Santa Clara Indians, noted for their black pottery. "Daylight," our Indian guide, was kind enough to demonstrate how this black pottery is made. Rose clay from the valley is mixed with fine white sand from the cliffs and molded. Then it is rubbed with red clay, greased and polished with a smooth stone. After it is baked in manure and later cooled, it comes out looking like ebony bronze.

West of Santa Fe, on the way to Albuquerque, is La Bajada Hill, which descends going west 800 feet in a mile and a half around a score of hairpin curves. This sounds terrible, but the turns are well built up, and seven of the deadliest have been removed. It is a sight to be at the foot of the hill and to look up at this mile and a half of remarkable road engineering sprawled across the side of the mountain.

Throughout New Mexico and Arizona is a country where the earth is baked a ruddy tan and the sky by contrast looms up an intense blue. Threes are only in occasional patches. Houses are made of adobe clay, particularly in the Mexican settlements, and the Indians dot the highway. Here are found old trading posts, some of which date from the time the first railway was put through. Sometimes one drives for 60 or more miles between the most meager of colonies. It is still a new country.

At an altitude of 7265 feet, the Continental Divide is crossed. A sign marks the spot, otherwise one would have no way of knowing that this is "where East meets West."

Navajos Self-Supporting.

While the Government helps many of the Indian tribes, the Navajos are entirely self-supporting.

While one sees along the highway in New Mexico only a few hogans and an occasional pueblo, one passes Indian girls herding their flocks of sheep, and squaws with pottery for sale. Most of the Indians live back off the road.

Arizona is the state of natural marvels. Going west, one swings off the highway at Adamana and swings back at Holbrook, thus taking in the Petrified Forest, a national monument, without adding more than six miles to the tour. In order to take advantage of this loop, the Rio Puerco River must not be high. True to the form of most of the Southwest rivers, this one was dry when we crossed it. The road through the Petrified Forest is quite easily passable, but a bit jolty in spots.

Petrified Forest Interesting.

While the Petrified Forest is not spectacular, it is quite as interesting in its modest way as though it were. Strewn about the ground are fallen monarchs of another age perfectly preserved by some miracle of nature which scientists have not yet to everyone's satisfaction solved. At times one sees the whole trunk of a tree with roots; at other times, but fragments. In this petrification, the bark retains its original roughness, while the pulp takes on vivid reds, yellows and purples. These trees look like marble, but are much harder, being one degree softer than a diamond.

One theory is that the trees drifted into this present Rainbow Forest, as it is called, and were covered by the sea, the deposit of sand and shells bringing about in a mysterious, unknown way this petrification. Along the road may be seen rounded hills of various hues conspicuously striped with amethyst. These are a mixture of seashell and clay. Within the park is a museum maintained by the government.

Unless one is tipped off, one is apt to attach no importance to a certain group of huge rocks with flat surfaces. By picking one's way gingerly over the sand and rocks and trying not to think of scorpions and snakes, it is possible to discover on these flat surfaces Indian pictographs. Unfortunately, these stones are not marked for the tourist, because some of the first people shown the rocks, inscribed their names and addresses there. A series of such would in no time at all, completely deface these historic pictograph surfaces with their symbols of the sun, rain, warriors and so forth. The government agent, however, will guide those interested to them.

Painted Desert to North.

Due north of the Petrified Forest and also in the neighborhood of Adamana lies the Painted Desert, fairly quivering with the brilliance of its reds, blues and yellows. The Painted Desert is a dazzling chaos of mounds of variegated-hued sands. The colors seem to breathe and quiver under the radiance of the sun. This extends to the eastern end of the Grand Canyon, and so may be seen from several points.

Williams, Ariz., is the key city to the Grand Canyon. Here, at an elevation of 6800 feet, a road travels north for 60 miles to the brim of the canyon. This leads one through gently rolling country, giving no promise or suggestion of the great spectacle of nature that is its goal. About half of this road is newly made, but all is good. Gradually cedars and pines that gain in height appear until one is in a woods. Upon entering the Grand Canyon National Park, a Government agent stops the car and takes a toll of $1 for the car, and gives one a booklet about the canyon. All the park roads are pavement.

Within a few minutes one nears the hotel, camps and other buildings, and there, with the suddenness of a streak of fire, is the Grand Canyon. One of the most awe-inspiring wonders of the world, it defies description, and leaves one breathless to gaze upon its beauty and vastness. For 217 miles it majestically sweeps itself across the land and scars the earth to a depth of more than a mile. Looking across it from rim to rim, the eye travels from four to 18 miles. At certain points, one cannot see the bottom, while at others, such as Hermit Rim, but eight miles west of the hotel, far below may be discerned a tiny thread of water, the Colorado River. In order to further feel the depth and vastness of the canyon, many tourists descend the Bright Angel and other trails on mule back.

Tribe of Basket Weavers.

At the Grand Canyon are found the Hopi Indians. They are the basket weavers.

The Oatman grade, or Old Gold road, the last of the three big grades along the trail, looms up at the western border of Arizona.

At the crest of the Oatman pass is found abandoned mining camps. The tin roofs of the shacks are corroded with rust and the walls are falling in. Only a very few inhabited places are seen, for the men who came in the fever of a former gold rush took an estimated $70,000,000 worth of ore from the hills and left. Today, but a small number of the gold and silver mines are being worked at this point. As one views the sullen walls of granite, one wonders what undiscovered treasures they are still secretly guarding within their depths.

When one crosses the Colorado River one is in California. Needles is the big town at the eastern edge of the Mohave Desert, which extends from the Arizona border westward. About 600 Mohave Indians live at Needles. As in most cities boasting Indians, the best place to find them is at the railway station. At train time the squaws with their chins stained in the fashion of the tribe, bring beads and other trinkets to the station to sell.

For those who lend themselves to the Mohave and look for its charm, this desert will give its reward. In its bold, silent way, it is as beautiful and fierce as some untamed savage.

Illusions at Sunset.

At sunset the mountains cast shadows of deepest purple into the valleys of golden sands, until one feels lost in a land of illusion where countless seas and lakes seem to magically appear and ripple maddeningly beyond reach. At night its stars are larger and brighter and nearer than any other stars on earth. Groves of grotesque Joshua trees twist their crippled branches above its sand, while the purple verbenia and other desert flowers bloom along the highways in the spring. Within its wastes may be found men and women whom it has won forever away from the bright lights of cities.

The Santa Fe Trail through the Mohave swings a good 200 miles south of Death Valley. Since the Mohave is so hot and dry in summer, most of the tourists of that season cross it at night. In April, however, a coat may be worn with comfort. The roads here are good, graded ones, allowing a car to clip along at 60 miles an hour.

When one emerges from the Mohave after 250 miles through remote rock and sand, the little border towns begin to appear and before one knows it, the heavy perfume of orange groves is in the air, roses are blooming along the streets and palm trees are etched against the sky.

Following the trail from the Coast to St. Louis in a small coupe, we only used 117 gallons of gasoline, making a cost of $25.37. The price ranged from 16.5 cents a gallon in Hollywood to 25 cents a gallon through Arizona and as far west as Albuquerque. In Santa Fe, N. M., it dropped to 22 cents a gallon, and in Kansas to 17 cents a gallon. The hotels are clean and modern. The auto camps are numerous, quite attractive looking. People along the way are friendly and kind.

Carthage (Mo.) Will Celebrate Opening of Concrete Road

Signalizing the opening of three new bridges and viaducts over which Highway No. 71 enters Carthage, Mo., from the north, and from Neosho through Carthage to Kansas City, and north to Burlington Junction, 10 miles from the Iowa line, a celebration will take place at Carthage next Wednesday and Thursday.

A pageant will depict progress the completion of concrete paving in transportation from the ox cart to the airplane. School children will parade and Gov. Caulfield will address the assemblage.

Few Punctures in Missouri.

The State Highway Department of Missouri saves motorists approximately $500 a day by keeping the roads clear of nails, tacks, bolts, staples, tin cans, scrap iron, etc. This is accomplished by the use of a motor truck with powerful magnets. The truck patrols the main highways and covers about 56 miles of road surface per day. The truck travels at 10 to 12 miles an hour and clears about seven to eight feet width of surface at one sweep.

British Roads Beautified.

Prizes are now presented by the Royal Automobile Club for the most attractive of service stations on roadsides in England. The Roads Beautifying Association has arranged for trees to be planted along many roads. It is now interesting local authorities in giving opportunities for the planting of "remembrance trees," whether in memory of relatives killed the World War or to commem a historic event.

A DISTINGUISHED EXHIBITION OF FINE MOTOR CARS WILL BE PRESENTED AT THE LINCOLN METROPOLITAN SALON

BRODHEAD COMPANY
3401 WASHINGTON BOULEVARD, ST. LOUIS
JUNE 2nd TO JUNE 9th, INCLUSIVE
11 A. M. TO 11 P. M.

THE PURPOSE of the Lincoln Metropolitan Salon is to bring to this city the latest examples of distinguished custom coachmaking and the most modern developments in automotive engineering. This salon gives you an opportunity to see for yourself to what an extraordinary degree Lincoln has brought the craft of fine automobile making. ◆ The cars exhibited at this salon represent the skill and inspiration of the country's leading custom coachmakers. Some of these new body types take their place for the first time in the regular Lincoln group. Others represent refinements and perfecting revisions of body types that already have gained wide favor. ◆ This handsome coachwork is built upon as fine a chassis as it is possible to construct, and the precision-built motor, unhurriedly constructed in one of the model plants of the world, is a thing of engineering beauty and efficiency. The Lincolns at this salon will appeal strongly to those discriminating people who appreciate the highest achievements in motor car mechanism and body design.

Supplementing the showing of cars are a number of mechanical exhibits that give an insight into the Lincoln methods of precision craftsmanship. There are a set of the world-famous Johansson gages, accurate to four-millionths of an inch. It is these that make possible the unprecedented precision in machining and adjusting all parts of the Lincoln mechanism. An exhibit of Lincoln parts will show you the practical results of this painstaking method of production.

American Car Scores Triumph At Lisbon Show

Weymann bodies, long featured by Stutz, have just won another premier European award, "the first prize, highest mark, irrespective of class," at the annual Concours d'Elegance at Lisbon, according to a notification just received by the Stutz Motor Car Co. of America, from the managing director of Weymann's, Ltd., London. A Weymann body had already taken a similar award at the Concours d'Elegance at Monte Carlo earlier this year. It also won the same prize in 1929.

Notable Examples Of Custom Bodies At Lincoln Salon

Brodhead Co.'s Display This Week Will Include Some Mechanical Exhibits.

Residents of St. Louis who are interested in fine motor cars will have an opportunity to view the work of custom coach designers and builders in a special Lincoln automobile salon to be held in the new home of the Brodhead Co., local Lincoln dealer, this week, starting tomorrow.

Through the co-operation of the Lincoln Motor Co., some of the outstanding examples of the coach builders' art will be assembled for the special salon display. This collection will include especially designed bodies rarely gathered together except in a salon of this kind or a large automobile show.

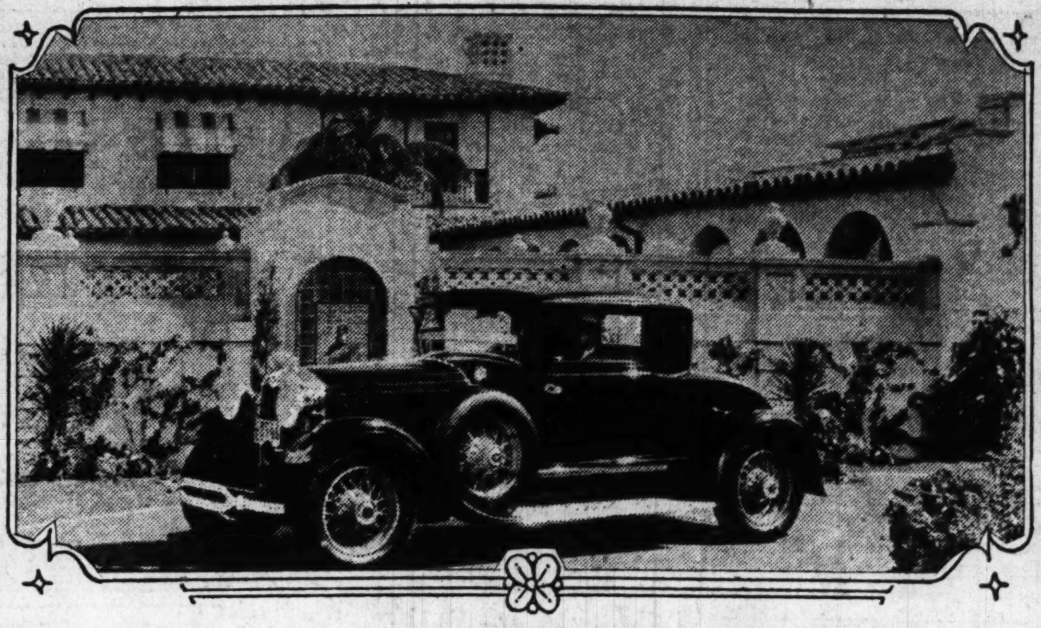
The union of exceptional beauty with unusual mechanical excellence will be illustrated by displays of various details of chassis construction. The cut-away motor will give an exact picture of the splendidly engineered Lincoln power plant. This motor is electrically operated to show what happens when it is running, the order of firing of the cylinders and how gears are shifted. The copper plated chassis, rear axle assembly, crank shaft assembly and display of other important parts of the car are so presented as to give an exact idea of the finely engineered mechanism that makes possible Lincoln performance. There will also be displayed a skeleton Lincoln body showing the superb interior construction which cannot be seen when purchasing a completed car.

A feature of the salon will be a display of Johansson gauges, the master measuring instruments manufactured by the Ford Motor Co. These gauges are used by scientists, industries and governments the world over as a fundamental basis of accuracy.

The cars to be exhibited include: Dietrich convertible sedan, Dietrich convertible coupe, Judkins berline, 3-window type; Judkins berlins, 2-window type; sport touring, sport phaeton, Willoughby limousine, limousine, 7-passenger; LeBaron cabriolet, Judkins 2-passenger coupe; town sedan, 2-window type; town sedan, 3-window type; coupe, 5-passenger; Derham convertible phaeton; Locke sport roadster; sedan, 5-passenger; sedan, 7-passenger.

These cars can be obtained in any one of a number of color combinations.

A Distinctive Custom Exhibit at Salon This Week



THE Lincoln Judkins coupe provides the intimacy associated with a distinctly personal car. Although a two-passenger type, its seat is wide enough to accommodate three persons.

Says Dual Balloons Are "Blowout-Proof"

Of the 12,000,000 persons injured every year in this country, one-fourth are hurt in automobile accidents and of the latter more than 407,000 are injured in accidents due to tire failure, according to C. K. Matthews, of the General Tire Co., 3400 Washington boulevard, local distributer of General tires.

"The descriptions of these accidents reveal the need for high grade tires which are virtually free from the danger of blowing out," Matthews says. "Such a tire is the new General dual balloon. Tests have shown that blowouts cannot occur with these tires, even at the high speeds so common today.

Value of Intensive Tests Said to Have Been Proven With "8"

The value in bringing a new motor car to a peak of perfection through a wide range of tests, really more strenuous than motoring conditions usually met, has been provided in the new Willys eight recently introduced by Willys-Overland.

The tests made by the Willys-Overland technical staff with this straight eight before it was declared ready for volume production, covered every phase of motoring. In the rugged mountains of Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Tennessee, its power development was thoroughly tested. The highest peaks of the Allegheny range were mounted time and time again by the experimental cars and a careful check was kept on performance. The Willys eights now in the hands of new drivers are showing the same high standard of performance.

These same mountains, with their steep, winding grades also were used as the Willys-Overland proving grounds to test the top speed of the Willys eight under the mose severe pulling conditions.

Seven-Millionth Chevrolet Put Into Production

DETROIT, Mich., May 31.—The seven millionth car built by the Chevrolet Motor Co. is on its way to its owner somewhere in America. The car, a coach, rolled off the assembly line Wednesday, in the company's plant at Flint, Mich. It was the 1,845,938th six-cylinder car produced by Chevrolet since this model was brought out in January, 1929.

Chevrolet's record maker arrived without benefit of ceremony except for the cheers of the workmen along the final assembly line who halted work long enough to give it welcome and watch it being driven to the loading docks for shipment. Then work was resumed and not many seconds later car No. 7,000,001 went to join its historic companion.

Nearly 12 years elapsed after the company's organization before the one millionth car was built, on Feb. 27, 1923, but the two-millionth car rolled off the assembly line less than two years and five months later, on July 20, 1925. A year and six months later, on Jan. 13, 1927, the three-millionth car was prodluced. Thereafter less than a year was required to reach each of the succeeding 1,000,000 marks. The four-millionth was produced on Jan. 11, 1928, in 363 days; the five-millionth on Sept. 8, 1928, in eight months, three days; the sixth-millionth on June 25, 1929, in nine months, 17 days. The 7,000,000 mark, just passed, was reached in 10 months, 25 days.

Chrysler Brings Out Convertible Coupe in '6' Line

Makes Total of Six Body Styles in Series, at $795 Up.

The addition of a convertible coupe with rumble seat to the new low-priced Chrysler six line has been announced this week by the Chrysler Sales Corporation. The car, selling at a factory price of $925, brings the total models in this series to six body styles, offered at $795 up, the lowest-price range that Chrysler has ever offered a six-cylinder car. Wood wheels are standard equipment. Wire wheels with spares in the front fender wells are available at additional cost.

The convertible coupe combines the seasonal advantages of a roadster with those of a coupe. The top folds back compactly for open-car driving, and can be quickly and easily adjusted for closed car driving in unfavorable weather. Chromium plated frames for the door glass afford a smart appearance when the top is back and the door glass up.

Finished in attractive color combinations with contrasting panels and striping, the car presents a striking appearance with its graceful body lines. The seat cushions are upholstered in heavy tan leather, both in the driver's compartment and rumble seat. Rubberized pile fabric, matching the top, is available as special equipment for upholstery at slight extra cost. All exterior hardware of the car is chromium plated.

Midwest Motors, Inc., local Chrysler distributer, has the new model of the low-priced six line on display in their showrooms, L. M. Stewart, president, announces.

Race Expected to Stimulate Retail Automobile Sales

about Detroit during the last 10 days, due to a spell of chilly weather. Dealers are confident, however, that the May and June business will be better than April. In the financial district the opinion also prevails that, while the upward trend is not as fast as desirable, there is a slow but steady improvement.

The monthly business review prepared by the Union Guardian Trust Co. of Detroit, just issued, makes the following observations:

Reports Some Expansion.

"Although still far from favorable, the automobile and accessory industries located in Detroit and the surrounding area are currently expanding. Automobile production in the first three months this year averaged less than 2-3 of the output for the same months last year. It is estimated that production in April was about 70 per cent of that of April, 1929, when nearly 664,000 cars, the highest monthly total ever recorded, were manufactured in the United States and Canada. It appears, therefore, that automobile manufacturing has turned the corner and that business in such cities as Detroit, Flint, Pontiac, Lansing and Saginaw may show some improvement in the near future."

The large delegation of members of the French Society of Automobile Engineers, which has been inspecting Detroit and other Michigan automotive plants, during the past week, was a feature of the week. The party includes more than 20 foreign visitors and is probably the greatest number which ever came at one time from any country, to get acquainted with the American automobile industry. The Frenchmen came to the United States to attend the annual meeting of the American Society of Automotive Engineers at French Lick, Ind., and witness the Indianapolis race.

While here the visitors inspected most of the factories.

Concerned Over Tariff Bill.

The future of the American automobile export business, particularly to Europe, is worrying the motor car makers, more than is known. The recent statements of Henry Ford, of President Mooney of the General Motors Export Corporation, and of Alvan Macauley, president of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, against the pending tariff bill, are indicative of how the industry feels on the tariff question. Retaliation by foreign countries will be the answer if the present tariff schedule is finally approved by President Hoover. It is pointed out by men connected with export departments that the automotive industry will not be the only one to feel the effects, but the American export business in general. It is rumored that Ford will make a special call on President Hoover for the purpose of discussing the tariff problem.

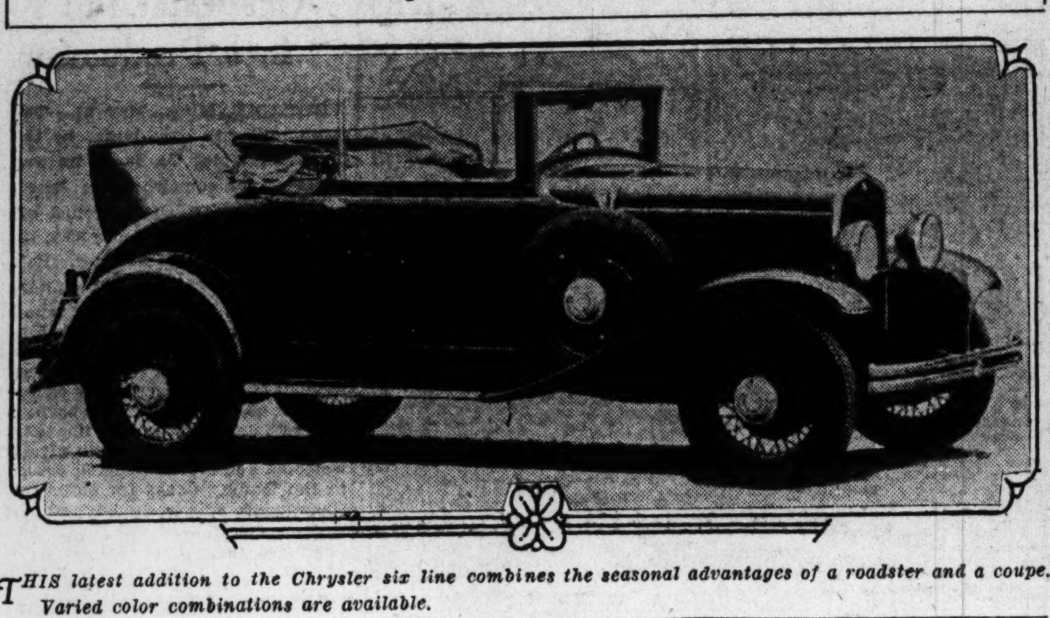
This week the Packard Motor Car Co., announces that inasmuch as a new Packard standard eight will be brought out in the fall, the company has decided to reduce the price of the current standard eight $400 effecting 11 models.

The new standard eight will not be radically different from the present model, but will embody a number of minor changes and improvements.

A good deal of interest was created by the announcement of the Ford Motor Co. of its new 1½-ton truck, which has a wheelbase of 157 inches or 25½ inches more than the wheelbase of the standard Ford truck chassis.

The Murray Body Corporation of Detroit is said to be turning out between 15,000 and 16,000 bodies a month, in addition to a large number of fenders, the bulk of the output being for Ford.

Convertible Coupe Added to New Line of "Sixes"



THIS latest addition to the Chrysler six line combines the seasonal advantages of a roadster and a coupe. Varied color combinations are available.

One of Closed Car Models of Low-Priced "Six" Line

THE sedan of the new Studebaker six series, sold at the lowest price ever placed on a Studebaker. The six is powered by a 70-horsepower motor, has a 11½-inch wheelbase and roomy interior.

Suggests Another Motor Trip.

To the Automobile Editor:

I read with a great deal of interest your suggestions for holiday motor trips, which I consider very good, but I find you have not had an opportunity of driving over Highway No. 49, leading into Piedmont recently. I visited Piedmont last week, and was delighted to find that the new road, No. 49, has been completed, and is in excellent shape. This new road is within one-half mile of the city limits of Piedmont, and only this half-mile stretch of the old road is used.

I felt you would be glad to have me tell you this because I believe one of the very beautiful routes to the Big Springs will now be over No. 49 to Piedmont, then No. 34 to Van Buren. This will give visitors an optional route of going that way and possibly return by No. 21 from Van Buren.

Picturesque Tour Along South Bank Of the Missouri

teresting and characteristic phase is found in the clouds of sand dust that blow over the water from the numerous bars.

New Haven, snuggled in the hills, is seen from a distance. The road descends sharply to pass through the business section of the town, crossing the Missouri Pacific Railroad, which follows the river from Washington to Chamois and beyond. Berger is in a similar setting. Nearing Hermann in Gasconade County, the road winds through deep woods and drops down to the narrow strip of land between the river and a lofty bluff. An old excursion steamboat has been beached since last year in front of this bluff and offers an unusual spectacle.

Hermann a Picturesque Town.

Hermann is still another picturesque town, the capital of the county. Its wine cellars, famed of yore, now are used in part for mushrooms. Its courthouse is mounted on a high stronghold that commands a view of the river for miles. A modern steel highway bridge is under construction across the Missouri there. The piers are done and the metal spans are being flung over them. In a few months this toll crossing will replace the old ferryboat, adding a needed link to State Highway No. 19 and giving North and South Missouri their only bridge between St. Charles and Jefferson City.

The tour may be cut short by taking No. 19 south from Hermann to Drake, which is on No. 50. For the full trip, No. 19 is followed only four miles south from Hermann. Then the turn is right on a country road plainly marked "to Chamois," which is 22 miles from this junction. Climbing a long and exceptionally steep graveled hill in the woods soon after turning into this road, the motorist is rewarded by a magnificent panorama from the summit.

An Old-Fashioned Ferry.

There is a fork in the road two miles after leaving No. 19. The shorter and more desirable route is by the right-hand turn marked "to Gasconade," avoiding the one to the left which is marked "Morrison via Stolpe." At the Gasconade River an old-fashioned ferry is encountered; it operates as traffic demands, at all hours, and the charge for most cars is 50 cents. The craft is a flat-bottomed one, large enough for several machines, and pushed by a motorboat along a course fixed by a cable.

The Gasconade is a broad, pleasant stream here, and from the ferry its confluence with the Missouri may be seen, beyond the railroad bridge. The little town of Gasconade is one the west bank. Two miles beyond this town, at another fork, the turn is back to the right, as the left-hand road leads to Stolpe.

Entering Morrison, a secluded community on the Missouri, there is the steepest hill of the whole trip, to descend the bluff. Just west of Morrison there is a third fork at the edge of a bluff, and again the turn is to the right and into the river bottoms. This is the end of the hills that have challenged the car all the way from Washington. The lowlands, however, are attractive in their spring dress of green, for the farms of this broad basin are productive. Off to the right there are still glimpses of the river, which comes quite close to the road in places.

Chamois is the last of the picturesque river towns of this trip. There begins Highway No. 89, which speedily leads up into the hills again, affording more vistas of the Missouri and the surrounding countryside. This is an excellent modern gravel road, taking the adventurer back to No. 50. Jefferson City is only about 25 miles west of No. 89. Unfortunately, the rural road along the river from Chamois to the Jefferson City section is not recommended for travel. Returning on No. 50, one of the numerous attractive sights is the Gasconade River as seen from the State bridge.

which it is familiar. Incidentally, opening the race to stock models may make the event of renewed value in the development of passenger models.

The only official factory stock car entry was the du Pont, but numerous others were entered privately. There were two stock Duesenbergs. The Russell Special, which Snowberger drove to eighth position, is in reality a Studebaker President. Corum, who finished tenth, was driving a Stutz that had all the appearances of a stock coupe stripped of its fenders and headlights. The Slade Special was a cut-down Chrysler 75. The Romthe Special a Studebaker President. The Butcher Special included a big Buick engine on a small Buick chassis. The Trexler Special was an Auburn in disguise and the V-Eight Special, driven by Claude Burton, was an Oakland, held to have been all stock but the pistons. Last, but not least, the Fronty Special that stayed on the track as long as there was hope was 80 per cent Ford.

Manufacturers perhaps will be encouraged by the showing made by these unofficial entries to take a direct interest in future racing events. They proved that stock cars, properly tuned, are capable of sufficient speed to interest a sporting throng.

The only 16-cylinder car to figure in the money was Lou Meyer's Sampson Special, perhaps the most intricate piece of machinery on the course. Six eight-cylinder models were in the prize-winning 10, and three four-cylinder mounts.

While the field was thinned at a bewildering rate in the early stages of the race, most of the trouble was accidental rather than mechanical. Five cars were eliminated in one smash on the north turn. Faulty spark plugs, broken connecting rods, broken valves, a broken gas tank and a broken spring were among the ailments that took promising cars from the field.

Vesper-Buick Co. Sold, to Become Factory Branch

F. W. A. Vesper Retires From Automobile Field After 25 Years.

An event of importance in local automobile circles took place last week when the Buick Motor Co. purchased the distributing business of the Vesper-Buick Auto Co., which, beginning tomorrow, it will operate as a factory branch. Headquarters of the branch will remain in the Vesper-Buick building at Vandeventer avenue and West Pine boulevard.

F. W. A. Vesper, president of the company since its inception here 16 years ago, will retire from the automobile business. He will assume the presidency of the American Cottonpicker Corporation, 4003 Laclede avenue. Vesper is a pioneer in the motor car industry, having been identified with the distribution and sale of Buicks for 25 years. Through his new connection he re-enters the farm machinery field, from which he withdrew to enter the motor car business.

Coming to St. Louis from Flint, Mich., where he was assistant general sales and advertising manager of the Buick company, he bought out the Buick factory branch at 2205 Locust street, and afterwards erected a building at Grand and Lindell, which was occupied for 10 years. The present plant on Vandeventer was built in 1927. Prior to coming to this city, Vesper was president of the Buick Motor Co. of Texas, at Dallas.

Walter H. Vesper, vice president of Vesper-Buick and closely associaited with his brother during the latter's career in the automobile field, will devote himself to outside interests. Walter Vesper was at one titme branch manager of the Buick company at Oklahoma City, Ok., and also acted as a distributer of other lines of cars there and in Kansas City, Mo.

W. H. Wilcockson, secretary and director of sales of the company, who will remain in the business, came to St. Louis in 1921. Previous to that time he was a resident of Houston, Tex., for 15 years.

D. E. Castles, metropolitan sales manager of Vesper-Buick, has purchased the West Side Buick Co., with several associates, thereby remaining in the retail sales field. This company will continue to operate at McPherson avenue and Kingshighway boulevard.

R. N. Soule, connected with the regional Buick offices in Chicago, is representing the Buick factory in St. Louis. The transaction was handled personally by executives of the Buick Motor Co.

No change in the territory of the local company is anticipated and the Vesper organization will remain practically intact, it was stated.

Willys Overland's Truck Line Shows Registration Gain

The entry of Willys-Overland into the commercial car and truck field is marked by the report of registrations of the first two months of the current year which shows the Toledo manufacturer with a gain of 39 per cent over the same period of last year. This Willys-Overland increase is said to be the largest of any truck manufacturer in the country.

Willys-Overland's line of commercial vehicles range from the light delivery types to the larger 1½-ton models and covers 87 per cent of the commercial car field.

The entire line is comprised of the Whippet Four commercial chassis at $360; Willys Six light delivery commercial chassis at $525; Willys Six 1½-ton commercial chassis at $695 and the Willys-Knight, Model T 103, 1½-ton commercial chassis at $825.

By providing such a complete coverage, the Toledo manufacturer is in an advantageous position since it gives Willys-Overland merchants a complete line of vehicles of a wide variety of types, sizes and prices.

Shock Absorbers on 24 of Cars in Race Were Gabriel-Made

INDIANAPOLIS, May 31. — Of the 30 cars that started in yesterday's Speedway race, 24 were equipped with Gabriel triple hydraulic shock absorbers. Gabriel-equipped cars finished in first, third, fifth, sixth, seventh, eighth and tenth places. The success of these shock absorbers in helping to hold the racing machines under control on the rough brick track and around the turns at high speeds is regarded as evidence of their sturdiness.

After this mileage the filtering unit ceases to function as it has become filled with dirt, sludge and abrasive material taken from the oil.

Replacing the cartridge every 10,000 miles means saving in wear, less frequent repair bills and real oil economy as the motor oil can be used for 2000 miles or more.

Dodge District Offices Moved to Continental Buildig

District headquarters of the Dodge Brothers Corporation have been moved from the Ambassador Building to the new Continental Life Building, Grand boulevard and Olive street, U. S. Dickerson, district manager here, announces. Dickerson has been identified with the automobile industry since its early days.

U. S. Dickerson.

He was with the Ford Motor Co.'s Chicago branch for 10 years, first as sales manager and later as assistant manager of one of the company's Middle Western branches.

Five years ago he went with Dodge and for the last two years has been in charge of the St. Louis district office. The new location of the district offices will permit of the convenient grouping of the district offices of the divisions of Chrysler Motors. De Soto headquarters have already been moved into the Continental Life Building.

Wheel Alignment An Important Item Of Tour Preparation

At this season, when many St. Louisans are preparing for vacation motor trips, the wheel allignment department of Borbein-Young is unusually busy, according to Walter Ziegenbein, vice president of the company.

"Many car owners realize that vacation worries are minimized, so far as the automobile itself is concerned, by elimination of tire problems," he said. "The proper alignment of wheels is one way to obtain this. Alignment cuts down 'shimmy' and uneven tire wear."

Prices of Packard Standard Eight Reduced $400

INTEREST in the automobile industry centered last week on the announcement by the Packard Motor Car Co. that it had reduced the price of the standard eight $400. Eleven different types are affected by the cut, which brings the standard eight five-passenger sedan down very nearly to $2000.

In conformity with a policy which aroused much favorable comment two seasons ago when Packard originated it, the announcement of the present price reduction was accompanied by the statement that the company expects to bring out a new car in the fall. It was explained that the reduction was made for this reason.

Packard has made but few radical changes in the appearance of its cars and the new car to be introduced in the fall, the announcement said, will show even less change in the exterior appearance than was noticed last September when the present line of standard eights was introduced. Changes are expected to be improvements and refinements.

Operating on Trapped Sunlight.

Running motors with electricity from sunlight is one of the possibilities forecast by the invention of a new type of cell that converts light directly into useful quantities of current. The new cell, now in process of development by a scientist in Germany, the essential part of which is a sandwich of copper oxide between two layers of metallic copper, may also prove a great improvement in talking movies and television and in many phases of scientific work.

Frequent Changing Of Motor Oil Urged

Mixing good motor oil with "used" oil, even though both are of the same quality, causes needless waste to many motorists, in the opinion of officials of the Warson Petroleum Co., local distributer of William Penn motor oils.

"Everybody knows that even a small amount of sour milk mixed with sweet milk will render the entire mixture unfit for use. The same principle applies in mixing motor oils. One quart of good oil added to four quarts of worn-out oil makes five quarts of worn-out oil," one official said.

"The motorist who mixes his oil in this way will eventually expose his motor to undue wear and tear caused from improper lubrication, no matter what kind of oil he uses. Lubrication engineers of the large motor-car manufacturers urge buyers of their cars to change their oil at regular intervals."

At St. Louis Airfields

CAPT. PHIL R. LOVE, former flying partner of Col. Lindbergh, was elected commander of the Thirty-Fifth Division Air Service by a unanimous vote of officers of the unit at a meeting last Monday night. He succeeds Capt. John Sparks, who has been in temporary command of the organization since last fall.

Capt. Love, a graduate of the Army flying school, has been a member of the air unit since coming to St. Louis in 1926 to fly the air mail with Lindbergh. His ability as a flyer and his popularity in aviation circles, as well as the esteem in which he is held by civic and business leaders of St. Louis makes his election as commander of the Missouri National Guard air force generally acceptable.

Yesterday Capt. Love led a flight of six planes of the unit to Neosho, Mo., to participate in the dedication of an airport.

Quiet Birdmen to Meet.

A meeting of St. Louis members of the Order of Quiet Birdmen, an airplane pilots' fraternity, will be held in the main dining room at Hotel Jefferson at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow night. Further information concerning the meeting may be obtained by calling Oliver Parks at Parks Airport.

Lambert Field Improvements.

Improvements at Lambert-St. Louis Field are progressing satisfactorily, and the airport is rapidly becoming one of the most complete in the United States. A new east and west runway on the south side of the field will be ready for use within a short time, and a concrete taxi strip and driveway is being constructed on the north side of the field. Part of the concrete service road in the rear of the hangars is completed, and the new entrance and driveway will be opened within a few weeks.

Steinberg Airport Dedication.

Saturday and Sunday, June 28 and 29, have been designated for the dedication of the new Curtiss-Steinberg airport south of East St. Louis. Details of the program, which will include night flying exhibitions by Curtiss-Wright air circus, of which "Red" Jackson, endurance flyer, is a member, will be announced later. The airport has been in operation for several months.

By Air to Auto Race.

30 Planes Sold.

It was also announced that the Department of Commerce has passed favorable on the glider made and sold by Detroit Aircraft.

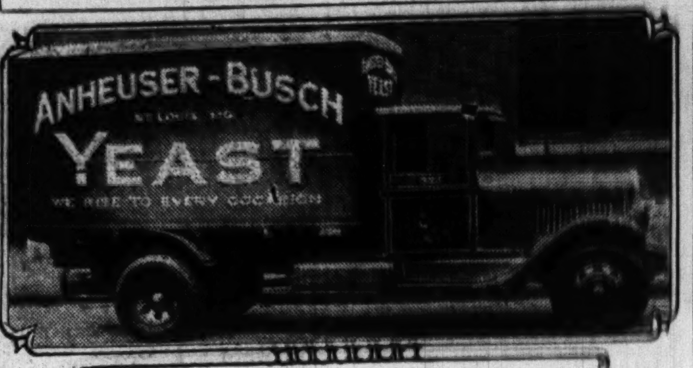
Students Build Plane.

Two Port Chester, N. Y., youths, M. Licare and H. Weigel, have enrolled for a flying course at the Von Hoffmann School. Students of the school have completed a model Eaglerock plane having a 7-foot wing and a fuselage six feet long, which they presented to Albert Von Hoffmann, founder of the school.

New Safety Motor Law.

Massachusetts is the first State in the Union to adopt safety legislation toward the elimination of injury from broken glass. Effective Jan. 31, 1931, all motor vehicles carrying passengers for hire in the State must be equipped with "nonshatterable" glass. This type of glass is defined as any glass designed to minimize the likelihood of personal injury from breaking.

Specially Designed Truck Cab and Body



THIS General Motors Truck model T-42 has been equipped by the Anheuser-Busch Co. for use by the yeast department of its New York branch. Anheuser-Busch built the body and cab in its local plant.

McDonald Urges Support of City's Traffic Program

Frank C. McDonald, president of the Southwest Nash Co., yesterday urged Nash dealers in the metropolitan sales territory actively to support highway and street improvements and public work projects as a part of their business activities in 1930. He pointed out that despite the huge expenditures for improved roads and better traffic facilities made in the last 10 years, the system of surfaced roads is still inadequate. Automobile prosperity of the future, he declared, depends, in large measure, on steady progress toward safer, freer, more pleasant and adequate traffic facilities, he added, and the cost of such improvements is usually far less in actual dollars and cents than the dividends they pay to the public.

"It may seem at first glance that the support of public improvements has little bearing on success and profits in automobile merchandising," McDonald said, "but anyone who has operated a car in large cities knows that the desire to own an automobile is governed by the facilities offered for its use and the satisfaction and pleasure which comes with its ownership. Support of public improvements is not only a good business rule, but is also a part of the Nash public service policy which places the interests of the automobile buyer first.

"Today the actual building of new highways, streets and boulevards in the metropolitan district of St. Louis may be considered a practically completed job. The great need now is to bring these public properties to their highest efficiency, to modernize and improve the present facilities and to encourage the general study of traffic relief plans. We can all cut down the naturally slow progress of highway construction by supporting every project that has a sound foundation by viewing improvement proposals without prejudice and by personally subscribing to traffic experiments and to better traffic laws. It is the big and the costly modern projects that are hardest to get started. Sometimes their cost is staggering and people do not realize that in almost all cases the improvement more than pays for itself in a short period."

Ruxton Designer Discusses Merits of Front-Drive Cars

William J. Muller, President of Moon Motor Car Co., Declares This Type Has Many Advantages Over Conventional Automobile.

With two front-drive automobiles on the market and several manufacturers experimenting with this type of car, differences in design are becoming apparent, just as variations have occurred in the conventional rear-drive field. An interview with William J. Muller, president of the Moon Motor Car Co., and the engineer who designed, for the most part, the Ruxton, now a product of the Moon, disclosed several interesting facts. Muller was questioned regarding those phases in which the public is most interested and, as a rule uninformed.

"Safety is generally conceded to be the greatest contribution of the front-drive car to the industry," Muller declared. "By transmitting engine power to the front wheels, the power is always applied in the direction in which the wheels are turned, which means that the car will follow any change in direction without the tendency to skid, found in the rear-drive car. The front-drive car, as a result is easier to control even under unfavorable conditions, such as snow, ice, sand, gravel or mud."

Discussing steering, Muller asserted that, contrary to general belief, the front-drive car will steer with less effort than the rear-drive "simply because the engine power is always aiding the driver with its pull on the front wheels."

"With every turn of the steering wheel, the power adjusts itself to each new direction, thereby reducing the actual physical effort involved, especially in sand, mud or gravel," he continued.

Front Brakes on Wheels.

In designing the car, Muller went on, Ruxton engineers were agreed that the front brakes should be placed on the wheels in the usual manner, rather than on the transmission. Of this, he said:

"By placing the front brakes on the wheels, it is possible to use the same size of brake diameter on the front as on the rear. This results in a more equal brake action than is possible by having front brakes on the transmission and rear brakes on the wheels. A further advantage of wheel braking is the elimination of strain on the driving mechanism and the absence of chattering usually associated with transmission braking."

Discussing front spring suspension, he was of the opinion that the conventional type is desirable. "The reasons for this are twofold," he said. "First, by using conventional suspension, the possibilities of damage in a head-on collision are reduced to a minimum because a full-length frame is used which will combine with the springs in absorbing the shock of a collision, just as in the rear-drive car. In fact, the Ruxton is as impregnable to collision damage to the power plant as is the rear-drive vehicle. And, of course, the semi-elliptic spring offers superior riding qualities."

Concerning gear shifting, he had this to say: "Inasmuch as the integral parts of the front-drive transmission are identical with the rear-drive transmission assembly, there is obviously little difference in the ease of shifting. Gears are shifted by a metal rod running the length of the engine from the transmission and protruding from the dash. The usual arm motion has been reduced to a simple wrist motion. This is the main difference.

Durability of Universal Joints.

He placed emphasis on the simplicity and durability of the universal joints through which the power is transmitted from the drive shaft to the wheels. He declared that on the front-drive car universal joints are less subject to wear than on the rear-drive. This is due, he said, to the fact that the joints on a front-drive car revolve only at the speed of the wheels, while on the rear-drive, he asserted, they revolve at motor speed. He pointed out also that after the initial lubrication, less greasing attention is necessary during the life of the car.

THE Jack Sharkey-Max Schmeling fight is to be broadcast by the NBC chains the night of June 12. Present plans are for the broadcast to be sponsored by the National Broadcasting Co. William C. Grunow, president of the Grigsby-Grunow Co., Chicago, offered a check for $25,000 to go to the milk fund, for the right to broadcast the match. The NBC is understood to have a contract to handle bouts in Madison Square Garden. Grunow is said to have stated that if he got the rights, he would have no objection to the NBC as well as the Columbia chain handling the fight broadcast.

A radio recital Thursday night by Mischa Elman, the world famous violinist; a broadcast of a speech Saturday night by former United States Senator James A. Reed of Missouri on "The Crime of Prohibition" and other topics, and the premieres of two important programs—the Camel Pleasure Hour and the Kroger radio drama—make this week's broadcasting schedule of unusual appeal.

A speech by Sir Josiah Stamp, foremost financier of England, is to be broadcast over both NBC chains at 12 noon tomorrow. It will be a rebroadcast from London.

From 7:45 to 8:15 Wednesday morning, the Columbia chain is to broadcast direct from the track an account of the running of the British Derby.

Congresswoman Ruth Hanna McCormick, nominee for the Senate from Illinois, is to speak over both NBC chains at 3:20 Wednesday afternoon in an "International Viewpoint" program in the series sponsored by the National Broadcasting Co. and the British Broadcasting Corporation. Her talk, on "Women of the Central West and Their World Viewpoint," will be sent across the ocean by short waves and rebroadcast in England.

Grigori, a mad grand duke of Russia, whose destruction of wheat crops and other cruelties brought famine and terror on his subjects; Petrushka, his beautiful niece, and Ivan, his court musician and the girl's lover, will be figures in the first Kroger drama broadcast over WLW, WTAM, WJR and WIL, St. Louis, Wednesday night. "Petrushka's Violin" is the title of the drama to be broadcast. An orchestra under William Stoess will provide the musical background. Stoess, by the way, wrote the theme song for the play. Each week the Kroger program will be built around some article of food.

The new Camel Pleasure Hour is scheduled over an NBC network, including KWK, Wednesday night, from 7:30 to 8:30. An elaborate program is being arranged. It will be sponsored by the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co.

Helen Kane, "Doc" Rockwell, Reinald Werrenrath, the baritone, Willard Robison, Mary McCoy, Billy Hughes and Charles Previn, the conductor, will be featured in the opening Camel program.

Mischa Elman's concert is scheduled for the R. C. A. Hour over KSD at 8 o'clock Thursday night. As is generally known, Elman is one of the really great violinists, and his tone has a fullness, and a sensuous richness that seldom have been equaled. He is to play a tango of his own; the "Prize Song" from "Die Meistersinger"; the "Hymn to the Sun," by Rimsky-Korsakoff; "Tschaikowsky's "Serenade Melancholique," and two other pieces.

Former Senator James A. Reed's speech before the Young Men's Jefferson Club at Sedalia, Mo., is to be broadcast over the CBS chain at 7 o'clock Saturday night. His subject is announced as "The Crime of Prohibition, the March of Monopoly and the Centralization of Government."

KFUO Notes—Friday, June 6, at 7:30 p. m., instead of the usual weekly Book Talk, KFUO will broadcast a new Sunset Service. This will be a devotional service consisting of sacred music, Scripture reading, a brief message and prayer. Since the Seminary closes June 3, a number of programs have been cancelled for the summer, including the noonday period at 12:15 p. m., and the weekday programs at 3 p. m.

A 120,000 watt broadcasting station being erected at Prague, Czechoslovakia, by an American company will be the most powerful in the world. Next in potential power are Russia's 100,000 watter at Moscow and Italy's 100,000 watter at Rome. Neither of the latter is employing more than 50,000 watts ordinarily, the power which is the maximum in use in the United States.

A number of missionary workers will take part in Paul Rader's "Breakfast Brigade" broadcasts over the CBS chain from 7 to 8 a.m. daily this week. They come from Tibet, Japan, South China, India, Africa and South America.

The opera, "Ombre Russe," by Cesare Sodero, famous in recent years for his work for the NBC chains, is to be sung at the formal opening of the Fenice Theater, in Venice, which has been designated by the King of Italy as the royal theater. The first performance of the opera, which was written 16 years ago, was in an NBC broadcast over KSD and allied stations.

"In recent experiments in Germany, the brains of living men and animals have been gently heated internally, above normal, by radio currents derived from high frequency vacuum tubes. It is not beyond conjecture that by 1940, big business offices may have special radio-frequency 'thinking chambers' into which high-powered executives may retire when faced with particularly puzzling problems," says O. H. Caldwell, former member of the Federal Radio Commission.

Transoceanic radio circuits handle 20 per cent of the telegraphic traffic across the Atlantic in competition with twenty-one cables. On the Pacific side, radio circuits handle 50 per cent of the telegraphic traffic, according to a National Radio Institute survey. Facsimile radio has just completed its fourth year as a commercial service. Letters, checks, drafts, contracts and other legal and business documents are flashed across the oceans in facsimile form.

Court Recognized as Super-Radio Board

The long-fought WGY case has resulted in a decision by the U. S. Supreme Court that, to all intents, the U. S. District Court of Appeals at Washington is a super-radio board and that its decision as regards radio cases are administrative rather than judicial and are not subject to review.

It is expected that the decision will result in a number of appeals from rulings by the Radio Commission.

Permit for Test of Radio on Fireboats

A wave short length has been assigned to New York City to use in experiments on a fireboat. A short wave transmitter and receiver will be installed on the fireboat for two-way communication.

If the tests are satisfactory, the city probably will equip all its 10 fireboats that guard the New York waterfront.

All-Star Program To Welcome Arizona Station NBC Net

Stars of radio will be heard Sunday night, June 8, when KTAR, Phoenix, Ariz., joins a National Broadcasting Co. chain.

The program will open from the NBC Washington studios with three-minute talks by United States Senators Henry F. Ashurst and Carl Hayden and Congressman Lewis A. Douglas, all of Arizona. This will be followed by a gala entertainment from the New York studios. The program will begin at 9:15.

Among stars who will be heard are Welcome Lewis, crooner; the Landt trio, harmony songsters; Muriel Pollack and Vee Lawnhurst, two-piano team; Mary McCoy, musical comedy favorite, and Marcella Shields and Helene Handin, who will do a skit featuring some phase of Arizona life. An orchestra under Hugo Mariani will play popular and classical music, as well as songs of old Arizona. A mixed chorus of 16 voices will also be heard. An operatic quartet, composed of Julian Oliver, tenor; Genia Zielinska, soprano; Elsie Baker, contralto, and Theodore Webb, baritone, will sing selections from operettas.

A detective drama series, entitled "Crimelights," is being broadcast by WLW at 9:30 Friday nights.

Mary McCoy, who has been singing in the Chase & Sanborn concerts over KSD Sunday evenings, is being featured in the Chicago production of "A Wonderful Night," an Americanized version of a Strauss opera. She sang the same role in the New York production.

Warner Brothers Seeking Dominant Position in Radio

likely, the Warner Brothers may go into the radio advertising. If not the radio broadcasting business, too.

In the meantime, a feud over musical copyrights has developed between Warner Brothers and the National Broadcasting Company's recently established music-publishing subsidiary, the Radio Music Co. The developments here again reveal a strong position the Warners hold in the popular music field.

Sparring for position in the home entertainment fields has not been confined to these shores, for the Warner agents are even now abroad for independent rights to foreign inventions in motion pictures, radio, phonograph, television and kindred fields. They have purchased the Nakken patents and have considered acquiring rights (if they have not already done so) to the Pacent and DeForest patents. Then, too, they have held discussions with Wired Radio, Inc.

The intense rivalry started when the Warners objected to being subjected to the technical domination of the "electrics," notably the Western Electric, a subsidiary of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., whose talking picture equipment they used when they introduced the talkies.

Restricted in developing their own technical facilities under the patent license agreement, they perfected a system of screen reproduction of their own. Now they are engaged in legal and technical combats with the other "electrics," but they are confident of their own ultimate success as a powerful independent rival of the A. T. & T.-General Electric-Radio Corporation of America patent group.

Max Schmeling Talks With Mother In Germany by Radio

Max Schmeling, waiting to make his bid for the heavyweight championship of the world, went to Schenectady recently from his training camp and, using the short wave facilities of WGY, chatted with his mother, Frau Amanda Schmeling, in Berlin, Germany.

The conversation was the first successfully attempted by an American broadcasting station with a German station. WGY used two short wave transmitters, W2XAD on 19.56 meters and W2XO on 23.35 meters. An engineer of the South German Broadcasting Co., at Stuttgart tuned in one of these stations and passed the words of the boxer on to Koenigwusterhausen, just outside Berlin, where Mrs. Schmeling heard her son's voice. Mrs. Schmeling talked to her "Maxie" through the new 31.38 meter station at Koenigwusterhausen.

WGY carried both sides of the conversation for its listeners.

Final Broadcast By Pupils on WEW At 3 P. M. Today

The children's program broadcast over WEW Saturday by pupils in the St. Louis parochial schools will be discontinued for the summer. Thirty programs, involving 1500 children, have been given.

The last of these broadcasts is scheduled for 3 o'clock this afternoon, when pupils from St. Anthony, Immaculate Conception, St. Joseph Home, St. Francis Xavier, Cathedral, St. Elizabeth (East St. Louis), St. Anne (Normandy), St. Lawrence O'Toole, SS. Peter and Paul, St. Margaret, Our Lady of Sorrows and St. Cronin schools, will assemble in the auditorium of St. Louis U. A feature will be the reading of two prize essays on "The Value of Health."

Hearing on Plan for E. St. Louis Station

The Federal Radio Commission has decided to hold a hearing on the application of the Daily Journal of East St. Louis for a permit to erect a 1000-watt station to operate on 640 kilocycles. It is probable that the hearing will not be reached on the docket until September or October.

The channel sought is that occupied by KFI at night, and by WOI, Ames, Iowa and WAIU, Columbus, O., until sunset Pacific Coast time.

Philco to Make Its Own Tubes—Majestic Plant to Go on 3700 Sets a Day Schedule Tomorrow—Trade Notes.

Majestic Daily Production to be Raised to 3700 Daily.

Declaring that the future looked bright for the radio industry, W. C. Grunow, president of the Grigsby-Grunow Co., announces that beginning tomorrow, his company will start manufacturing daily 3700 complet Majestic sets. "While the past six months have presented difficulties, the future looks bright and we are extending our operations, beginning June 2, when we will turn out 3700 complete new models every day," Grunow said.

Philco to Make Its Own Tubes.

The Philadelphia Storage Battery Co., manufacturer of Philco receivers, is going into the tube business J. M. Skinner, vice president, announced that Philco tubes will soon be available through Philco dealers everywhere. The decision to manufacture its own tubes is in line with the policy of balancing each article that goes into the Philco set.

L. J. Horan Named Manager for W. H. Dyer, Inc.

Larry J. Horan, whose experience in radio dates back virtually to its beginnings, has been appointed manager for Walter H. Dyer, Inc., Brown building. Horan formerly was factory representative for Steinite radio. Dyer, whose manufacturers' agency is one of the most widely known in the Middle West, recently was elected vice president and director of sales of the U. S. Radio and Television Co., Chicago.

Delco Radio Corp.

Radio in an automobile does much to ease the strain of a long drive, according to Lieut. Donald S. Leonard of the Michigan State Police, who has just returned to Detroit from a tour to Washington, D. C., New York and Philadelphia in a police patrol car equipped with radio.

Lieut. Leonard drove a state-owned car to Washington to testify before the Federal Radio Commission in support of the plea of Michigan for a license for a broadcasting station for the state police, which was granted. These cars are to be equipped with Delco automotive radio.

"Listening to a radio set on a long drive does much to relieve mental fatigue," said the Lieutenant. "We picked up musical and other programs throughout the trip. On a long drive there is always a tendency towards sleepiness, but with music coming in over the radio this is far less noticeable. All along the way we picked up programs from distant stations and were kept fully informed of news events.

"There is no tendency to distract the attention of the driver. In fact, if anything, radio in a car might be said to make driving safer, for it tends to eliminate conversation. Passengers are less inclined to talk to the driver when listening to a radio program. Back seat driving always has been a big cause of accidents."

Artists of Rank Form Jazz Quartet

Four concert musicians have organized the Jazz Strings Quartet to play when the Old Company Songalogue, formerly a Sunday evening Eastern station feature, takes a new time on Friday, March 7, on NBC.

Members of the quartet are Murray Kellner and Edwin Bachman, violinists; Lucien Schmit, 'cellist, and Herbert Borodkin, viola player. The two violinists are members of Mischa Elman's String Quartet. Borodkin plays with the Lennox String Quartet. For nine years Schmit has played in Walter Damrosch's Orchestra and has been first 'cellist for five years.

for making the station settings. Control buttons may be placed at several points in the home, making it unnecessary for the listener to be at the receiver to tune in different programs. The mechanical tuner will be found on the more moderate-priced receivers.

In the past manufacturers have built receivers to please the eye, but indications are that this year the ear is to receive the greatest consideration. Of course, cabinet beauty is not forgotten, but greater effort has been made to produce more faithful reception. In an effort to gain this point circuits have undergone improvements with the filter type coming into prominence in the higher grade receivers. The circuits are being made to produce higher values of amplification with greater stability, and better curves of response than in the past.

In the lower-priced field the audio amplifiers have been designed to produce more volume than some of the higher-priced receivers were capable of giving last year. Other set manufacturers now have obtained a volume that is said to be the exact reproduction of a large symphony orchestra.

The radio and phonograph joined hands some time ago and every line this year will offer one or more models of the combination radio and phonograph.

Although not much is being said in regard to the pentode tube, which caused a furor in the industry several months ago, reports declare that at least one manufacturer will have a pentode tube receiver on display.

Television still is in the background, pending the results of research work in laboratories throughout the country.

Another new type of receivers that has gained prominence this year and is likely to be widely exhibited is the automobile set. These are sensitive and have been designed to give reliable reception 200 or 300 miles from transmitters.

Monday, at 10 a. m., the RMA Board of Directors will convene. At 11 a. m. the first open meeting of the show will be held by the National Federation of Radio Associations. The rest of the day will be taken up with the trade show and committee meetings of the RMA, the Federated and the Radio Wholesalers' Association.

Tuesday, June 3, will be more or less Engineers' day, as the Institute of Radio Engineers will have morning and afternoon sessions. Dr. Lee De Forest, president of the I. R. E., will preside.

Wednesday, the first membership meeting of the Radio Manufacturers' Association will take place at 10 a. m., at which Gen. Saltzman, chairman of the Federal Radio Commission, will speak. President Richmond of the RMA will preside. Dr. Hugh P. Baker, trade association manager of the United States Chamber of Commerce at Washington, D. C., will be the only other speaker.

Also on Wednesday morning an open meeting of the Radio Wholesalers' Association will be held, with Harry Alter, president, presiding. At 10:30 a. m. the Board of Directors of the National Association of Broadcasters will meet. At 2 p. m. the Radio Press Association will convene, with President H. H. Corey in the chair. Sessions of the Radio Writers' Association also are scheduled.

At 5 p. m. Wednesday the trade show and all display rooms will close to make room for the annual RMA banquet. This will begin at 7 o'clock.

On Thursday morning at 10 o'clock the final membership meeting and election of officers of the RMA is scheduled. Committee reports for the year will be made and new officers and directors elected. The Radio Press Association will meet again at 2 p. m. and the trade show will be open from 1 p. m. to 10 p. m.

Friday the customary joint luncheon of the Board of Directors of the RMA, the N. F. R. A., the Radio Wholesalers' Association, the National Association of Broadcasters will be held.

Axel Leonard Astrom, minister from Finland to the United States, is to speak in a CBS chain Conclave of Nations broadcast at 1:30 this afternoon. Senator Shipstead, of Minnesota, will introduce him. Finnish music will be played.

KFDM, Beaumont, Tex., has applied for a power increase from 500 to 1000 watts. It operates on 560 kc. on the channel adjoining that used by KSD.

The Mark of Quality

FOR ten consecutive years all the winning cars in that classic of automobile racing, the Indianapolis 500 Mile Endurance race, flashed across the finish line on Firestone Tires.

IN FACT every famous driver in these races used Firestone Tires. Every one of them for years has refused to use any other and the reasons behind their choice tell a story of Firestone Leadership.

Leadership

Firestone brought out for automobile use:

—The first straight-side tire.

—The first rubber non-skid tread.

—The first commercial demountable rim.

—The first patented Gum-Dipping process.

—The first balloon tire.

Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires;

—hold all world's records on road and track for safety, mileage, speed and endurance.

—for ten consecutive years have won the 500 mile Indianapolis Endurance Race.

—were on winning cars in Pike's Peak Race—where a slip meant death.

—were on the Studebaker car which on a board track at Atlantic City in 1928 went 30,000 miles in 26,326 minutes.

—ran 71,351 miles on a Detroit taxicab, before the first tire was replaced.

—were on the G. M. C. truck carrying a two-ton load that hung up the Coast-to-Coast endurance record.

—for 10 years have been sold on a mileage cost basis to taxicab and bus lines in greater volume than any other tires, and now equip the world's largest taxicab fleet and the world's longest bus line.

THE Indianapolis Race requires the most expert driving in the world. It is won or lost on the turns. The man who can make the turns at the highest speed is the man who wins. The track is of rough brick and bumpy. As the race progresses, it becomes soaked with oil and very slippery.

DOWN the straightaways the cars pound at sometimes 150 miles an hour, but as the turn comes the driver must judge how much speed he can preserve and how much skid he can take and still stay in the land of the living. This judgment must stay with him through 500 miles—with changing track conditions, with nerves gone, with hands and body numb and with eyes blinded.

THESE men flirt with death, but there is one chance they will not take. They will not take a chance with tires.

THESE drivers buy Firestone Tires. Their tires are not given to them by Firestone, much less are they paid to use them. And herein is the story.

MANY years ago, Firestone did pay drivers to race. The most famous of these drivers was Barney Oldfield and he painted on his car: "Firestone Tires Are My Only Life Insurance."

IN THE course of time Firestone withdrew from racing and the making of racing tires. Then the trouble began. The leading drivers of the country said that it was Mr. Firestone's business whether or not he paid them to use his tires, but it was their business to judge the risks they would take. They would race on Firestone Tires, no matter what they cost, or they would not race at all. And so Firestone had again to make racing tires.

THE difference between a Firestone racing tire and the Firestone Tire you can buy from your dealer lies only in the tread. The heat generated in a tire during a race is terrific. It is heat that causes most tires to fail. The ordinary road tread will burn up on a track, and so for it Firestone substitutes a harder, lighter tread which would be exceedingly uncomfortable on the road but which perfectly answers the track requirements.

THAT, however, is only a detail. The reason why Firestone Tires stand up in any race is to be found in their construction—the same construction that you get in any Firestone Tire.

IN ALL tires other than Firestone, the cotton cords which go to make up the carcass of the tire are merely imbedded in rubber. In the complex twisting and pulling of these cords in a tire in action, the fibers in the cords rub against one another. The friction generates heat and when the heat reaches a certain point the tire collapses.

IN THE Firestone Tire, each of the millions of fine cotton fibers going to make up a cord is thoroughly insulated with rubber in the famous, patented Gum-Dipping process which is exclusive with Firestone. This reduces the friction in the cords and therefore reduces the heat and enables the Firestone Tire to perform normally under conditions where any other tire would collapse.

NO racing car can be better than its tires. Neither can any other car. The racing drivers trust life and victory to Firestone Leadership. That same leadership is available to you at all Firestone Dealers.

REFLECTIONS FROM PRIVATE LIFE

By Calvin Coolidge, Former President Of the United States.

Criticism Easiest of Tasks, but He Has No Inclination for It—Why He Will Never Again Be Candidate for Public Office.

By CALVIN COOLIDGE,
Former President of the United States.

WHEN I left the White House a year ago my main desire was to get home, where I hoped again to have the enjoyments of private life. I carried with me many offers of employment to which I had replied that I would consider them after I had retired from public office. I expected to take some kind of permanent occupation which I could decide upon at my leisure.

Although I was in excellent health, and felt greatly relieved at my freedom from governmental responsibilities, of course I found I was both physically and mentally considerably exhausted. I needed rest so much that it proved very hard to confer with all the people who sought to see me. Some, to my regret, had to be disappointed.

It soon developed, however, that I could not have all the pleasure of retirement that I had anticipated. Many messages came to me from all parts of the country. A large number of newspapermen and picture men appeared, each anxious for copy. I helped them all as best I could, but I saw them in groups, because I felt that such obligations as I had in that direction were still general, rather than individual, and that the only fair attitude was to treat them all alike by giving whatever I could to all the press to use if it so desired. I did not wish to give interviews, or to be quoted, but to furnish any information I could when it was sought. Naturally, I have also tried to avoid taking part myself in what appeared to me to be sensational and inconsequential discussions, although I have no power to prevent them.

An Autobiographical Urge in Retirement.

For a long time I have wanted to make some record of my early life in rural Vermont, and give some account of my entering the office of President and why I left it, because many of these details were known only to myself. It did not seem appropriate to publish these while I was in office.

After these articles were prepared it was apparent that, if the interval between them were filled in, it would make the sketch of an autobiography. It was my hope to produce a book that would not only have some historical interest, but would be useful for those in public life, in educational work, in preparation for citizenship, and would be especially a book that parents would wish their children to read.

As I was trying to give a description of some of my own experiences, that were oftentimes subjective, I have sometimes been thought to be lacking in good taste. Of course I was. Men in public life in this country are permitted to indulge in the luxury of good taste only moderately. Those who enter that field are forced for the most part to sacrifice their sensibilities.

But when I received a letter from a scholar, who is eminent in two continents, praising my book, which he said he had placed beside his Bible, I knew that the effort and the sacrifice I had made were not entirely in vain. I had contributed something, notwithstanding its imperfections, to the record of the story of my country.

This work was done before May, though the publication ran on into November. While many offers have come to me to enter journalism I have not done any further writing of consequence. Nor have I been willing to go about making speeches.

What I might do in journalism would be on the editorial side. I should be expected to supply criticism of the subject with which I have had most experience, which would require me to deal very largely with the affairs of government. I felt that would be distasteful to me.

When I left Washington it was because I believed my work in the Government service was done. I decided to withdraw from it entirely. All my contacts with it are severed, all my sources of information about it are closed, and I have no special knowledge of the facts concerning most current events which would enable me with any degree of certainty to discuss them. I have been unwilling, therefore, in these early days of my retirement to give interviews, make speeches, or write extensively about them because I wished to avoid being an officious intermeddler.

Would Not Hamper His Successor.

It is my theory that those who are charged with authority and responsibility should be the source of information concerning their own conduct.

Of course, our press and teaching forces, both lay and clerical, have certain duties to perform in these premises, but after a man relinquishes an office he should relinquish to his successors the privilege of constantly giving to the public his ideas concerning the way in which it is being administered.

While I have no intention to foreclose forever my right to comment, I have refrained from it, because if I did not discuss current public questions, it would be assumed that my opinions were unfavorable, and I have thought I could be of more service by leaving their discussion to those who had responsibilities in them. Those who have been chosen to lead should do the leading without outside interference. It is my desire to contribute to them my support.

There are some subjects about which I have some special knowledge or relationship and responsibility. I can more often discuss these. One of them is life insurance. Because I had assumed some duties in that field as a director of the New York Life Insurance Company, and because my experience with it and my studies of it convinced me that the influence which it exerts upon our economic life is so vast, important and beneficial that it should be more fully understood, I made a short address on that subject.

My speech was given a broadcast over the whole country by a large number of radio stations and was printed in many newspapers so that it reached a great many people. During the month of January in which it was delivered the company wrote about twice as much insurance as usual.

While my address probably contributed something to that result, most of the credit is due to Darwin P. Kingsley, who is one of the great insurance executives, and the highly efficient organization he has formed for securing and handling the business of his policy holders. When I can render some service of that kind I am willing to attempt it, but in general I feel it my duty to let those who have authority make their own public statements.

Criticism the Easiest of All Undertakings.

No utterance is quite so easy as criticism. Man is finite and his actions do not reach perfection. If a speech is made, if a book is written, if a law is proposed, if an office is administered, almost anyone can demonstrate that they are not just right.

Such comment probably furnishes some amusement and interest to the indifferent, and supplies a good deal of relief to the envious.

We have some people who have secured considerable reputations for wisdom and independence of thought and action merely by constantly proclaiming that they have made the astounding discovery that no person and no thing are perfect.

That field is so sufficiently occupied that I should have no inclination to enter it. My tastes and desires have always led me to attempt to work on the constructive side of affairs. There is a large amount of good in the world. It is possible to accomplish much by making the most of the instruments that are given us, even if they are not perfect. If we will all do the best we can with what we have, instead of stopping to find fault about it, progress will be assured.

Because I hold these opinions I have felt that I could not make political speeches since I retired. My whole training in that respect has been of a constructive nature. My effort has been to inform the people on what had been done, what I proposed to do, and my reason for doing it.

My speech was coupled with the power which some office conferred upon me to attempt to put into operation the policies which I announced. Because of my training, I now find that utterance without power seems vain.

If I began to make public addresses, especially on any political occasions, it would no doubt be assumed that I was desirous of more public office. I do not wish to resume that burden. In the companionship of my home, with my fishpole, my dogs, my books and my friends I find I am extremely content.

The only things I miss are the pleasures of entertaining my friends and the power to help many people who still apply to me for assistance. But even for these there are compensations in the many expressions of gratitude that come to me from the country, and in the relief from many years of responsibility.

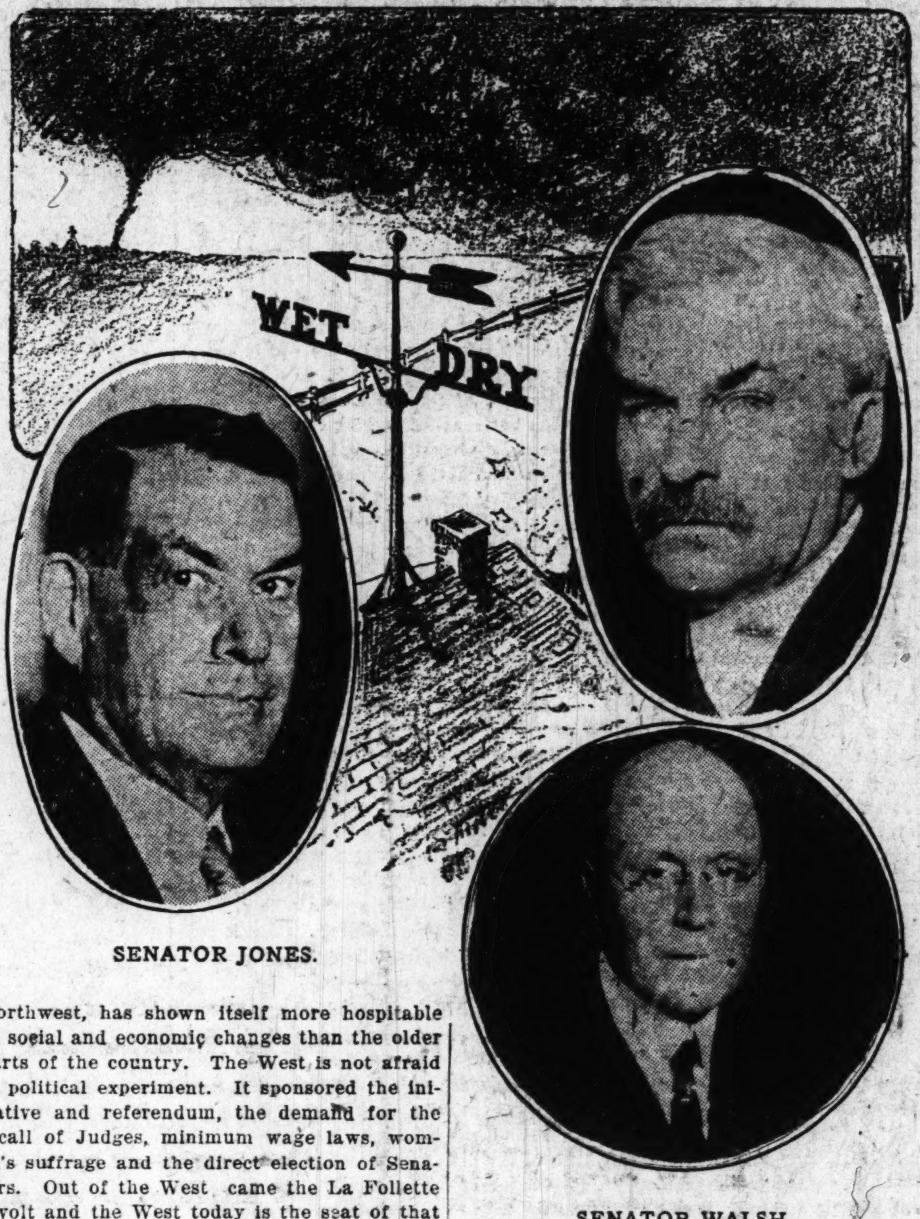
As long as I live and remain in Evidence Grows of Prohibition's Waning Tide

New Attitude of Three Dry Senators Prompts Thought That West Is Starting on Another Revolt

Walsh of Montana, Jones of Washington, and Oddie of Nevada, Whose Sincerity Is Not Questioned, Willing to Subordinate Personal Views If So Directed by Voters of Their States.

By Charles G. Ross,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 30.



SENATOR JONES.

SENATOR ODDIE.

OF all the multiplying signs and portents that a crisis is imminent in the fight over prohibition, none is more significant than the recently expressed willingness of at least three dry Senators of the Far West to vote for the submission of a repealer of the eighteenth amendment if their constituents so instruct. No other evidence of the growing strength of the revolt against the Federal dry laws, not even the large wet majority in the Literary Digest poll has so alarmed dry leaders at Washington.

Their apprehension is intensified by the fact that two of the three Senators—Walsh (Dem.) of Montana, and Jones (Rep.) of Washington—are among the outstanding men of the Senate both in character and general ability.

Both of them are personal as well as political drys.

Walsh, it will be recalled, was associated with the dry McAdoo campaign for the presidency in 1924, and he has remained a straight-out dry when it might have been to his political advantage to straddle the question. Jones is the author of the drastic five-and-ten law; he has long been one of the stalwart supporters of the dry cause against all attacks. Nobody questions the sincerity of the votes that these two men have cast for prohibition.

Oddie (Rep.) of Nevada, was the third man to indicate that he "will follow the mandate of his state when it is clearly defined." Oddie says he has never been a "fanatical" dry; he voted for the Jones law, on the ground that since prohibition was on the statute books it ought to be enforced, but he admits that the law is not to his liking.

Nevada's Changed Stand.

Oddie's attitude has been ripe for a change ever since 1926, when Nevada, voting on two questions: (1) Requested Congress to call a constitutional convention to revise or amend the eighteenth amendment; and (2) denounced the prohibition laws and declared they had failed of their purpose. The Literary Digest poll, which showed Nevada the wettest of all the states in the union, was another straw in the wind.

Oddie takes the position that it is the duty of a Senator to follow the clearly expressed will of his state in a matter of such grave public importance as prohibition. Up to 1926 his state voted dry. It has since voted wet. He will obey any clear mandate on the question.

Gibes at Senator Oddie or any of the other drys who may vote to submit prohibition to the people in response to a demand from their states are decidedly not in order from the wet side of the house. If the eighteenth amendment is to come out of the Constitution, it will be through the application of the theory of Senatorial responsibility which these Senators are espousing.

The alarm of the dry leaders at the position taken by Walsh, Jones and Oddie is partly rooted in an uneasy feeling that perhaps the West is again to go on a reforming rampage. The West, and more especially the Northwest, has shown itself more hospitable to social and economic changes than the older parts of the country. The West is not afraid of political experiment. It sponsored the initiative and referendum, the demand for the recall of Judges, minimum wage laws, women's suffrage and the direct election of Senators. Out of the West came the La Follette revolt and the West today is the seat of that disaffection which splits the Republican party in the Senate.

Power of the West.

The West helped materially to bring prohibition upon the country. Its leaders time and again have shown themselves peculiarly susceptible to the influence of popular opinion; as the political saying goes, they keep their ears to the ground. Is the old eager, reforming spirit of the West again to break out, this time in a crusade to supplant Federal prohibition with some better method of dealing with the liquor problem?

Time alone can answer the question. Perhaps the West, despite the unquestioned wetness of Nevada, Montana and Wisconsin, remains the bulwark of prohibition. Perhaps it is a mere coincident that Walsh, Oddie and Jones are all from that section. It is nevertheless true that their defection—if one can call it such—is peculiarly alarming to the drys because of the geography of its origin.

Jones, Walsh and Oddie should not be misunderstood. Some of the inferences drawn from Jones' statement went too far. He did not say that he would go wet if his State so directed. He said, indeed, in explaining his statement in the Senate, that if a proposition to repeal or modify the eighteenth amendment should be submitted to the people of his state, he would use his power to induce the people to vote against it. What he did promise was that if the people of the state, through a referendum, should ask Congress to submit a proposition repealing or changing the eighteenth amendment, he would vote for the submission.

Senator Walsh and Senator Oddie have taken the same position. Walsh is unquestionably a dry, and Oddie must still be counted in that category. All that they have promised to do thus far is to give the wets their chance.

"Is not that fair?" asks Jones.

The answer, in this writer's opinion, must be in the affirmative. What more could anybody ask of them?

Drys' Waning Power.

The stand taken by these Western Senators is only one of many indications that the anti-prohibition movement is on the upgrade. Jones' statement followed a wet vote in the State Republican Convention of Washington. Prior to that was the announcement of the striking wet majority given by the country as a whole in the Literary Digest poll. Evidence of the waning power of the Anti-Saloon League was found in the figures submitted by the league to the Senate's Lobby Investigating Committee, showing an ominous falling off in the league's collections. State referendums, beginning in 1926, had been won by the wets in Illinois, Wisconsin, Nevada, Montana, New York and Massachusetts, offsetting victories of the drys of North Dakota, Colorado, California and Missouri.

The vote in Montana was on repeal of the State enforcement code. Through the wet's victory, by a majority of more than 10,000, Montana got its place with the four other states which have no enforcement acts—Maryland, New York, Nevada and Wisconsin.

Morrow went to the heart of the question, he showed himself a realist. He called not for modification under the eighteenth amendment—a dodge by which some politicians have sought to straddle the issue—but for repeal of the amendment and the turning back of the problem of liquor control to the states. Coming as they did from a man of great distinction, the holder of high office under the present and the preceding Republican President, Morrow's words invested the repeal movement with new force and with added dignity. If the movement succeeds, Morrow will be entitled to credit as one of its major prophets—and that will remain true whatever may be the outcome of the Jersey election.

With Departure of Troops June 30 Germany Resumes Place as a Free Country, Wilhelm Marx Declares

Evacuation Five Years Before Date, Set by Treaty of Versailles Due to Liberal Policy of Government.

By WILHELM MARX,
Former Chancellor of Germany.

(Copyright 1930. All rights reserved.)

BERLIN, May 31.

THE evacuation by June 30 of the still occupied districts of western Germany is now assured and the German people look forward with jubilation and rejoicing to that day without, however, permitting themselves to give way to any Chauvinistic feelings. For 10 years the inhabitants of the western border districts have endured the foreign occupation. One must pay the highest tribute to the strength of character of the German population for it bore its heavy yoke with the greatest self-discipline so that apart from trifling occurrences there were no clashes between the natives and the foreign troops. Great appreciation is also due the German Government and political parties which very soon after the end of the World War took their stand with all their might for an understanding with France and the former Entente despite all nationalistic opposition. It is due to their wisdom that the occupation is now done away with five years before the date set in the Treaty of Versailles.

The whole of the German people have taken upon themselves heavy burdens, burdens which appear economically impossible to carry, in order to demonstrate their will to peace beyond all doubt and finally to win back full freedom in their own land. For long years, efforts have been continued without interruption finally to come to an understanding with their former opponents. Now under the agreements of the Hague Conference full control over the Reichsbank and the German railroads has been given back to the German people, the Reparations Commission has been dissolved and the Agent-General for Reparations has ceased his activities. And now Germany, although burdened with monstrous payment obligations can again take her place in the council of nations as a free country on an equal footing.

The Path to Peace.

But Germany's striving and the striving of all other civilized countries must be directed toward a higher and more important goal. The task now is to assure the peace of the world, the peace of all peoples, so far as this is possible for human minds and human might. Despite all the ridicule and all the sneers of certain circles that will always be with us, that part of humanity which is of good will will never lose sight of this goal, the only one worthy of humanity. But no one may take it amiss of the German people if they direct attention to the dangers that threaten to make it difficult to attain this goal. The peace of the world will not be assured until the monstrous injustices of the Peace of Versailles shall have been done away with.

The Saar question is the first one that must be solved if the spirit of peace is to prevail. It is true that France, after a long insistence by Germany has begun finally negotiations with the German Government concerning the return of the Saar district which is so valuable because of its industry and mines. The negotiations are being carried on in a dilatory and hesitant manner. It can be said with complete assurance that the whole German people are united in the determination to assume no further burdens in order to hasten the giving back of this district. But as has regrettably often been the case heretofore, the responsible statesmen of France lack in many cases the magnanimity and farsightedness that were formerly the pride of the French nation.

The peace of Versailles provides that in 1935 the inhabitants of the Saar shall decide by referendum whether the district shall belong to Germany or France. If France believes that she can use the Saar question for extorting further concessions from Germany, she is very greatly mistaken. There are all too many unambiguous proofs that the population of this district has always been German to the core and will remain so. There is absolutely no doubt as to the result of the referendum in the Saar district not even among those French who have been able to learn at first hand the sentiments of the inhabitants. The assertion by which President Wilson was deceived while the Versailles Treaty was being concluded that 150,000 French inhabitants live in this district was long ago demonstrated a swindle. The word is harsh but correct. It was only recently stated with justification that probably more French people live in Berlin than in the Saar district.

Another Open Wound.

Another open wound that must be healed if peace is to be assured for all time is the Polish corridor. I do not desire at this time to go into details regarding this. I can only repeat the request that as many foreigners as possible who come to Europe shall study the situation there at first hand. They will be forced to the conclusion that the conditions even in the economic interest of the whole world are incapable of enduring. The great province of East Prussia, once a flourishing district, is dying as a result of being cut off from the rest of Germany. The former intensive traffic between eastern and western Germany has been simply strangled; 12 railroad lines alone have been abandoned. Conditions are utterly intolerable and must in the not too far distant future be regulated differently, naturally through peaceful negotiations.

May 17 of this year, the day on which the decisions of the Hague Conference went into effect, is marked by a further happening which stands in the forefront of the world's interest and that can become undoubtedly of extraordinary interest and importance for assuring the peace of the world. I say expressly that it "can become" provided its future course be along lines of honest and earnest desire for genuine peace among peoples on the basis of the upright acknowledgment of the equal rights of nations. The incontestably politically gifted Briand submitted to the European states on the day of the ratification of the Young Plan his so often discussed scheme for a "United States of Europe." The diplomatic cleverness of this unique man has succeeded in making him appear the initiator and leading statesman in this question. His aim is, according to his own assertion that of pacifying Europe. But this aim is set up by the same man who a few weeks ago by his stubbornness condemned to a comparatively feeble result the far-seeing disarmament plans of President Hoover despite the fact that they had found a joyous responsive echo from the English people.

Briand's Intent in Doubt.

This was probably the reason why Briand's proposal received only a cool reception in England. In principle the plan can be regarded as excellent. But it will be necessary to learn more about its details which cannot thus far be clearly understood from the communication made to the states of Europe. Before coming to a final conclusion, it will be necessary to wait until the proposed conference of these states shall have thrown more light on the meaning and importance of the

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

Philosophical Inquiry.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

IT was a great day for civilization when materialistic scientists, having seen their atomic—ionic—electronic assumptions about matter toboggan into the humanly soundless sea of "energy," came to the scratch like the honest gentlemen they mostly were, freely acknowledging error and confessing that human nature has nonmaterialistic awarenesses concerning which neither science nor philosophy can establish fundamental contact. In other words, science "got religion"—in the sense that she erased her verboten mark from religion's door and stood aside for whoso chooses to enter.

If philosophy should now abandon her "full truth" objective, as her sister science has done, Demos would have only himself to blame for his lack of dogmatic rationale of democracy. Consider for a moment. For several generations past both scientists and philosophers have taught, and "best minds" have absorbed, the dogma of philosophic agnosticism which is reflected by such statements as, "Whatever you do, don't dogmatize," "Absolute knowledge is not possible for men," etc., etc.

In other words, these slogans exhibit the unwitting suicide of human reasoning: they imply that until human knowing has become superhuman (absolute) knowing no certain human knowing is possible. Utter nonsense, of course, for each human knows with maximum human certitude the fact of his own existence. Yet "best minds" (even such minds as that of William James, than whom perhaps no finer, all-round personality ever lived) fell for it. What wonder that so many educators were drawn into the pragmatism vortex!

If it were true that human beings can have no human certitude from which to reason about government then the collectivistic concept of the state would have as much, and as little, warrant as the individualistic concept. There has been no more dauntless and consistent defender of the individualistic concept than the Post-Dispatch. I can understand that you may hesitate to attack the agnostical bug in its den, but—must not Demos attack it, at last, or go completely under?

Henry Ford and the Tariff.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

THE only way the tariff could affect Henry Ford is as an importer, for he has factories in Ireland, England, Scandinavia, Germany and other countries of Europe; is building factories in Russia, and the Far East, and will be entirely able to supply the demands for his cars in Europe and Asia within a year or so. Also is he planning to build factories in South America, South Africa and Australasia.

Thus, within a short few years he will be ready to export from those countries to this country. The only thing about the tariff that could affect him is a duty on imported automobiles.

OWEN KEEFE.

Women Drivers.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

YOUR editorial statement that only 6 per cent of auto accidents happen to the 25 per cent of drivers who are women prompts me to offer a qualification that you seem to have missed. This fine statistical showing is in part at least assignable to the gallantry of men, many of whom, perhaps most, when they encounter a woman driver, very cautiously, but assiduously and with all possible dispatch, give her as much room as the law and the traffic allow.

As a consequence, a more sophisticated mathematical treatment of the problem becomes permissible. It is obvious that with three male drivers to one female, one in four of the drivers a given man encounters will be a woman. It is probable that very few auto accidents are bisexual, and that what accidents women do have that are not assignable to telephone poles or other unheeding obstacles to feminine prerogatives, are accidents with other women. If then most of these 6 per cent of all accidents are with the one-quarter of the drivers that women have access to, this is tantamount to having 24 per cent of the accidents out of 25 per cent of the opportunities. All the above in spite of the presumption that women have twice the reason to be cautious when they encounter each other that men have when they encounter women; which a priori should preclude all accidents between females.

I for one welcome a reasonable increase of women drivers, in the interest of safety. However, nothing in excess. If the time finally comes when practically every driver a man encounters is a woman driver, men may be expected to have many more accidents, due to the unavoidable complications of trying to escape accidents with so many women. It is thus probable that in auto driving as in other respects a 50-50 distribution of the sexes is inherently safer than either extreme.

G. H. BISHOP.

SENATE SEATS FOR SALE.

Joseph R. Grundy spent $338,000 as a contestant for the Republican nomination for United States Senator in the Pennsylvania primary.

Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick spent $252,000 in a similar canvass in Illinois.

Neither Mr. Grundy nor Mrs. McCormick showed any embarrassment, any "consciousness of guilt," in acknowledging such expenditures. Indeed, Mrs. McCormick was rather bland and insouciant as she explained that it was her own money she had expended. Mr. Grundy was somewhat ill at ease, there was a trace of nervousness in his manner, but no hint of self-reproach in his statement.

What of public reaction? Surely, no one has forgotten the popular revulsion which swept the country when Commodore Newberry was brought before the bar of the Senate, charged, in effect, with having attempted to buy a seat in that body, and convicted, morally, of having debauched the electorate of Michigan with the then unprecedented slush fund of $195,000.

The Senate, it will be recalled, whitewashed Mr. Newberry in an equivocal resolution which condemned the deed while exonerating the doer.

Declaring Truman H. Newberry "to be a duly elected Senator from the State of Michigan," the resolution went on to say:

> That whether the amount expended in this (Michigan) primary was $195,000, as was fully reported, or openly acknowledged, or whether there were some few thousand dollars in excess, the amount expended in either case was too large, much larger than ought to have been expended. The expenditure of such excessive sums in behalf of a candidate, either with or without his knowledge and consent, being contrary to sound public policy, harmful to the honor and dignity of the Senate and dangerous to the perpetuity of a free government, such excessive expenditures are hereby severely condemned and disapproved.

The Senate's verdict in this instance, as quoted, was undoubtedly confirmed by the court of public opinion. Proof of that assertion is recorded in the repudiation by their constituencies as, one by one, the "Newberry Senators" appeared for re-election. Proof, too, may be cited in the Senate's subsequent refusal to validate the tainted credentials of William S. Vare of Pennsylvania and Frank Smith of Illinois, that, in 1926, four years after the Michigan scandal, the Senate still held fast to its conviction as to the indignity and grave danger of such "excessive expenditures."

But the scale of expenditures has gone so far beyond the Michigan disbursements of 1922 as to make the Newberry budget comparatively virtuous.

In Pennsylvania's "Golden Primary," affluent euphemism for the shame of a sovereign State, Vare's established expenditures grossed $2,777,000, and Smith's Illinois adventure, at a total of $458,000, was largely financed by the public utility interests while the candidate continued in the office of chairman of the State Commerce Commission with the power to reward or punish the utility interests according to their generosity or delinquency.

Here we are now, in 1930, four years away from Vare's Pennsylvania orgy and Smith's Illinois conspiracy, with Michigan's errancy eight years in the past. And while Grundy was a modest provider, as compared with Vare, and Mrs. McCormick's primary bill is little more than half that of Smith, it is patent, we submit, that neither Mr. Grundy nor Mrs. McCormick has been at all admonished or restrained by the Senate's verdict in the Newberry case.

What of the Senate? Does it hold today, with the sentiment expressed in the Newberry verdict and exemplified by action in the exclusion of Vare and Smith, that such excessive expenditures are "contrary to sound public policy"; that such expenditures are "harmful to the dignity and honor of the Senate"; that such expenditures are "DANGEROUS TO THE PERPETUITY OF A FREE GOVERNMENT"?

The Senate must so hold. Any other construction were inconceivable. If the attempted purchase of a senatorship were an assault upon the honor of the Senate and a menace to the perpetuity of a free government in 1922, such attempted purchase is precisely as offensive and the same sinister threat in 1930. Mr. Grundy as a defeated contestant may have disappeared from the political realities of the situation, but Mrs. McCormick as the candidate challenges the Senate to disqualify her or to reverse its Newberry verdict and hand down the unthinkable opinion that seats in the Federal Senate are now for sale to the highest bidder.

SAD SUNDAYS.

Spasms of Sunday madness sweep over sections of the country on occasion, to the amusement of other regions for the moment more fortunate. It may seem a far cry from the intolerant New England days when a child so unlucky as to be born on Sunday was considered eternally cursed, but New Jersey reports earnest revivals of Puritan blue laws conceived in the same spirit. At New Brunswick, Section A1, laws of 1798, has been resuscitated, making it illegal to deliver bread or to kiss one's wife on the Sabbath. At Trenton, police last Sunday took the names of all persons who desecrated the Lord's day by playing golf or tennis, selling gasoline or cigarettes, operating busses or trolleys, or listening to nonsacred music on the radio.

In Missouri, the Sunday zealots aim chiefly at the operation of picture theaters. At Eldon, Mexico, Brookfield, Macon and other towns, Sunday movies in recent months have furnished hot controversies. New Madrid takes the blue ribbon for blue law enforcement. A Deputy Sheriff on a recent Sunday was unable to buy lemons for his sick wife until he presented a prescription; the prosecutor couldn't purchase his Sabbath cigar; one citizen's money, proffered for a magazine, was refused by a druggist; another, trying to buy food at a restaurant to take home, was rebuffed.

Not content with local triumphs, the reformers now have before Congress a bill, sponsored by Representative Lankford of Georgia, aimed at Sunday film and legitimate theater performances.

Sunday intolerance, an anomaly in a nation founded on a basis of credal equality, is a vestige of the zealot's feeling, not only that the day should be kept holy, but that the pastor should have no competition. Many persons do not care to attend church; others who do attend desire recreation after the service. Citizens, even the religious, do not wish to remain in a state of torpor on their only day of freedom from labor. The only way out is to refrain from making more blue laws and to repeal those already on the books. Mere nullification makes it possible for the bluenoses to revive the ancient thou-shalt-nots whenever fervor moves them.

ARE THEY AFRAID?

Indications increase at Washington that the champions of the Hawley-Smoot tariff bill do not relish the prospect of putting this monstrous piece of legislation to the test.

Referring the bill back to conference on a point of order could scarcely be regarded as anything but a desire to avert the evil day of voting. It is not the habit of majorities to be so meticulous as that. It is quite true that the conference ought not to introduce totally new matter into the bill, which it certainly did do when it proposed to make a law-making body of the Tariff Commission; but other legislative iniquities have sailed through stress and storm without having conscience thus obstruct them.

The opponents of the bill in the Senate are openly charging that those eminent tradesmen and opportunists whose creature this amazing tariff bill is are themselves trying to kill it. Both Senators Smoot and Watson deny this soft impeachment, but the reader does not need television to see that the Indiana Senator has his tongue in his cheek. He is terribly uncomfortable. There is none of the charming naivette of the Mormon elder about the Machiavellian Watson. The veteran of many a battle in the worst political cockpit of the Republic knows too well what the day of reckoning will bring. He saw another tariff, and one not half so evil as this, empty half the Republican seats in Congress when this delicate function of government was under the awkward aegis of Mr. Taft. If Senator Watson could sink through a trapdoor in the Senate floor when the roll is called on the Hawley-Smoot tariff he would go down with the benign expression of the dying martyr.

It is a grievous business into which Grundyism has led the Hoover administration, and it might call that day blest on which the Hawley-Smoot bill was slain by parliamentary finesse. The conference itself would be as good a place for the murder as any, and more than one practiced ear would testify that it heard neither blow nor outcry.

INTERIM PROTECTION.

Senator Hawes hits one prohibition nail on the head with his proposal to require $10,000 bond of each Federal prohibition agent to protect citizens against the acts of reckless officials.

This is a collateral point well worth carrying. The solution of the main problem is not yet, but meantime the victims of illegal search and seizure, the innocents beaten or shot, or, if they are killed, their survivors, should have cash redress which the law even now would allow them, but which they cannot collect because the guilty officials are, in fact, judgment proof. With the Senator, we say, make it possible to penalize official high-handedness.

ART IN DARK GLASSES.

When Jacques Gordon, concert master of the Chicago symphony, disguised himself as a blind man and sat down to play his violin on a street corner, he faced circumstances like those which bring out the cold perspiration in a musican's nightmare. The expectant hush of the concert hall was exchanged for the roar and clangor of a city street. The pianist's soft obligato gave way to a chorus of auto horns and trolley wheels. The attentive, appreciative audience was replaced by a stream of hurrying pedestrians, intent on business.

Yet Mr. Gordon was not just another blind fiddler like those pathetic unheeded mendicants scraping on busy corners. As the bow wrought melody from his Stradivarius, a crowd gathered. Thirty-six listeners gave him largess in a half-hour for his rendering of classics and spirituals. His takings totaled $5.74, which would run about $90 for a day, and that is nice money for even an incognito concert master.

The stunt was to settle a dispute—did the audience appreciate a master musician because he was a master or because they were expected to do so? Was his applause from a mass psychosis or individual praise? It was a grueling test for public taste. George Gershwin pounding a piano on a street corner would have stopped traffic, because jazz is nearer the level of the average, musically uneducated listener. But public appreciation of the classics and musical skill came through with banners flying. Though syncopation and saxophones may sweep the nation, art, even in a wig and dark glasses, will be heard above the din of machines and jazz.

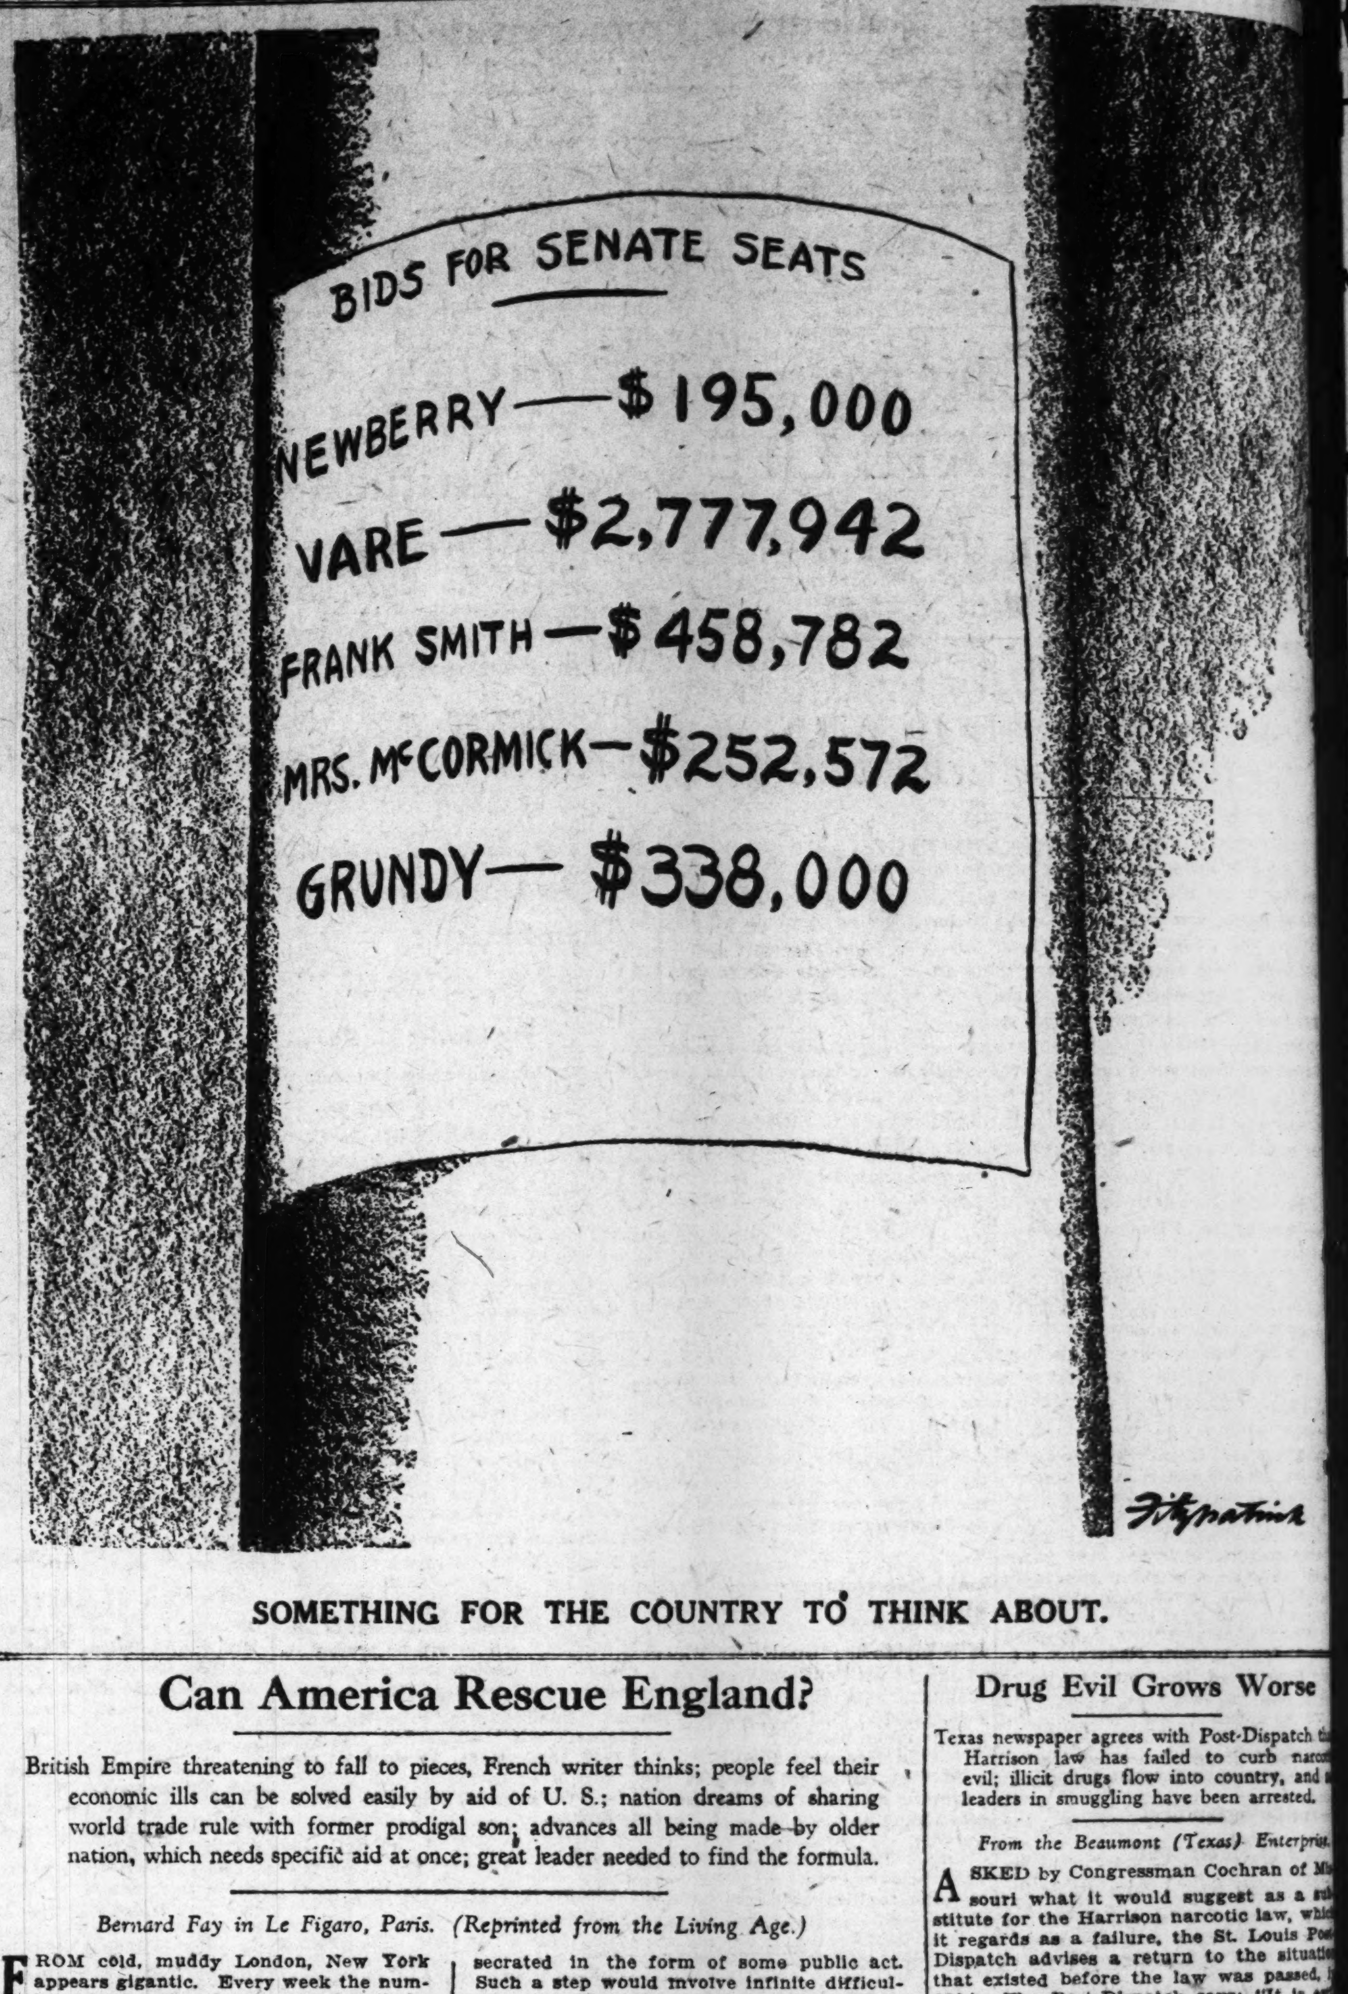
JACK HIGH'S RECORD MILE.

George Widener's 4-year-old colt, Jack High, set a new American record at Belmont recently, when he ran a mile in 1:35 flat, or at the rate of 39.7 miles per hour. Roamer's mark of 1:34 4-5, made at Saratoga in 1919, was accomplished against time, and is therefore not comparable with Jack High's performance. The competitive record for a mile had been Cherry Pie's 1:35 2-5, set seven years ago at Belmont. Cherry Pie, a 3-year-old at the time, carried 113 pounds, as against Jack High's 110.

Turf records are more stable than those in other fields of sport. Perhaps the most common turf event is at six furlongs, or three-quarters of a mile, yet the record for the distance, 1:09 3-5, set by Iron Mask, has stood since 1914. A year older is the record of two minutes flat for the mile and a quarter, set by Whisk Broom at Belmont in 1913. That was a truly dazzling performance because the Bonnie Scotland scion carried 139 pounds. The record for a mile and a sixteenth is seven years old, five and a half furlongs 16, mile and three-sixteenths 14, mile and one-eighth four years old. The record for the mile and a quarter Kentucky Derby has stood at 2:03 2-5 since 1914.

Man o' War, admitted the greatest race horse this country ever produced, holds records only for the two odd distances of a mile and three-eighths and a mile and five-eighths. But he ran at all distances at near-record time, carrying heavy weights, and won every race he ever entered save one. Incidentally, Man o' War's ancient rival, John P. Grier, if Man o' War could be said to have possessed a rival, sired Jack High.

Turf records probably would be broken oftener if owners were not content with winning races. Many potential record performances are spoiled by easing the pace in the last furlong when the leading horse has victory in sight. There is a good deal to be said for this practice, yet interest in racing as a sport, apart from its gambling feature, is stimulated by such magnificent feats as Jack High's.



SOMETHING FOR THE COUNTRY TO THINK ABOUT.

Can America Rescue England?

British Empire threatening to fall to pieces, French writer thinks; people feel their economic ills can be solved easily by aid of U. S.; nation dreams of sharing world trade rule with former prodigal son; nation which has always been made by older nation, which needs specific aid at once; great leader needed to find the formula.

Bernard Fay in Le Figaro, Paris. (Reprinted from the Living Age.)

FROM cold, muddy London, New York appears gigantic. Every week the number of unemployed increases, month by month the industrial and business depression keeps weighing England down more heavily, and the MacDonald Ministry, barely sustained in power by a divided majority, makes vain attempts to cure the ills of the country with Socialist remedies, agreeably administered and attractively concocted. Up to now, however, all efforts have proved unavailing. The mob and its leaders still dream of their trans-Atlantic cousins who lead such an easy life, who are all so rich, whose intervention could solve all the problems of the British Empire without causing them the slightest inconvenience.

The success of the Labor party at the last elections confirms this new orientation. Well informed politicians assert that English voters are for the first time following debates on foreign policy with passionate interest. The old British instinct of isolation, which includes a special attitude toward the continent of Europe, again appears to be the sovereign concern of the masses, who have been stimulated by America's example and by a secret hope that England can become like the young, rich and powerful United States by holding aloof from other countries.

Mr. MacDonald's visit to America, in spite of all appearances, was something very different from an oratorical exercise and an exchange of kindly sentiments. It reflected the feelings of the great majority of the British population, to whom it gave profound pleasure by arousing certain hopes, even though it did not fulfill them.

Isn't it a lovely dream—this picture of England reconciled forever with her former prodigal son, and sharing with this son a peaceful, assured rulership over all the oceans in the world, over all the raw materials in the universe, the major part of which these two great empires already own, as well as over the entire world's gold supply, that Wall street and the City are preparing to control? Attached to each other by a common language, by religious affinities, by racial traditions and intellectual tendencies, the two great English-speaking Powers ought not to have much difficulty in signing a pact that would stabilize the whole world.

In spite of the Anglo-Saxon habit of prudently maintaining a large hiatus between thought and action, many individuals on both sides of the Atlantic dream of such an alliance, and since 1919 it might have been accomplished had not enormous obstacles stood in the way. The domestic policy of the United States makes the official signature of such a pact impossible.

In spite of their Anglo-Saxon core, the American people represent a conglomeration of races that are always ready to quarrel with each other, and here lies the greatest weakness of the American Empire. German-Americans, Italian-Americans, Irish-Americans and Negroes accept the tacit supremacy of the Anglo-Saxons, but it would provoke these groups unduly if this superiority were formulated and consecrated in the form of some public act. Such a step would involve infinite difficulties as well as the political defeat of any party that attempted it. America can undertake to support a policy of rapprochement with England provided this condition is never made ostensible or specifically defined, for the new order will not tolerate any definite agreement.

This is why all the advances have had to come from the British side—and they have not been lacking. England has been lavishing kind attentions on America, but the moment is arriving when she is feeling the need of obtaining some results. The Egyptian crisis, which slackened the bonds between England and Egypt, has been followed by the crisis in India, and no one knows what will happen there. India has been increasing its duties on British cotton to such a point that the big Lancashire factories are in a dangerous condition. Australia is raising its tariffs. Canada, in its eagerness to obtain higher prices for its grain, is cutting down its imports and exports.

To put the matter in a nutshell, the British Empire threatens to fall to pieces. Economic co-operation between the various parts of the Empire is in a more dangerously weak condition than ever before, and all this is happening just when the mother country has the greatest need of her children's support. For all their fine appearance the English are growing disturbed.

The Empire program can have no meaning unless it marshals the new British Empire against America as if they were two distinct unities, rivals on the sea and rivals in business. Any closer unity between England and its dominions in the economic sphere will directly affect the United States, whose commercial relations with Canada and Australia are manifold. As for England, if she were to reduce her fleet appreciably at the very moment when she ought to be demanding new privileges from her dominions, that would be tantamount to severing relations with them completely.

Although America wishes England well she can only grant vague, discreet favors, whereas England needs immediate and specific assistance at considerable economic risk. This is the dilemma that has been haunting all the politicians who met in London under the pretext of promoting peace. Wisely and politely everyone tried to talk of other subjects, but it did no good. The last stage will be finding someone to take the blame, for the next elections will demand a scapegoat. But these elections, though they possess sovereign interest for the politicians, have ceased to concern the general public, as the business crisis has become too pressing.

Two great peoples are thus groping in the dark, trying to find each other. They do not lack good will or generosity, but they lack the great man who should be able to find the proper formula or invent some solution. Meanwhile, destiny looks on and laughs, and, through the fantastic fog of London, lowering like some phantom ship, the haunting vision of New York and all its lights looms up across the sea.

Drug Evil Grows Worse

Texas newspaper agrees with Post-Dispatch that Harrison law has failed to curb narcotic evil; illicit drugs flow into country, and no leaders in smuggling have been arrested.

From the Beaumont (Texas) Enterprise.

ASKED by Congressman Cochran of Missouri what it would suggest as a substitute for the Harrison narcotic law, which it regards as a failure, the St. Louis Post-Dispatch advises a return to the situation that existed before the law was passed, in 1914. The Post-Dispatch says: "It is estimated in the Federal Courts that there are 10 times as many drug addicts now as there were then. Cocaine and morphine sell legitimately for $15 an ounce. Before the law anybody could buy them at drug stores which cared to handle narcotics. The effect of the law was to put these drugs into the hands of peddlers. Peddlers carry cocaine and morphine into highways and byways, thrust them under the noses of the people and sell them at $1 a grain, or $375 an ounce."

The Post-Dispatch does not mean that the drug evil can be mitigated by returning to former conditions, but would repeal the Harrison law and make a new start. If it were possible for drug addicts to buy narcotics at a reasonable price from drug stores, profiteering peddlers would be put out of business and one of the most pernicious forms of drug peddling, the distribution of narcotics among school children, could be stopped.

But what about the drug addicts themselves? The ease with which they could obtain drugs, and the cheapness of the price, might rapidly increase the number of addicts in the country, since drug addiction is not always the solitary vice it is supposed to be. A good many young people are led into drug addiction by the example of friends or chance acquaintances. The worst orgies known in the United States are drug orgies, in which addicts of both sexes participate.

It might be dangerous to make the obtaining of narcotics comparatively cheap and easy, compared to the present system, which at least makes the drug habit terribly expensive. But no one will assert that the present system is a success. The Harrison law has not solved the drug problem, nor even made any appreciable progress in that direction.

Illicit drugs continue to pour into the United States and no one knows the exact number of drug addicts. It has been estimated that there are at least a million or more, with new recruits being made every day. And it is also said that, notwithstanding efforts made by the Federal Government to curtail drug smuggling, none of the heads of the drug smuggling syndicates has ever been arrested.

That there are such organizations and that they bring quantities of narcotics into the United States there is no reason to doubt. The country caught a glimpse of drug smuggling on a big scale when police and Federal agents began to delve into the private affairs of Arnold Rothstein.

Three European countries manufacture most of the narcotics, and there seems to be no way by which the smuggling of drugs can be broken up, so long as drugs are procurable by the smugglers. Students of the drug evil, which is one of the worst afflictions of the human race, declare that drug addiction and drug smuggling will never be halted until the sources of supply are strictly regulated—until the manufacture of narcotics is limited to legitimate requirements.

REED TO REVIEW HOOVER RECORD AT SEDALIA RALLY

Missouri Democrats Are Preparing for 50,000 Visitors at Barbecue Next Saturday.

PROHIBITION LIKELY TO BE DISCUSSED

Effort Expected to Be Made to Lead Party to Support of Wet Cause Nationally in 1932.

By CURTIS A. BETTS

Arrangements were completed yesterday for a Democratic barbecue in Sedalia next Saturday, at which former United States Senator Reed will be the outstanding speaker in a Democratic review of the record of the Hoover administration, and, presumably, in a spirited discussion of prohibition.

If the expectations of the promoters of the meeting, which is under the auspices of the Young Democrats Jefferson Club of Missouri, materialize, the affair will be the largest Democratic gathering in the history of the State, with the possible exceptions of the John W. Davis barbecue in Bunceton in 1924 and the Smith meeting in Sedalia in 1928. The plans contemplate taking care of 50,000 persons.

Included in the arrangements is a national broadcast of the speech over the Columbia chain at an expense of nearly $5000.

What Meeting May Mean.

Although the affair publicly has only the aspects of a Democratic gathering, with speeches in the afternoon by State leaders followed by the Reed speech at 7 o'clock in the evening as the climax, some Democrats of prominence see as a logical outcome of the affair an effort to lead the Democratic party nationally to the wet cause and Reed as a possible candidate for the 1932 presidential nomination on a wet platform.

While officially it is announced that Reed will review the record of the Hoover administration, it probably can be taken as a certainty that a considerable part of the speech will be devoted to prohibition, with Reed advocating the repeal of the eighteenth amendment and the substitution for it of a modified form of handling the liquor question.

It was at a similar meeting in Sedalia in 1927 that Reed started his hopeless campaign for the 1928 presidential nomination. The Smith movement, however, had progressed so far that Reed was unable to make headway.

In Excellent Health.

In that campaign Reed did not advocate repeal of the eighteenth amendment, or make the liquor question a campaign issue. The change which has taken place since 1928, however, and brought to public attention through the Literary Digest poll, is looked upon by many leading Democrats and Republicans as virtually certain to make prohibition the outstanding issue in 1932, and many Democrats look upon Reed as the logical figure to lead the cause of repeal or modification.

Though somewhat beyond the age of most presidential aspirants, Reed is in excellent health and apparently as vigorous as at any time in his life. He is 68 years old.

Arrangements for the meeting have been in charge of James Pendergast of Kansas City, president of the Young Democrats Jefferson Club; Ed S. Villmoare, Kansas City; Col. Carl Ristine, Lexington, and Elmer O. Jones of La Plata. The speech will be in the livestock pavilion of the State Fair.

Former Gov. Gardner, former Gov. Major and Senator Hawes have been invited to speak in the afternoon. Candidates for Democratic nominations for the State offices and for Congress also will be allotted speaking time in the afternoon.

Reflections From Private Life

normal health no doubt I shall continue to be discussed as a candidate for some public office. No sooner had I reached home than it was proposed in some of the press that I should try to go to the Senate. Every little while some one suggests that I should again be President.

These efforts come for the most part from sources that are friendly to me, but not from those who have my confidence.

So far as I know my close friends who know my wishes are in no way responsible for them. I have tried to avoid giving them even the countenance of notice.

They will no doubt persist. If I were to make formal denial of them they would reappear in a few days under the assumption that my attitude for some reason had changed. For that reason I have simply ignored them.

When I left Washington I left public office. It is an incomprehensible relief and I have no intention of returning to it.

While I am not insensible to the compliment that is implied in expressing a desire to see me in the Senate, it does not appeal to me as appropriate. Every honor that comes from public office I have already had. I do not seek further honor in that avenue, nor do I wish to assume the burdens that it would entail.

It is not to be denied that I owe much to my party and my country, but that debt makes it all the more obligatory that my conduct and decisions in their behalf should be in accordance with my best judgment. It does not seem probable that I could be helpful in trying to assume a subordinate public office.

I am aware of the example of John Quincy Adams and of Andrew Johnson. Their retirement from office was such that they may have felt that they wanted vindication at the hands of the voters. That is not my position. For me to go about soliciting votes, for my friends to be appealing for support, in order that I might have more office, when I have already had enough, would not be a pleasing spectacle. Massachusetts has plenty of men who can serve her in the Senate better than I could. If the commonwealth wants able service I see no reason for assuming it must turn to me.

As Senator Foresees Many Embarrassments.

If I were in the Senate it would not be agreeable to many of my colleagues, and with all my desires to be helpful it would probably oftentimes be an embarrassment to the administration.

To have a former President in Washington exercising political power would result in all kinds of uncomfortable complications. Only the necessity of serving in some national crisis, so great as to subordinate all other considerations, would warrant it.

Yes I do not mean to underestimate the Senate or the honor that still attaches to its membership. In its conception it is a great independent, legislative body and a citadel of liberty.

No one could feel above serving in that branch of the Congress. But I do not feel it is a proper place for me.

I passed to a higher rank 12 years ago when I was elected Governor of Massachusetts. To take a back track now would be to give up a position which I believe it is important to the country for a former President to hold.

In my judgment I am not available for Senator. It would involve me in so many incongruities that success in that field would be nearly impossible.

While I do not share altogether the prevailing lack of esteem in which the Senate is held, I fully realize the need of sending to that Chamber men of ability, character and training. For that reason I have rejoiced in the report that Dwight W. Morrow, our Ambassador to Mexico, will stand as a candidate for the election.

If I were in his place I might be willing to adopt a like course. But I am not, so I am going to suggest to those who are discussing the need that they believe there is for me, that he can provide more talent than I could and exercise it in a more effective way. A sound business man, a scholarly lawyer, a wise statesman, he is eminently qualified to discharge the duties of any public office.

Nor do I have any sympathy with those who are discussing again making me president. The service that I could give to the people in that office I feel is done.

I sought to provide a period of tranquillity, certainty and economy, under which the country could recover from the exhaustion of the World War; when it might liquidate its debts and develop its resources, so that it would be in a sound financial position from which to enter the next era of progress.

The people turned to an efficiency engineer who is thoroughly equipped to guide them in such a movement. Of course, President Hoover is entitled to my sympathy and support.

KANSAS CITY DEMOCRATS SEEK POLICE HOME RULE

T. J. Pendergast, Party Leader, Hopes to Achieve It With Democratic Legislature.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 31.—T. J. Pendergast, leader of the Democratic party organization here, today told 16 ward leaders at a conference that Kansas City Democrats have as an objective at the next session of the Missouri General Assembly a law granting Kansas City "home rule" of its Police Department.

Meeting to discuss plans for the Democratic State rally next Saturday at Sedalia, the City Democratic ward leaders heard Pendergast tell them of the Democrat hopes "to make the next General Assembly Democratic."

"The hope is," Pendergast said, "to get a police home-rule bill through. If that could be accomplished, I believe many of our troubles would be at an end."

ONE-YEAR SCHOLARSHIPS AWARDED BY HARVARD CLUB

Richard Bach of Roosevelt High and Philip Beam, Washington U. Freshmen Are the Recipients.

Scholarships at Harvard University have been awarded by the Harvard Club of St. Louis to Richard Buch, 4006 De Tonty street, a senior at Roosevelt High School, and Philip Beam, 6651 University drive, University City High School graduate and a freshmen at Washington University.

The scholarships are not awarded to the highest ranking applicant in all cases, but to ambitious students with high scholastic rating who cannot afford to go to college, it is explained by William S. Bedal, chairman of the Scholarship Committee of the club. Other members of the committee are Edward C. Knight and Lewis M. Dougan.

The scholarships are for one year and amount to $550, or about half the amount required to pay their expenses at the school. The experience of the club during the 30 years the scholarships have been awarded, indicates, Bedal says, that if such youths are assisted financially in their freshmen year, they will arrange to work their way to a degree.

REGISTRATION OF VOTERS IN ST. LOUIS COUNTY JULY 1

144 Precinct Polling Places Will Be Open From 9 A. M. to 9 P. M.

An intermediate registration of voters will be held in St. Louis County July 1. The 144 precinct polling places will be open from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m., to enroll voters who have reached the age of 21 since the last general registration, in 1928, or who have moved into the county since then.

Residents of the county who have moved from one precinct to another since the general registration may have their names transferred on the books. This must be done by calling at the Election Board office in the courthouse at Clayton, by June 24.

The Election Board has directed the 864 men and women who will serve as judges and clerks in the precincts for the registration and elections this year to attend gatherings for instructions in their work, an innovation. The officials will attend the most convenient meeting. The first will be at the Clayton Courthouse at 7:30 p. m., June 17, the second at Ferguson at the same hour on June 18 and the last at Afton at the same hour on June 19.

Secretary Sanders of the Election Board said plans were made for a careful check of the registration to prevent fraudulent voting.

programs and unclear text. What, for instance, is the meaning of the sentence, emphasized as the "leading thought," to the effect that the "introductions of federated relations striven for among many European states cannot in any cases or in any manner derogate from any one the sovereign rights appertaining to the member states of such a union?" If that is to be taken as meaning that the borders established by the Versailles Treaty are to be maintained in all circumstances and that, therefore, there can be no thought of doing away with the Polish corridor, then the actual attaining of the goal set, namely, the bringing of peace to Europe, would be rendered impossible in advance. It is absolutely necessary to make this clear at the outset.

If, as now appears probable, England does not participate in any manner in the proposed conference, and if perhaps Italy also, already obviously deeply offended by France's stubbornness at the London conference, should likewise hold off, the plan would then be hopelessly lost from the beginning. In my opinion, however, the German Government must declare its willingness in all circumstances to take part in further discussions. As I have earlier stated on different occasions, I believe that one condition must be strictly adhered to if the goal of general peace is actually to be reached. The union must not in any manner be directed against America; its principles and its aims must plainly and clearly be set forth in an exhaustive discussion among nations if the justified mistrust existing today and especially in Germany, is to be fully done away with.

Only by completely forgetting the ideas and plans to which Briand has so determinedly clung can one fail to perceive the direct continuation of Franco's consistently maintained political attitude of the last years in the emphasis laid on the statement that "every possibility of progress along the way of economic union is strictly determined by the question of security and this question itself is closely bound up in that of the progress attainable in the way of political union." There has hardly been a single political discussion of any importance in the last years at which it did not emphasize with all saliency the question of security, and first of all, if naturally, of France's security. Was it not precisely on this principle of French policy that America's and England's disarmament plans were shipwrecked? The unfortunate and fully unjustifiable mistrust which France has so often exhibited in the last decade especially against Germany is the greatest obstacle that exists to opening the way for peace. Peace among nations cannot be furthered by conferences if one goes to all those negotiations thus inwardly opposed. If we really want world peace, it can be achieved only with magnanimity, frankness and mutual confidence.

Germany has so often and so unambiguously demonstrated this spirit that no one may longer cherish any doubt of it. We will hope that the future conference of European states will find this same spirit present on every side together with the firm determination to bring about peace of the world to the utmost possible extent.

GAIN IN RETAIL TRADE DURING APRIL REPORTED

However, Improvement in Industry Fails to Continue, Federal Reserve Review Says.

With the exception of retail trade, which showed a substantial gain, the slight improvements in business and industry during March failed to continue in April, according to the Federal Reserve report for the Eighth District. Reports covering the first half of May show little improvement over April.

An important factor in the April gain in department store sales, the report states, was the fact that Easter was unusually late and much shopping ordinarily done in March was carried into the following month.

Net sales of department stores increased 9.8 per cent over sales of April, 1929, in the district, St. Louis stores reporting a 12 per cent gain. There was an increase of 32.3 per cent in men's furnishings, 6.2 in boots and shoes, 13.8 in women's ready-to-wear and 17.7 in read-to-wear accessories, although home furnishings and piece goods showed decreases. The four months ending April 30 showed a decrease of 5.3 per cent compared to last year, the St. Louis decrease being 3.8.

Memphis alone, of cities in the district, showed an increase in permits for new construction, although it issued fewer repair permits than in April 1929, while several other cities reported increases. St. Louis issued 456 permits for new work to cost $2,233,000, while in April, 1929, 690 permits for $3,730,000 were reported. In the district 1685 permits for $5,910,000 were issued this April, and 1894 for $6,874,000 a year ago.

April sales in a majority of wholesale lines were sharply below those of the same month a year ago, and also under those of preceding months this year. Dry goods, millinery, clothing and boot and shoe interests attributed decreased volume to price uncertainty and unseasonal weather. Although retail stocks are small, merchants show hesitancy in replenishing them. Purchasing in the country was held down by depreciation in values of agricultural products, although, because of favorable weather, farmers are ahead with their work.

As a whole, the employment situation was unchanged, demand for outdoor workers offsetting increased idleness caused by curtailed schedules in industrial plants.

Freight traffic continued to run below that of last year and passenger traffic on reporting roads was 9 per cent smaller than in April, 1929. The Terminal Railroad Association interchanged 211,707 cars for the 28 connecting lines served, as compared to 241,881 in April last year. Tonnage of the Federal barge line between St. Louis and New Orleans, however, was the largest since November. April tonnage was 100,700 in the same month last year, 134,747, and in March of this year, 71,087.

Distribution of automobiles decreased in comparison with the preceding month and a year ago and activities in the iron and steel industry slowed down slightly. With the exception of February, every month since last August has shown fewer automobile sales than during the corresponding month a year earlier.

Collections were slightly improved over March but were slower than last year.

Commercial failures in the district numbered 128, involving liabilities of $4,114,163 in April as against 133 failures in March with liabilities of $2,419,565, and 116 failures for a total of $1,992,933 in April 1929.

DISPLAY OF PAINTINGS OF VIEWS FROM PLANE

Exhibition of Kansas City Woman's Work Opens at Museum Today.

St. Louis' first exhibition of paintings of scenes viewed from an airplane will open today at the City Art Museum in Forest Park. The work is that of Ilah Marian Kibbey, for the last 10 years a member of the staff of the Kansas City Art Museum. Miss Kibbey says she realized the possibilities of paintings interpreting the earth as seen from the air, on her first air flight which took her from Kansas City to St. Louis by way of Tulsa, Ok.

"The prairies of Kansas and Oklahoma became a series of rapidly changing landscapes," she says, "swept into tremendous schemes of color and design. I tried to put on canvas my impressions of a perspective that consists not of minute local objects, but of the vastness of earth and sky. As it had not been done before, I could paint rapidly, not being bothered by anyone's interpretation."

Miss Kibbey has studied in the East and exhibits throughout the United States. The air collection was first shown in May in New York.

The titles of the oils are: "The Jeweled Fields of Spring," "The Flattened Hills of the Ozarks," "Over Ozark Village and Stream," "A Kansas Tapestry," "The Emerald Pools of the Ozarks," "Landing at the Municipal Field, Kansas City," "Over the Snowclad Hills," "On Over Kansas Fields and Towns," "Cloud Shadows on the Plains," "The Silvery Stream," "Flying High Over the Snow," "A Dramatic Landing at Kansas City" "A Missouri Stream" and "Earth and Sky."

The water colors are: "Over Kansas During the Harvest," "Thirty Minutes From St. Louis From the Air," "Landing at the Municipal Airport, Kansas City," "The Flattened Hills and Towns of the Ozarks," "Winter in the Ozarks—Flying High," "The Emerald Pools of the Ozarks," "Malachite," "Over the Airport, Kansas City," "Flying Over the Melting Snow," "A Fifteen-Inch Snow From a Plane," "In the Shadow of the Plane," "Flying Into the Sunset," "Cloud Shadows," "Seeing Kansas From the Air," "Over the Strip Mines at Collinsville, Ok.," and "Autumn." There also are six pastel impressions.

The exhibition will continue for a month.

MacNider Appointment as Minister to Canada Otherwise in Clear.

WASHINGTON, May 31.—The way seems clear for confirmation of Hanford MacNider of Iowa as United States Minister to Canada, but the Senate Foreign Relations Committee is withholding action to hear from Senator Brookhart (Rep.), Iowa.

Brookhart and MacNider have been political enemies, although both are Republicans. It is admitted that if Brookhart objects a serious contest will result.

SANTA FE SAID TO PLAN POPLAR ST. FREIGHT DEPOT

Railroad Reported to Have Bought or Placed Under Option Area Between 14th and 16th Streets.

C. E. VROOMAN BUYS RIALTO BUILDING

Investors Acquire Sites East of Third, in Hope of River Front Improvement.

By Berry Moore

It is reported from a reliable source that the Santa Fe Railroad Co. has purchased, or placed under option, with one or two exceptions, virtually all of the land on the South Side and a number of the holdings on the north side of Poplar street, between Fourteenth and Sixteenth streets. Acquisition of this property has been made during the last two or three years, it is said, with James M. Franciscus of the Franciscus Real Estate Co., handling the negotiations.

The property reported as acquired on the south side of Poplar street includes the former holdings of the Leathe estate, approximately two blocks, lying immediately north of the Terminal Railway yards in the Mill Creek Valley. Negotiations are pending, it is said, for the Bob parcel, sandwiched in between the Leathe tracts, which speculators have sought for the last 20 years, with a view to reselling it for railroad purposes at a large profit.

An ordinance was recently passed, providing for the vacation of Poplar street, together with alleys, between Fourteenth and Sixteenth streets, to provide, it is reported, for a freighht depot for the Santa Fe, to occupy both sides of this thoroughfare between Fourteenth and Fifteenth streets. The depot project is in abeyance, it is said, pending suit instituted by the Arcadia Realty Co., attacking validity of the ordinance.

Property Holders Interested.

The Arcadia company owns property in this section north of Poplar street, which, it is contended, would be affected adversely by the closing of the street. Other property holders in the section are said to sanction the suit.

The Santa Fe is ready to go ahead with plans when it is known definitely that the ordinance will not be annulled.

According to real estate men, the Santa Fe had the block bounded by Twelfth, Spruce and Poplar and Thirteenth streets under consideration as a site for a downtown passenger station, with plans for ultimately entering St. Louis on its own tracks. This site has been acquired for an 18-story merchandise mart to be built by the Terminal Railroad Association.

As has been told, the Mart was projected by a syndicate headed by Charles E. Richardson, which, after acquiring the site, surrendered the project to the Terminal. It was provided, however, that the operation of the Mart should be assumed by the syndicate, which incorporated as the St. Louis Mart, Inc., will occupy the building under a long lease at an advantageous rental.

It was stated yesterday that many well-known concerns had made application for space in the Mart, designed for the display of all kinds of merchandise, especially the output of local manufactories and wholesale houses. It is planned as a mecca for buyers, with complete storage and railroad facilities.

Transactions and negotiations initiated for property in the business centers marked the closing week of the spring season.

Sale of Rialto Building.

A feature of the week was the purchase by Claude E. Vrooman of the fee to the Rialto Building property of the southeast corner of Fourth and Olive streets. It was sold under foreclosure to secure a $270,000 bond issue of the Germania Realty Co., a holding corporation, with the Mississippi Valley Trust Co. as trustee, in 1892, to erect the building, one of the first of its type in St. Louis.

The structure, 10 stories in height, has a lot frontage 83 feet on Fourth and 90 feet on Olive. The street floor is occupied by the Francis Bros. & Co., and the upper floors as offices. It has both passenger and freight elevators and was recently remodeled.

Made subject to a 99-year lease, held by the Rialto Building Co. at a yearly rental of $9500, the sale does not reflect the full value of the property. It is understood Vrooman has declined a handsome profit on his investment.

Vrooman made the purchase. It was announced, as a speculative investment, inspired by the belief that this part of the city is to witness revived activity.

It is understood that the St. Louis Southwestern Railroad (Cotton Belt) plans to take possession July 1 of its new quarters in the Planters' Building, Fourth and Pine streets, comprising two entire floors for its general offices, a part of the basement, and one of the first floor offices on Fourth street for local offices.

Third Street Sites Acquired.

As has been told, a group of investors is acquiring various sites east of Third street in the downtown region, where they can be had on favorable terms, in the belief that the proposed river front improvement will become a reality within the next decade.

Market conditions are now favorable for buyers in a large part of the river front tract, much of the property offers a good investment for present and possible industrial use, aside from the possibility of condemnation value for improvement purposes.

Baxter L. Brown and E. B. Fay, engineers, stated at a recent hearing before the Board of Aldermen that the widening of Third street would be a necessary part of the plan for opening ohe upper deck of Eads bridge as a free public highway. Pressure for the acquisition of the Eads Bridge highway is expected to bring the Third street improvement to pass within a few years.

INTEREST SHOWN IN U. CITY HALL BLOCK

Henry R. Weisels, Inc., reports decided interest on the part of retail business interests as well as speculators in the former University City Hall block on the south side of Delmar boulevard just west of the city limits, formerly owned by Nathan Frank, former Congressman, which the real estate concern is advertising for sale or lease. It has rented 100x160 feet, the west part of the block, for golf grounds pending final disposal. The property has a frontage of 60 feet onDe lmar boulevard with a depth of 160 feet.

Buildings, in addition to the City Hall structure in the center of the block setting back from Delmar, include the engine house occupying ground on the east side of the premises on Delmar. It was given a valuation of approximately $1000 a front foot. Obviously it is destined to become the site of a large retail block.

As has been told, this block has been traded for the Woman's Magazine Building, a six-story octagonal structure on Delmar boulevard just within the entrance of University City, dominating the city from a high elevation.

The City Hall offices, with records, etc., are being removed to the new building. The jail is to be installed in the basement of the octagonal building, while the engine house is to occupy space in the one-story extension on the north.

NEW SPANISH HOME
MUST BE SOLD $13,750
This is a perfect Spanish residence—opposite a select West End country club—built by an architect for his own home.

On the first floor is the enormous studio living room, the Moorish dining room, the California-style kitchen, with its 10-foot double drain sink, its built-in cabinets, and the breakfast room with its Pullman breakfast equipment.

The second floor consists of 2 southern exposure bedrooms, and a very spacious bath with shower, and built-in linen chest.

When you see the textured walls, finished in oil, the hand-wrought metal electric fixtures, the beautiful architecture of the exterior, you will realize that this house has every feature of a large home that would sell for $35,000.

This home, that has just been vacated and open today, must be sold—and sold at once. Hence the above price (which will undoubtedly induce a sale within 10 days).

Take St. Charles Rock rd. to Normandy Country Club, 7500 west, by auto, street car, bus or service car, then turn north 4 blocks along east line of Normandy Country Club to Normandy drive, Greendale. This is No. 10 Normandy dr. For full particulars phone FOREST 3653. (c)

CHILDREN AND THOSE WHO LOVED HER.

BOLLMAN—In loving memory of Will H. Bollman, our dear husband and father, who passed away May 27, 1917.

Remembering is a golden chain
Death tries to break,

To have, to love, and then to part
Is the greatest sorrow of one's heart.

WIFE, DAUGHTER, and all who loved him.

BURNS—In loving memory of our darling 6-year-old son, Joe Burns, who departed this life 4 years ago, June 5, 1926.

What would we give to clasp your sweet hands, your happy face to touch?
To hear your voice and see your smiles that meant so much to us?
You were a flower too sweet for us, sent here but for a while.
God marked you when He gave you life, and took you with a smile.
So earthly ties are broken; in life we'll meet you no more.
But in a heavenly home on high our thoughts are with you always, dear.

Sadly missed by
FATHER, MOTHER AND SISTER.

DEFFAA—In loving memory of Mrs. Mary Deffaa, who passed on May 31, 1929:

You are not forgotten, mother dear,
Nor shall you ever be,
As long as life and memory last
We shall remember thee.

No one knows how much we miss you,
No one knows the bitter pain

In our hearts your memory lingers,
Sweetly, tender, fond and true;
There is not a day, dear mother,
That we do not think of you.

Sadly missed by

HARTMANN—In loving memory of Therese Hartmann, who passed away June 1, 1929:

IN MEMORIAM

MARCUS—In loving memory of Frieda S. Marcus (nee Sagert), who passed away June 2, 1929.

The year may wipe out many things,
But this they wipe out never,
The memory of those happy days
When we were all together.

Sadly missed by

MUELLER—John and Anna.

One by one they go before us,
They are fading like the dew;
But we know they're watching o'er us,
They, the good, the fair, the true.
They are waiting for us only,
Where no pain can ever mar;
Dear ones who left us lonely
Watch us through the gates ajar.
There a father, there a mother,
Gone within those gates ajar.

RAY AND CHARLES.

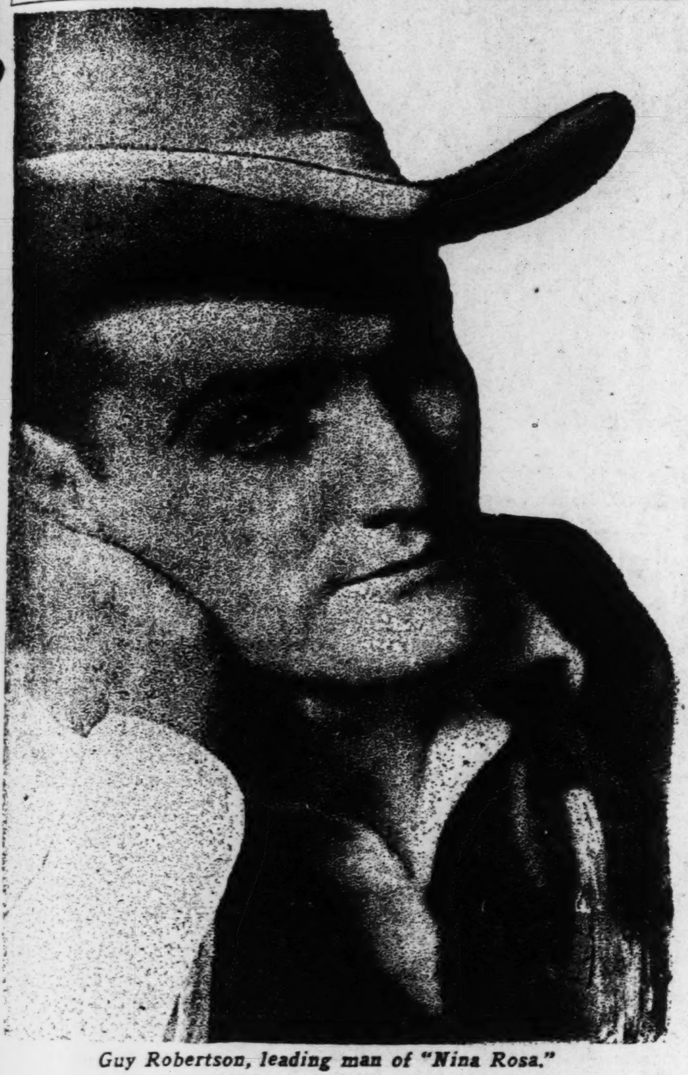
ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

DRAMA-MUSIC-MOVIES

Two Municipal Opera Stars



Guy Robertson, leading man of "Nina Rosa."

Opera Off to Fine Start

Revolving Stage and New Lighting Effects Delight Patrons at Opening of the Season And Singing of Guy Robertson, Margaret Carlisle and Leonard Ceeley Prove High Spots In the Performance of "Nina Rosa"—Next Offering Will Be "The Circus Princess."

"NINA ROSA" will continue to delight the eyes and charm the ears of St. Louis throughout this week, and up to and including next Sunday evening, and bids fair to break all attendance records in Municipal opera's history as the result of the welcome given Sigmund Romberg's operetta at its opening of the opera season Friday night. Guy Robertson, Leonard Ceeley and Margaret Carlisle won the favor of the audience by their personalities and their splendid voices and the cleverness of the entire cast, the romance of the fast-moving and dramatic story, the charm of Romberg's haunting tunes, and the beauty of the entire production have caused a box office demand unequaled in the opera's experience.

Opera-goers delight in the new type of production which has been introduced to Forest Park. By the revolving stage the opera has been able to overcome the effect of the vast spaces of the Municipal Theater and thus create an intimate beauty, while at the same time the speed of production possible with that stage provides a continuity of mood as the story is developed in dramatic action. The new and impressive use of light to reinforce the story and music, is heartily welcomed.

The use of the unique revolving stage, by which a change of scene was accomplished in half a minute, was welcomed by the first audiences quite as heartily as, between the acts it welcomed the restful, chatty 18-minute wait which this season has been established as the time of between acts intermission.

MILTON SHUBERT, new general productions manager, sought, through an intimate type of production, to collaborate with Otto Harbach, who wrote the book of "Nina Rosa" and Sigmund Romberg, who created its score. To this end he has achieved stage pictures which if, frankly, lesser in size, are in more convincing relation to the actors in that adventurous romance. He brought the action of that story well forward on the stage and kept it there. And to that end also he mobilized resources of light which the Municipal Theater had never before realized, to focus the attention of the audience upon the particular scene, or the particular individual upon whom, at any given moment, the mood and the interest of the drama depends, exactly as a painter uses a spot of color as a high light to focus eye-interest at that particular point in a picture which is most significant of its meaning.

The means that Shubert has used are, frankly, simple; just as all art is simple in its mechanics. They are easily explained. But they create none the less the miracle of illusion and result in a satisfying and artistic whole.

Guy Robertson, in the role of the young engineer sings it well and bids fair to be as great a favorite with St. Louis in those productions in which he will star this summer as he is in New York. Beauty of voice, magnetic personality and a dashing vigor unite in a convincing presentation of the role. Not less convincing as the embodiment of evil is Leonard Ceeley, whose tenor voice is captivating and used with discriminating skill. Margaret Carlsle as the bewitching Nina Rosa has already established for herself a warm place in the affections of St. Louis theatergoers and manifests in singing a tact and skill that might be expected of one who won her way to stardom through having been a coach for Chicago Civic Opera stars.

These three artists in the course of the season will be seen in other roles for which they are peculiarly fitted and in some of which they have already achieved success elsewhere; Robertson in "The Circus Princess" and "The New Moon," Ceeley in "The Desert Song," "The New Moon" and "Blossom Time" and Miss Carlisle in "The Circus Princess," "The Desert Song," "The New Moon," and as Bellabruna in "Blossom Time" and Julie in "Show Boat."

UP THE OPERA LADDER

By Guy Robertson

Guy Robertson, who tells this story of his rise on the operatic stage, is the star of "Nina Rosa," the opening bill of the Municipal Opera in Forest Park.

I WAS just out of the navy. I'd been in the Flying Corps during the war. I was still in my uniform. And I went to New York to look for a job on the stage. I happened in on the one man on Broadway who could help me—the late Col. Henry W. Savage.

"This a theatrical office. We don't need any sailors," he said.

"I beg your pardon Col. Savage, but there's a part of a sailor in "See Saw," I said, "and knowing you'd been before the mast I thought experience in the navy wouldn't disqualify a man."

"What can you do?" he demanded.

"I can sing, dance and act."

"Let's hear you sing."

I had sung in the choir at Trinity Prep School. I had sung in my college dramatics at Lehigh University. So I sang something for him.

"Let's see you dance."

I hopped the buck a few times and he seemed satisfied.

"Now as for acting," he said, "I think I can tell about that. You've been acting a part ever since you came into this room, with all the assurance of a gob on shore leave."

"That's the truth," I confessed. "I never was so scared in all my life." And with that I was hired.

BUT I still had my lesson to learn. John McKee was the director of "See Saw." An old timer who said just what he thought. He wasn't the sort of man to yes you. "All of a sudden, when I was speaking my lines, he stopped the rehearsal. "Robertson, what are you doing?" he demanded.

I didn't know. I said so.

"I don't believe a word you say," he retorted, "and if you don't believe it, how can you expect me to believe it? And how do you expect them to believe you out in front?"

Well, then I saw what he was driving at. The secret of acting is to make yourself feel and believe your lines, to make them true for you and for your audience.

Of course there are some exceptions. You can believe Jack Haines in "Nina Rosa." I believe in him myself. He is human and real, and the things that happen to him are real. I'm telling the truth when I play Jack. And I'll be telling the truth when I play Mr. X in "The Circus Princess." He, too is a real character. I am not sure but I like Mr. X even better than Jack. It was of course, my greatest success, in New York. But then, Broadway hasn't seen Jack Haines yet.

If I came to be an actor instead of a singer, it's only natural. My father and mother were both players. My father, William Robertson for years had stock companies in Denver, Kansas City, Columbus, O., and Montreal. But when I made good I made him quit it. It's killing work.

Dad and mother wanted to save me from it, too. So when I was just a kid they put me in a boarding school, Trinity Prep School, just out of New York. I were kept there summer and winter—so I wouldn't get near the theater. Then when I finished 'prep' school, where I had thought myself a shark in mathematics, I went to Lehigh to be an engineer. Between ourselves in differential calculus and trigonometry it wasn't so hot as I had thought.

Every week the sophomores would invite three or four freshmen to a "pink tea." It was a hazing stunt. I went up with a fellow named Gorese. He was a tough guy from South Brooklyn. Well, they told him to stand up on a table and sing "What a Fool I am." One of the sophs stood behind him with a big roll of paper. Whenever he stopped that sophomore hit him with the paper.

"If you do that again," said Gorese, "I'll knock all your teeth out."

An immediate smack and Gorese kept his word. He hit that kid a smash in the jaw that did knock out his teeth. The sophomores jumped on him. There was a great battle, but they finally got him trussed up, and then they took him out and tied him to a tree and kept him there all night.

WELL, leaving some of the bunch to guard him, they came back and it was my turn. "They say you're an actor," they said. "Let's see you act."

I did anything; everything. I even did the balcony scene from "Romeo and Juliet." I acted as I never acted before or since. I sang and I danced. I could see what was coming to me if I didn't. It was the first time in my life I had ever really tried to act.

The next day I got a letter from the Lehigh dramatic coach, telling me to report for rehearsals for the College play. In a week he had given me the leading role.

I kept on at school until the night of the show. I had my bag packed. As soon as the show was over I caught a train to New York.

Success wasn't holding the door open for me. There wasn't even a job. I had to telegraph Dad for money.

"If you're bound to be an actor," he wired back, "you've got to learn. Come out here to Denver." He sent me a ticket. I joined his stock company out there and played anything, everything. One role he gave me had 145 sides. That is, there were 145 different times I had to speak in the part.

HARD? For all that I learn my roles easily—in New York I have played about 12 different parts, and I tell you I have never had my script more than four or five days. It was gruelling work. But I kept at it and now here I am in St. Louis.

I only played here once—for two days. Then I fainted on the stage of the old Shubert-Jefferson Theater where we were giving "Rose-Marie" for the first time in St. Louis. An infected sinus. It was 19 weeks before I got back on the stage. But just because I liked St. Louis I used to stop off here each year on my way home to Denver for the summer.

I hadn't seen Municipal Opera, though. Nor this theater. Only last Friday night did I come to realize what it was. I used to think the Yankee Stadium was big. There's no "Babe" Ruth could knock one over that back pergola here.

Boy, I said to myself, as I looked out over the audience Friday night, if you can make a home run here, you're greater than the Bambino.

And I hope I do.

And Here Is Margaret Carlisle, Who Is Nina Rosa.

Clara Bow in "True to the Navy," at the Ambassador.

Casey Players After a Record

TONIGHT, at the Orpheum Theater, the Casey Players enter upon the fourth week of the comedy, "Your Uncle Dudley." This in itself is something of a record for stock companies locally, but Arthur Casey, who will close his first and very successful season here when this piece is finally withdrawn, is after a longer run and means to keep the play going for at least six weeks.

The Casey company will return to St. Louis early in the fall with the same players seen here this season and follow the plan of having visiting stars with each new play. The success of keeping "Your Uncle Dudley" on for more than the regulation two weeks has been so pronounced that, next season, Casey will not attempt to limit the run of his offerings in advance.

Also the hit scored by the present offering will greatly determine the style of play presented by the Casey Players next year. One of the least sophisticated plays presented this year, it has attracted wide attention.

Entering St. Louis last December, the Casey Players were at a loss to know just the type of play that would have the largest appeal. After experimenting with various types, the ideal play for stock audiences seems to have been found in the closing weeks.

Music League Announces Its Fall Program

Mme. Clairbert, Belgian Singer, on First Visit to America, to Be Heard Here in Concert in November.

THE Civic Music League, which is making arrangements for its seventh season, announces for its opening number on Nov. 4, Mme. Clairbert, coloratura soprano, connected with Le Monnies in Brussels, Belgium. Rumors of Clairbert's artistry and voice have been reaching leading musical centers for more than a year and when she was announced for her first American tour she was engaged for the San Francisco and Los Angeles operas in September by the Boston Symphony Orchestra and by the Civic Music League of St. Louis.

John Charles Thomas, leading baritone of America, will be the other vocalist on the course. Incidentally Thomas has sung with Mme. Clairbert in the opera houses in Belgium and pronounces her voice one of the rarest before the public. Yielding to the demand for a pianist the Civic Music League will present Josef and Rosa Lhevinne in a duo-recital. This pair was heard in St. Louis some years ago and Josef Lhevinne has been heard singly on a number of occasions.

An ensemble of general interest will be the Tipica Orchestra of Mexico under Juan N. Torreblanca. They will have with them the Marin Brothers' Marimba Band. There are six brothers in this ensemble playing fascinating Mexican airs. In the fifth attraction rounding out the program of five numbers will be the Pavley-Oukrainsky Ballet, with Andreas Pavley himself and an instrumental quintet.

The Shubert Gets 'All Quiet'

Grand Avenue "Legit" House Being Wired for Films and Will Offer War Drama Shortly—How the Mixing Gentlemen Play a Most Important Part in Making the Talkies Out in Hollywood—Scenario Writing Has Gone Into a Decline.

BY NIE

ALTHOUGH the Shuberts deny positively that their local theater is to become addicted to moving pictures—St. Louis now so badly overseated that there is almost a cinema palace for each prospective cash customer—the temple of art out on Grand avenue is being wired for the talkies and is to reopen its doors at an early date with the screen version of "All Quiet on the Western Front," a war picture which has been a smashing success elsewhere. How St. Louis audiences will take, at this time, to any sort of a movie at a dollar and half a look remains to be seen but, at all events, the Shuberts are going to shoot at it and if the thing works out well there will be more film "road shows" brought here next season.

The American Theater was wired last summer and might have presented some of the talkies during off weeks had any come along. Up to now, under a working agreement with the old Orpheum Circuit, the Shubert Theater was kept out of the film business. That arrangement has expired and "All Quiet"—it's none too lively in any of the Grand avenue show houses by the way—is the result.

Louis Wolheim, famous for his creation of the role of "Captain Flagg" in the stage production of "What Price Glory" and for his screen characterizations, and Lewis Ayers, a brilliant youngster of 20, head the cast of "All Quiet on the Western Front." Wolheim has the role of "Katczinsky" and Ayers has the role of the leading character, "Paul."

Others in the cast are Russell Gleason, William Bakewell, Scott Kolk, Walter Browne Rogers, Ben Alexander and Owen Davis Jr., as the six comrades of Paul Wray, George "Slim" Summerville, Harold Goodwin, Richard Alexander, Arnold Lucy, Pat Collins, Bill Irving and Yola D'Avrill.

IT IS quite likely that the Shuberts will bring several pictures to St. Louis next year. The wiring of the theater is an expensive affair and the Shubert boys, always keen showmen, have never been accused of being wasteful. The talkies are coming along and unless they are interrupted by television pictures—which are already knocking at the door—the so-called legit houses of the road will have to turn to them to fill out many otherwise dark weeks.

As has been told many times Hollywood is full of stage stars waiting for a chance to have their voices tested for the screen. Some of the old screen stars, notably John Gilbert, are spending fortunes having their vocal cords manicured. You know how it goes—"Aha, my proud maiden," says the villain in a deep basso, twirling his mustaches with a revolving thumb and forefinger, "I have you . . . ." And just then there's a peculiar click from the projection room, behind and above you, and the villain finishes the immortal line in a trilly high soprano.

Call off your hooting and catcalls, dear audience, you are doing the villain a grave injustice, and if you blame the good folks who put the picture together you are besmirching an even more honest and conscientious branch of the picture industry.

The gentleman against whom you should hold your fancied grievance of hearing a Levee accent on a star with a Westmoreland place chassis is "the mixer," most important of the many new faces seen about a studio since the advent of sound.

THE mixer is a peculiar gent. He ranks second in command on the set; he is under the director and on a par with the head cameraman. His actual working time is only 15 minutes a day, but his job is as physically difficult as that of the lowliest prop man, and he's the only person on the set who's allowed to whistle while he works.

Lately much has been said and written of the mixer. Entire novels are written with plots that revolve about the fact that a little girl with the voice of a bullfrog is made the prima donna of two continents all because the love of Joe Dingle inspired him to such heights in his job that he regulated and altered her voice to such prettiness. This is hardly accurate. While no attempt is made here to ridicule the love of Joe Dingle for the girl with the bullfrog voice, there remains the undeniable fact that a mixer—the person who regulates the voices of the actors as they pass from the microphone onto the wax records—can no more change a bullfrog voice into a coloratura soprano than a photographer can point his camera at a corn field and produce a picture of a vegetable dinner. The bullfrog voice may yet evolve into a soprano and the corn into a vegetable dinner, but between the two lie long sieges with music teachers and chefs, and no short cut can bridge the gap. All those thousands of folks who feel that while their speaking voices are not so magnetic, if they were only recorded "on sound" they could be fixed up to sing high C, should sadly listen to the words of Maj. Nathan Levinson, head recording engineer of First National Pictures.

First, he gives the classic line that is quoted by all mixers, "What you put into the microphone you will get out." Second, he gives the supplemental line quoted by all directors, "If you don't put anything adequate into the microphone you will have to get out."

All the mixer can do, to put the thing very elementally, is make your voice louder or softer. He cannot change your pitch. So far he seems to have a very simple job, and yet his work is as intricate and interesting as that of anyone connected with the production.

THE mixer sits in a box on wheels, about five feet wide and six feet deep, the outside of which is wood and the inside of which is lined with two-inch layers of celotex, or compressed sugar cane stalk. Behind him is a door with felt edging, and in front is a two-foot strip of glass through which he may view the shooting. Sometimes the scene calls for an arrangement of lights that does not permit the mixer to see the entire set, in which case an electric crane merely hoists the booth to the top of one of the camera booths.

All the microphones lead into

BEHIND THE SCREENS
OUT IN HOLLYWOOD

Little Mitzi Green and The Other Kid Stars of the Movies

HOLLYWOOD, May 31.

THE ax continues to fall on the the crowned heads of Hollywood, Alice White, report leaks out, is to be next to feel its bite, because her studio fears the public is surfeited with flapper dramas.

ALICE WHITE

Newspaper people here will regret if this means that Alice will retire.

This it probably does not, for too many companies are eager to cash in on ready-made stellar reputations.

The news-chasers would be sorry if Alice left the screen because she is always "good copy."

Recently she attended a Saturday night party in one of the local swank party-spots attired in an exclusive model of black lace.

A chatter-writer, reporting the affair, stated in effect that "Constance Bennett, in an exquisite creation of black lace, was the most strikingly attractive woman present."

Constance Bennett, also blonde, happened that night to be wearing white satin, and Alice was naturally "burned up."

Some other stars, fearing consequences, might have feigned amused indifference.

Alice, always frank, "burned" volubly — and stellar frankness, to weary Hollywood reporters inured to movie pretense, is ever a rare and delightful experience.

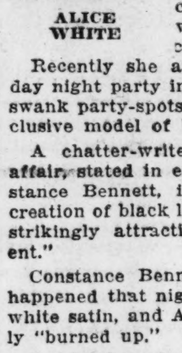
FOR 99 out of 100 movie actors the screen is an end in itself. For Everett Marshall it means merely a pleasant interlude.

Movie fans as yet are unacquainted with Marshall, but those who saw "Dixiana" previewed say that his debut as screen actor and singer will be as sensational as was Lawrence Tibbett's in "Rogue Song."



EVERETT MARSHALL

He is, in many espects, like Tibbett. Both are from the Metropolitan opera company, both baritones, both admirably suited for portrayal of dashingly romantic roles.

Marshall is younger, better looking, taller and slimmer.

WHEN Marshall came West to sing opposite Bebe Daniels in "Dixiana," he saw California for the first time. His stay has been so pleasant that he dreads the prospect of 12 weeks in New York where he must return to fulfill his operatic contract.

But for all that he plans to stay in the movies only a few years, returning then to the operatic and concert stage which was his first love.

Still in his twenties, Marshall was graduated from the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music in 1923, went abroad and studied grand opera for three years, and made his debut in 1926.

Then he returned to New York and signed with the "Met."

His desire to earn an international reputation in opera, if possible, is not his only reason for planning a brief movie career. The other is that he has seen too many "hanging on" in Hollywood to choose to cast his lot with those after his best screen days are past.

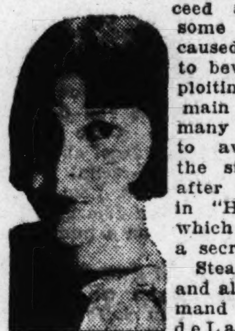
THE success of little Mitzi Green who came to pictures from vaudeville a few months ago, has been startling. Athough the failure of Baby Peggy to succeed as a star some years ago caused producers to beware of exploiting little girls main attractions, many were ready to award Mitzi the stellar palm after seeing her in "Honey,"—in which she "knew a secret."



MITZI GREEN

Steadily rising and always in demand is Phillippe deLacey who hates to be called the screen's "most beautiful boy," and whose ambitition is to direct, some day, rather than act.

Another precocious child is Anita Louise, blond, slim, curly-haired and pretty. Junior Coghlan, who used to be starred, is free-lancing now, but finding no lack of parts.

Little Davey Lee's movie career seems halted at present, as a result of his parents' controversy with Warners' over his personal appearance tour last year. Davey's folks took him on the tour over the studio's protests, after which the company would have no more of "Sonny Boy," and is still adamant.

Davey may get jobs elsewhere, but even if he doesn't, fans who liked his lisping will be interested in the "come-back" of another youngster who was the Davey of his day—Jackie Coogan. Jackie, in his 'teens now, is to play "Tom Sawyer," while Junior Durkin, who was in "Courage" on the stage, will portray "Huckleberry Finn."

All these youngsters, significantly, are real actors—not merely cute or good-looking. Ability and personality, with children as with grown-ups, counts more in talkies than mere beauty.

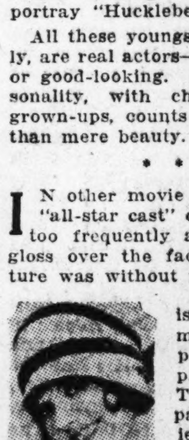
IN other movie days the billing "all-star cast" on a picture was too frequently a thin veil to gloss over the fact that the picture was without recognized stars.

Now that label is beginning to mean what it promises to the picture audience. The change is due partly to the talkies' more general use of well-known players to support their stars, and more particularly to one studio's splurge for box-office recognition.



SALLY STARR

The result is that well-known Nick Stuart, Sally Starr, Dorothy Burgess, George Fawcett, Bryant Washburn, Ben Turpin and Daphne Pollard are assembled in one talkie in support of two principals who are little better known than any of them, while in another such players as Mary Astor, Edward Everett Horton, Robert Ames, Hedda Hopper and others equally important are cast in support of Ann Harding.

A few members of such supporting casts appear, like Ben Turpin, only in bits which might have been handled by ordinary bit-players more cheaply.

For one such production the total salary of those receiving screen credit amounts to about $25,000 weekly, whereas last year a talkie made by this company would require only that much in principals' salaries for the whole production.

WHILE it is improbable that Hollywood will raid the theaters of France, Spain and Germany as it did Broadway's, still this Flickerville is not bashful in strengthening its forces for competition abroad.

Already here for talkies are Andre Luguet, Andre Berley, Marcel Andre, and Tania Fedor, all prominent in France, and from Germany have come Marlene Dietrich, Egon von Jordan, and Nora Gregor.

Hollwood already has many German directors, but Arnold Korff comes to increase the list and to act as well. And one studio has Yves Mirande, French dramatist, under contract to write directly for French talkies.

All are reasons for the growing popularity of language study here.

CLAUDETTE COLBERT

The trip will last until early September and will end in New York, where Miss Colbert will resume her film work for Paramount. She has been in Hollywood for several weeks playing the feminine lead in the talking picture, "Manslaghter."

Her itinerary on the world-circling voyage includes Japan, China, Indo-China, the Philippines, Java, Borneo, Sumatra, Bali, India, Egypt and European ports. She chose to make the trip on a freighter instead of a regular passenger liner so that she might visit out of the way places off the beaten path of tourist travel.

Five other members of Miss Colbert's party are making the voyage. They are Alex King, artist and illustrator; Mrs. King, Miguel Covarrubias, Mexican artist; Normann Foster, stage and screen player; and Rosa Rolinda. There are no other passengers on the ship.

"Buddy" Rogers' Kid Brother for Films

HOLLYWOOD, May 31.

CHARLES "BUDDY" ROGERS' brother has been signed for talking pictures. Affixing one of Hollywood's most peculiar names to a contract, the young brother of the film star this week became a featured screen actor for a number of years.

The new player's name is Bh. Rogers, which he calls a "temporary title," as his father and mother selected the initials until a satisfactory cognomen could be decided upon.

Bh. is the third and youngest child of Mr. and Mrs. Bert H. Rogers. He was born in Olathe, Kan., and studied journalism, that he might follow in his father's footsteps. Entering the University of Kansas, he was forced to leave school at the midyear because of illness. Physicians prescribed a warm climate and Bh. was sent to Hollywood to recuperate at his brother's home.

Bh. Rogers paid his first visit to a studio several months ago and at that time executives noticed him and gave him an acting, singing and speaking test. The result was the contract just signed.

Veteran Playwright Turns to Pictures

William H. Post, author of a score of stage successes, a veteran in the acting and producing departments of the theater and the director of many Broadway hits starring Willie Collier and May Irwin, has been signed for talking pictures. Post arrived in Hollywood last week from London and affixed his signature to a contract in the writing department of the Paramount studios.

The first play that Post wrote was "The Money Chase," followed by "Never Say Die." Later, he did the librettos for such musical successes as "June Love," "The Vagabond King," "White Eagle," "Love Moon" and "The O'Flynn."

For the past two years, he has been living and working in London.

Scottish Rite Club To Sing 'Rose Maiden'

"The Rose Maiden," a cantata by Cowen, will be interpreted, under the direction of O. Wade Fallert. The general public is invited, and there will be no charge for admission. Mrs. Charles G. Gund is chairman of the music section; Mrs. August F. Henke, vice chairman; Mrs. H. W. Groves, secretary, and Mrs. John A. Guhl, librarian. Mrs. R. A. Turner is president of Bel Canto Club.

New Picture Offers Novelties for Star

Several new things are happening to William Powell in "Shadow of the Law," his current starring picture.

He has a romantic role in which he is privileged to make honest love to a girl.

He is working before the cameras for certain scenes without a mustache. It is the first time in five years that he has done that.

He is spending days in a prison cell, wearing a convict's dungarees and he is answering to a number instead of a name.

Louis Gasnier is directing this production, in which Marion Shilling, Natalie Moorhead, Paul Hurst, Regis Toomey and others play supporting roles.

the mixer's booth, and from the booth they send their impressions, after being modulated, to the wax discs in a special building a few blocks away. As many as 12 microphones can be taken care of at the same time, although this is not customary. An example of the use of 12 microphones occurred in "When We Were Twenty-one," which undertook to record, in a single shot, a band playing and the dialogue of three scattered persons.

This may seem nothing out of the ordinary, but the peculiar positions of the players called for this unique arrangement of microphones. There are eight "pots," the name for microphones to these strange people, that can really be controlled because the first, fourth, fifth and eighth knobs of the eight that are before the mixer each takes care of two "pots." From left to right the knobs took care of the following separate noises: the string instruments in an orchestra, the brass, a tap dancer, a singer, the dialogue of Loretta Young, of David Manners, of Myrnay Loy and the chatter of the night-club patrons.

BELOW the eight knobs are two master knobs; these control the volume as a whole. Between these two sets of dials, 10 in all, the mixer changes many things. He eliminates the noise of the camera, the pop of the incandescent lights, unaccountable metallic clicks, floor vibration, street and traffic noises, and even the sounds that are part of the action and that would be heard in a stage play, but which, when a camera is focused on two persons speaking lines, only serve to distract attention. Sometimes; often, in fact, an unexpected sound is 'caught" before the mixer can get his knob around to it, in which case he picks up his telephone and tells the assistant director to shoot that bit over again.

The things that the mixer can do and that are the foundation of the myths that Noah Beery, who probably has the lowest-frequency voice in the industry, and Loretta Young, who has an especially clear one, really have the same voice and are "doubled" by Bill Seiter, the director, are: He can eliminate "barrelness," the hollow sound comparable to one speaking into a barrel; he can cure an echo, or a voice which is thick or thin. This means only a cure for voices that are too far from the microphone, not an inherent correction in their tone structure. Notice always that of the many things the mixer can do, they all go back to the primary trick of making things either softer or louder.

He must control the general sound of a scene so that your sense of hearing is not "out of focus" with what you are seeing. For instance, the camera is photographing an actor in a telephone booth. The glass has been removed to take the glare from the player, but the shot demands a muffled tone. Just how much muffling is required makes for a good or bad mixer. He must be able to detect the reasons why certain shots do not reproduce well. Sometimes a character may by facing a wall that is too "hard," or a glass-topped desk, or beams that split up the sound waves.

He must argue with the head cameraman over the height of the microphone, the latter wanting it high, the mixer low—a fight going on since sound pictures began—he must learn to do without fresh air for a few minutes at a time, for there still has been no invention that lets in air and keeps out sound waves, and he must be able to convince stars of the "silent" days that even all his gadgets and meters cannot get an English accent out of the microphone where none has been inserted. This, like Caesar's wife, is the hardest trick of all.

TALKING pictures by the way have brought an 80 per cent reduction in the number of unsolicited scenarios received from all over the country by major studios in Hollywood; scenarios which never were read but always were returned unopened. Committee Still Needs More Than $100,000; Subscriptions Being Received.

Definite announcement regarding the Symphony Orchestra campaign has had to be deferred until later, Chairman I. A. Stevens said yesterday, owing to the extended holiday which has intervened in the closing days.

The committee still needs more than $100,000. Workers in the women's and men's divisions have agreed to continue their canvass another week that this amount may be obtained.

Subscriptions are still reaching headquarters and large or small contributions are equally acceptable, Stevens said. Headquarters, at Boatmen's Bank Building, will remain open this week. Many subscribers are still to be heard from and the total, it is expected, will be considerably increased during the next few days.

"Drunkenness Is a Disease and I Can Cure It"
—Leslie E. Keeley, M. D., LL. D.

THE EDITOR of a powerful Chicago Newspaper before his death, challenged this statement of Dr. Keeley that "Drunkenness is a disease and I can cure it." He defied Dr. Keeley to cure the men whom he would send to the Institute. The results were so convincing that, through his great newspaper, he was personally responsible for thousands of men and women taking The Keeley Treatment for Liquor.

Another New York Critic's Review Of Municipal Opera's First Night

YESTERDAY the Post-Dispatch published the Municipal Opera criticisms of writers for the New York World, New York Times and New York Evening Post who were present at the first performance of "Nina Rosa." The New York Herald Tribune's review follows:

By PERCY HAMMOND.

THE trained nightingales of Mr. Sigmund Romberg's wheedling operetta "Nina Rosa" uplifted their voices in a celebration of the twelfth anniversary of St. Louis Municipal Opera. Listened to by 10,000 Missourians hungry for vicarious romance and melody they sang and danced efficiently, cracking meanwhile the nutty jokes of Oto Harbach and Irving Caesar. What was more important than the fate of Nina, the operatic heroine, and her suitor, the lovely baritone, was the significance of the occasion. In a hippodrome remarkable for its natural beauty they postured and strutted delectably, now happy, then blue, as they drifted melodiously in the strange and irregular rhythm of musical comedy life. Surrounded as they were by oaks, elms, sycamores and poplars, they managed to put over a very respectable show. I saw it from a remote seat of the free section, and I thought it was very good.

Although this enterprise has been in operation for eleven years, news of its existence has been sparse in the far eastern communities.

Vaguely Known in New York.

It was known vaguely to a few playgoers in New York as a home-town institution, addicted to revivals of such senile cantata as "Giro fla' Giro fla," and the weaker works of Harry B. Smith. Hesitant semi-pros from the local song and dance ateliers were believed to parade their tiny infirmities in these exhibitions, adding little to the sum of public entertainment.

Besides it was officially nicknamed "the muny opera," a rotarian diminutive that provided further reasons for paying it no attention.

Chicago's outdoor Ravinia Park was recognized in the east as place where nature undertook to give "some touch of her genial glow" to the most spurious of the arts. Reams were written and no doubt read, about the open air exercises in that bower of grand opera, because it is a summer haven for thrifty artists from the Metropolitan Opera House, but concerning the efforts of the Municipal Theater Association of St. Louis, there has been an ignorant silence. Until ordered by Mayor Miller of St. Louis to report the premiere of "Nina Rosa" for the New York Herald Tribune, I had not heard of the "muny opera" for years.

Let me, then, go back to 1918, when, aroused by war's stimulating drumbeats, a group of 500 solvent St. Louisans promoted a pageant of independence, "born of the spirit of independence and dedicated to the public good."

Ideal Amphitheater Found.

Hard by the city limits they discovered what in the graceful phrases of their prospectus they called an "idle hillside." This, mounting from the shores of the Des Peres, formed an ideal amphitheater. Here, they decided, was the site for a movement consecrated to the perpetuation of troubadour comedy in its loftier aspects. Ten thousand seats were built into the idle hillside, a spacious stage erected at the lowest point and all was made ready for exhibitions of sweet love stories, accompanied by music. Sixteen hundred free chairs were reserved for those who did not care to pay, and the highest price in the parquet was placed at $1.50. The first season showed a deficit, but since then there have been profits, all of which, under the conditions of the theater's charter, has been reinvested in the plant.

Though noted for alacrity in sensing other values of the stage, I am dumb to statistics. Yet I may say that in ten years the "muny opera" of St. Louis has played to 3,600,000 persons at an average price of 71 cents a person, and that the takings of its box office in that time was more than $2,500,000.

The plays have included nearly every possibility from "Katinka" to "El Capitan" including "The Waltz Dream" and "The Chimes of Normandy."

Now that the St. Louis Municipal Theater Association has a revolving stage, the biggest in the world, and opens its twelfth season with a work by Sigmund Romberg, it deserves the tardy hallelujahs of representatives from the Atlantic coast, after seeing "Nina Rosa," and its great audience I fire such Roman candles as are in my arsenal, hoping the while that Mr. Walker, my own Mayor, will be attracted somewhere for a free seat. I recommend it to New York as one of the better of those things.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 31.—Carrying the colors of the Marines alone against 23 Navy pilots, Capt. Arthur Page today swept to a new race record of 164.08 miles an hour and won the Curtis Marine trophy.

Lieut. D. W. Harrigan won the Ingalls' trophy for the highest percentage of rated speed by leading a group of training ships with a speed of 102.02 miles an hour.

Lieut. J. E. Dyer, winning the observation plane race with a speed of 145.81 miles an hour, roared across the finish line third, beating out three fighter pilots whose ships were rated faster. He pressed Lieut. A. P. Storrs, combat flyer, who finished next to Page.

Lieut. P. D. Stroop was the sole torpedo plane pilot to finish, averaging 118.72 miles an hour. Three contenders in the class were forced out, and only quick work by Lieut. J. E. Beck saved his plane wheen it caught fire from engine overheating.

Two Pilots Disqualified.

Lieut. T. D. Guinn piloted the winning amphibian, averaging 117.84 miles an hour. Four pilots were forced to land after the third lap, and two were disqualified after the first turn for cutting a pylon too short.

Capt. Page used the same plane in which Maj. C. A. Lutz, the only other Marine to win the trophy in 11 years of competition, speeded to victory in 1928. The ship had been restreamlinad and, skimming low over the Potomac to take advantage of a heavier cushion of air and turning short on the pylons, Page was able to add 6.5 miles an hour to Lutz's speed.

The former race record was established last year by Lieut. W. G. Tomlinson, who averaged 162 miles an hour in a ship with a special cowl which was outlawed in today's race.

Inverted Falling Leaf.

More than 10,000 spectators viewed the race and a spectacular background of flying demonstrations in which Lieut. T. G. W. Settle dropped in a glider from the Los Angeles and Lieut. Commander C. A. Nicholson hooked a plane to the dirigible. Settle's glider flight was his first from a dirigible and the second in the history of world aeronautics. Nicholson had executed his feat twice before but, baffled by heavy winds, was unable to make contact until his fifth attempt.

Lieut. M. B. Gardner, rated by the Navy as its foremost stunt pilot, for the first time demonstrated to the public the "inverted falling leaf," which Lieut. Alford J. Williams demonstrated shortly before resigning from the service.

Glenn Curtiss, who yesterday celebrated the twentieth anniversary of his pioneer flight from Albany to New York, presented the trophy to Capt. Page, while David S. Ingalls, Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Aeronautics, made the award of his trophy to Lieut. Harrigan.

ASTONISHING RENUNCIATION of the PRINCE and PRINCESS PATERNO

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

A BARE Carmelite nunnery chapel at Milan has suddenly grown famous in the social and religious annals of Italy. It has just been the scene of a moving spiritual drama, the last act in the joint lives of a man and a woman who, after living together as husband and wife for a quarter of a century, have renounced each other, together with riches, friends, social position, noble rank and personal liberty, while in the full vigor of their lives.

Donna Angelica Auteri and Don Ignazio Paterno, Prince and Princess of Biscari, were members of the old Sicilian aristocracy — distinguished-looking, cultured, rich in the world's goods, for they possessed money, broad acres, heirlooms, beautiful homes. They were reported to be happily married. Many people envied them, as the poor envy the rich. But henceforth, Donna Angelica, as Princess Paterno was called by her friends, will be known to her sister Carmelite nuns as Sister Mary of Jesus; and her husband, the Prince, will be addressed by his fellow monks of the Barnabite Order as Father Ignazio. Their very names will be ignored by the few human beings with whom they will come in contact for the rest of their lives.

Daintily fed and luxuriously housed from their birth, they will sleep and die in cells little larger than a clothes closet, on a hard bed, which, with a basin on the bare stone floor and a shelf for devotional books, is the only furniture. Their food will consist largely of fresh vegetables, potatoes and dried beans. Sister Mary of Jesus will go barefooted. The black veil which envelops her from head to foot, with two little openings for the eyes, will be worn whenever she is allowed to exchange a few words with women friends from behind the double bars of the nuns' portion of the parlor at the Cagnola convent. Don Ignazio, having been ordained priest, will officiate in the churches to which his superior sends him. But Sister Mary of Jesus will never go further into that nunnery chapel than the barred space near the choir, often screened from the scant congregation by a curtain. Nor will she take the air elsewhere than in the nunnery garden, whose high wall screens it from prying eyes. Both garden and nunnery are largely her own gift to the Carmelite order. Don Ignazio has given away his own vast wealth to the Pope, and to works of charity in Sicily.

THE first act of this drama began in Sicily, when friends of Prince and Princess Paterno discovered they had suddenly quitted their palatial home at Catania. This by way of prologue. When the curtain went up on the real action it disclosed an early spring day in 1925 at the Barnabite monastery in Milan, about as far away from Sicily as the Paternos could go without leaving Italy. The Superior of the order was told that a lady and gentleman wished to see him in the parlor. Their southern names surprised him. The Paternos have neither estates nor interests in North Italy. His surprise increased when the Prince asked leave to begin his novitiate in the monastery.

"But who is this lady?" he demanded.

"My wife. She will begin her novitiate in the Carmelite House at Modena."

"But you know that you must have a special dispensation from His Holiness, as you are married," objected the Superior.

"The Pope has consented. You will have the necessary documents shortly."

And he had them that same day. Pope Pius XI had assented to the Prince's and Princess' singular request, one rarely made, and even more rarely granted. A few days later, the Prince was received as a novice in the Barnabite Order. His wife was one of the few witnesses of the simple function. Both betrayed emotion. She wept as a nun led her out of the monastery chapel into a closed car which took them all the way to Modena. They reached the Carmelite convent late at night. The next day, Princess Paterno became a novice of this severe order.

When society in Sicily and Rome heard of it there was much talk. Some shook their heads, recalled the Prince's lively disposition, and his jealousy where his wife was concerned, and foretold he would be back in his ancestral home before the four-and-a-half-year novitiate was over. In that case, the Princess could not take the final vows, for the Roman Church does not allow one spouse to retire from the world while the other is living in it. Gossips recalled the Princess' devout piety, her leanings toward mysticism, her disappointment at having no children. But other interests distracted the world of society. The Prince and Princess of Biscari were forgotten.

THEN, not long ago, the third act began. Scene, the bare chapel attached to the nunnery where Sister Mary of Jesus passed the greater part of her novitiate. To the usual sparse gathering of poor folk from the neighborhood are added some of the Paterno relatives, many patricians from Sicily, a few Milanese noblemen and their wives.

By the Pope's special permission, the ex-Prince, now Father Ignazio, took part in the ceremony, which chiefly concerned his wife. The Prince was accompanied by his fellow monks and the Father Superior of the Barnabite College at Monza. Monsignor Calchi Novati, Bishop of Lodi, in pontifical robes, a tall, aristocratic figure, was assisted by other clergy. Behind the double-barred grill of the nuns knelt she who was until lately Princess Paterno. The white veil of the novice still shrouded her face and rough habit.

First, the Bishop ordained Father Ignazio. During the communion which followed, the Bishop administered communion to Sister Mary of Jesus, who knelt behind the double grating; her husband had taken communion first. A sister and niece of

MEASURING the MOON

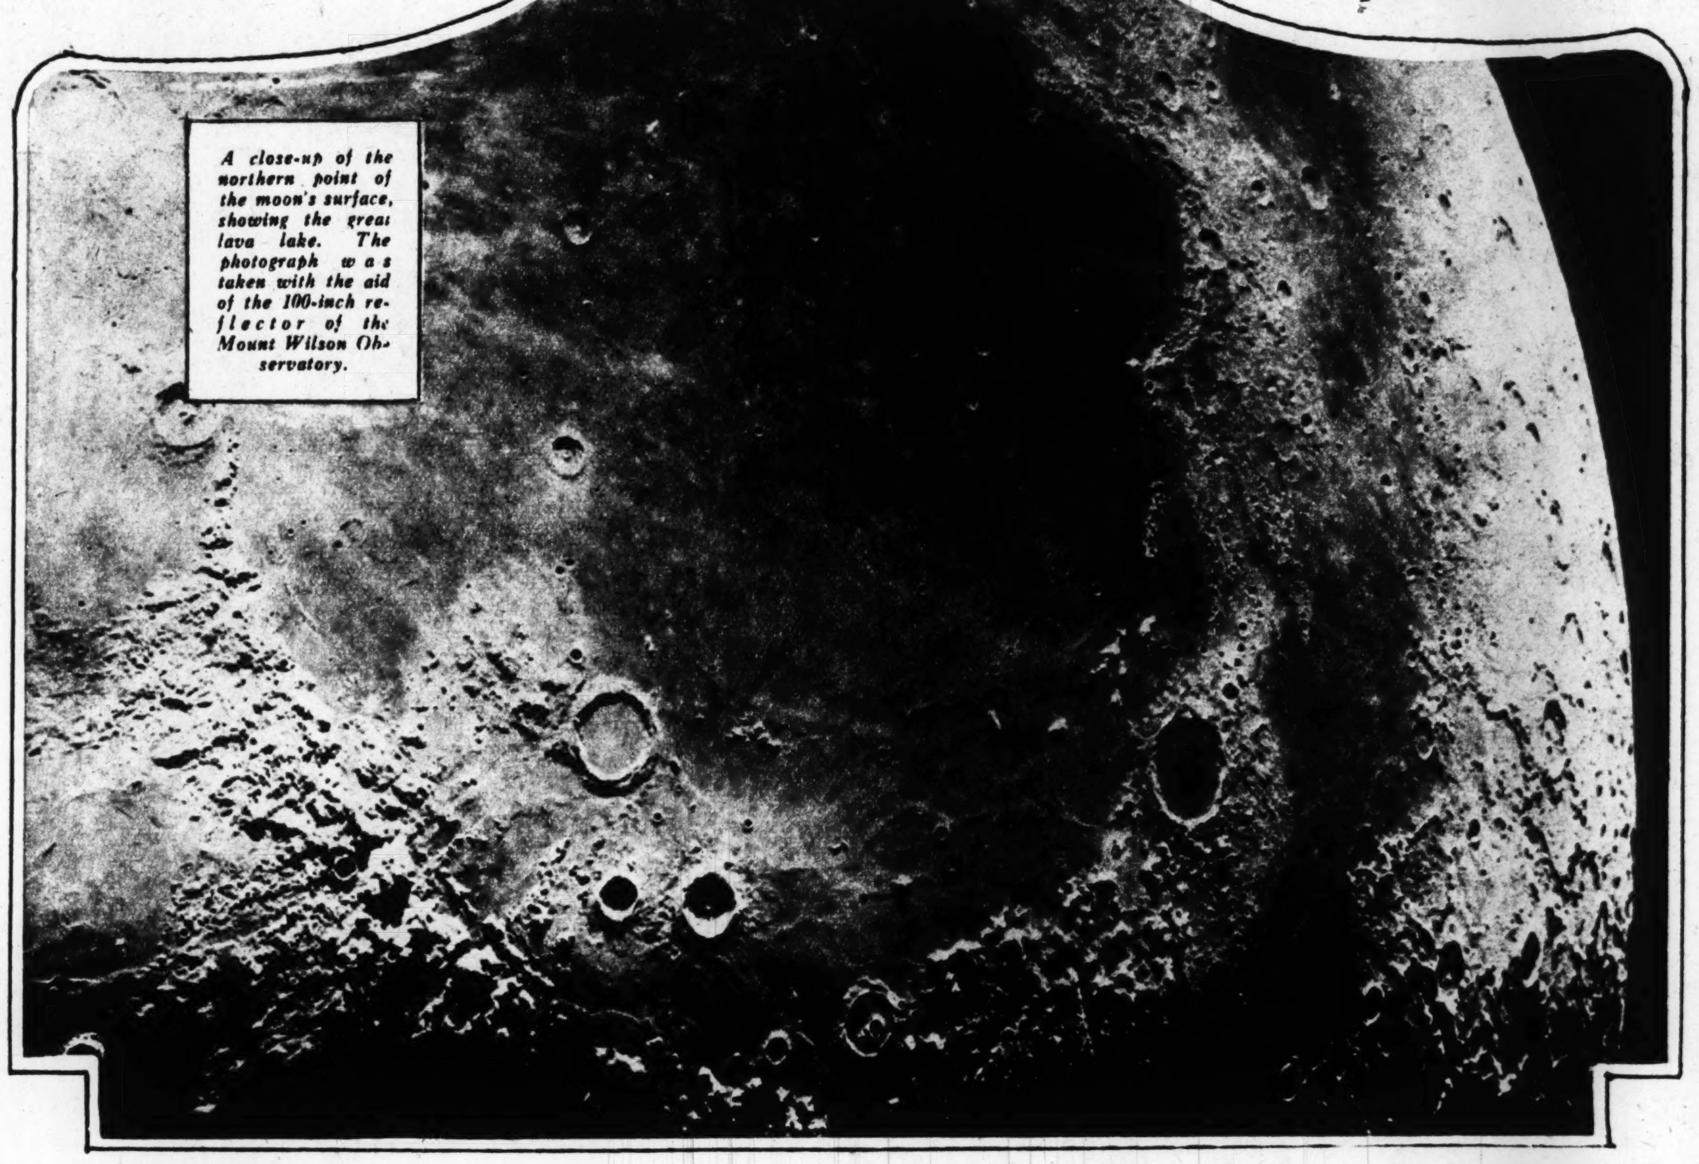
Case History of the Burnt-Out Satellite With Its Tense Lights and Shadows, Extreme Temperatures and No Atmosphere.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine



A close-up of the northern point of the moon's surface, showing the great lava lake. The photograph was taken with the aid of the 100-inch reflector of the Mount Wilson Observatory.

NOWHERE a web, or wing, or crawling or moving thing. Everywhere an appalling silence, a thousand times more acute than the desert void of the Sahara. No afterglow, no dawn, no dusk. Objects stand etched, clean-cut studies in black and white; shadows are sharp-edged as thunder clouds against a blue sky. Gravity pulls down a mountain, and there is no noise, no dust. Ashes tossed in the air fall back in straight lines, more slowly than snowflakes, undisturbed by the faintest breath of breeze. The sky is dark without a wisp of cloud anywhere. And always in the center of the heavens glows a great globe, 80 times as massive as the moon.

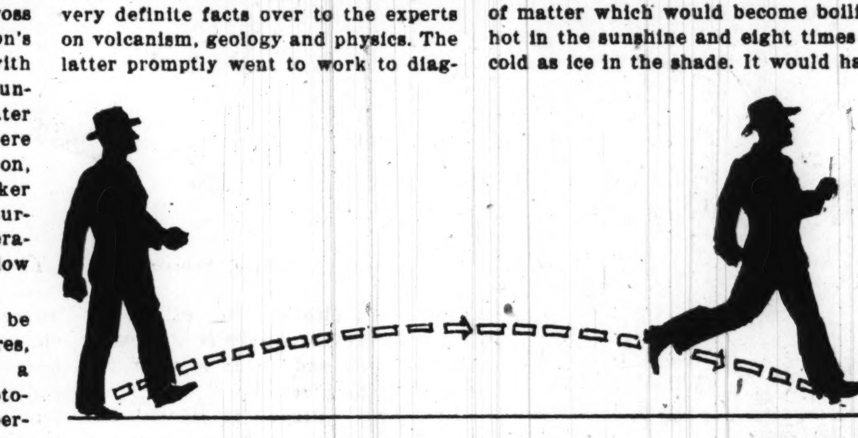
Is this a description of nightmare land? Not at all. Merely an account of how the moon would appear to a human standing on its surface—an account compiled from facts uncovered recently when a group of experts in all the physical sciences co-operated in an effort to make the man in the moon come across with his secrets. Every device known to the technicians, from the world's largest telescope to the smallest of microscopes, was brought to bear on moonshine. And while the scientists did not get all the information they wanted, by putting this and that together they learned a number of new and surprising facts about our heavenly neighbor.

THE committee of distinguished men, appointed several years ago to make this intensive study of the moon, has completed its work, the members have compared notes and their papers are now in the hands of the father of the idea, President Merriam of the Carnegie Institution of Washington. Working both separately and jointly, these diversely specialized savants enfiladed the moon, and the concerted attack lengthened out into a siege, which was only recently lifted. Yet, while the spoils of victory consist mostly of involved data, one of the most interesting revelations to the layman is that the moon has a bad case of chills and fever.

To discover the symptoms of this lunar illness, two scientists, employing complicated moon thermometers perfected in the Mount Wilson Observatory, took the temperature of the side of the moon which is always turned to the earth, from moonrise to moonset, continuously every day and night for more than a year. They learned that as soon as sunlight streams across the earth-side of its face the moon's cold countenance is suffused with warmth—gets warmer and warmer until by midday it is sizzling hot. Water would boil in the craters, if water were there. Then, as the sun moves on, shadows colder than ice and blacker than night creep across the pitted surface and, by midnight, the temperature falls as low at 254 degrees below zero, Fahrenheit.

The moon, therefore, cannot be thought of as the abode of life. Spores, or the seeds of life, may survive a short time in boiling water, but protoplasm in any form would instantly perish in bone-dry heat of 212 degrees, or over. Spores have been found alive in the snow of Alpine peaks, but they are very rare, and the climate of the world's highest mountains is warm in comparison with the midnight moon. Where the temperature varies daily between 212 above and 254 degrees below zero, life hasn't a chance.

Finding the moon a victim of chills and fever, the astronomers turned their very definite facts over to the experts on volcanism, geology and physics. The latter promptly went to work to diagnose the moon's spasms in order to learn its composition. Already they had granted that the moon could not be made of green cheese, or anything else that would melt, because every pockmark in that stony face has been there since the first telescope was invented. It would have to be some kind of matter which would become boiling hot in the sunshine and eight times as cold as ice in the shade. It would have to take in and give out 466 degrees on the thermometer every day without being seriously affected.



A man on the moon would step 15 feet at a stride as compared with 2½ feet on the earth.

Previously the amount of radiation delivered by the sun upon the moon's disk had been determined by Dr. Edison Pettit of the Mount Wilson staff. Knowing that only rays with wave lengths longer than ultra-violet rays can heat objects, he calculated exactly how much radiant energy struck every square mile of the moon's surface daily, for there were no clouds, no haze, no dust in the air—no atmosphere to interfere with the flow of sunlight. Lunar weather never changes save for a short time during eclipses.

The physicists who undertook to find what has the same conductivity and convectivity as moon substance were Dr. Paul Epstein and Dr. E. F. Wright. Both had at hand the findings already reported by geologists and volcanists, together with information from other members of the committee. Working separately, the physicists experimented with various earthly materials, but nothing like sand, or granite, or lead, or lava, would take in and give out heat at exactly the moon's rate.

At length they tried pumice—the granular, spongy framework of the foam which forms on lava and hardens as the bubbles of gas escape. It proved to be moon material. For, in the presence of the same amount of solar radiation as that received at the moon's surface, it heated, and in the absence of the radiation, it cooled. In other words, its conductivity and convectivity tallied with the results the astronomers had obtained from the moon. If a great pumice-covered ball were substituted for the moon, they concluded, it would also have chills and fever—be boiling hot at noon and several times colder than the North Pole at midnight. Volcanoes, it appears, have deeply dusted the pockmarked face of the man in the moon with pumice.

The violence of those ancient volcanoes is seen in the size of their craters, some of which are 70 miles across—10 times the diameter of the earth's largest crater. When those great craters were in wild eruption, what a sight the moon must have been! In the sunrise and sunset motion pictures, taken at the Mount Wilson Observatory, white light creeps across the craters in the morning, and black shadows creep back during the afternoon, without the slightest twilight shimmerings along the edges.

IF A MAN landed on the moon he would be both deaf and dumb. He might open his mouth, but no sound would come from his throat, because vibrating throat muscles produce sound waves only in air. Surrounded by a vacuum, his capillaries would burst and his eyes pop out. For, at 15 pounds to the inch, a man on the earth is surrounded by about 35,000 pounds of air pressure, and his body has been built in adaptation to that pressure. Take the pressure away and he would fare like a deep-sea fish suddenly raised to the surface. But, if he were straitjacketed in clothes which kept him from exploding, and carried his own supply of air, he would find himself performing miracles.

At every stride he would step 15 feet; and, if he should stumble over a precipice, instead of falling 16 feet in a second he would fall only two feet eight inches. The mighty muscles which man has developed to handle weights against the powerful pull of earth's surface gravitation would enable him to outjump a kangaroo and play ball with boulders. He would weigh only one-sixth as much as he weighed upon the earth, yet he would be six times stronger, because the pull of gravity, which determines weight and measures physical ability, is only one-sixth as strong on the moon as on the earth.

Charlie Chaplin and "The Little Mouse"

A Hitherto Unwritten Chapter From the Often Tragic Life of the Celebrated Film Comedian.

LOS ANGELES.

ON A grassy knoll in the Inglewood Cemetery near Los Angeles is a tiny grave, marked by a curious headstone.

"The Little Mouse
July 7— July 10, 1919."

This is the only inscription on the flat, rectangular slab of marble.

Visitors pause to wonder as they pass the little plot.

"The Little Mouse"—what could that mean? Some, perhaps, are indignant, with a feeling that irreverence is being shown the dead. But they don't know the story.

It's the story of the first-born son of Charlie Chaplin, the story of one of the tragedies in the life of the great screen comedian.

For all his fame as a fun-maker, Chaplin is essentially a tragedian. Born in the midst of poverty and misfortune, the noted actor grew to manhood in a London atmosphere that reeked of tragedy. Those unhappy days instilled in him a feeling of sympathy for the outcast, the unfortunate, typified in the tragic character, who, beneath a guise of comical antics and ludicrous makeup, had become world-famous as a funny man.

So the narrative of "The Little Mouse" is just another chapter in a life with plenty of tragedy.

It begins with the marriage of the actor and Mildred Harris. At the time they were married Mildred was only 17 years old. The two started their married life together quite happily.

Then, later on, news of first-page importance was flashed around the world. The stork was expected at the Chaplin home. The prospect of an heir-apparent to the king of comedians was a matter of universal interest. It just had to be a boy. Chaplin himself never could entertain even the slightest doubt about it.

At the big home in Hollywood Mildred Harris prepared for the momentous event. Decorators and carpenters toiled for days in making ready a huge nursery. From the department stores came truckloads of toys and nursery equipment. Nothing could be too fine for this famous child.

AROUND the border of the room Mildred and Charlie had an endless parade of nursery-rhyme characters depicted. At last it appeared to be finished. Everything seemingly was in readiness.

Then a new idea came to Mildred's mind. Her every desire in the nursery's appointments had been gratified, but still she was not quite satisfied. The decorators who had put on the whole array of Little Bo Peeps and Jack and Jills were called in again.

"I want you to paint some little mice on the wall," the young wife told the workmen. They stared in amazement. "I don't want my baby to grow up afraid of mice. I always was."

Mildred's unusual whim struck Charlie as funny. Laughingly he acceded to her wishes. And so the pictures of the scampering mice were added to the gathering of Fairyland figures on the nursery walls. Soon "the little mice" became a matter of much jesting in the Chaplin household. It was too good to keep; so Charlie told his close friends about it. They never failed to mention the curious wish when visiting Mildred.

THE LITTLE MOUSE
JULY 7,—JULY-10,
1919

The grave of Chaplin's infant son.

Marker on the grave.

One day Mildred jokingly called Charlie her "Big Mouse."

The pet name stuck. Together then the "Big Mouse" and his youthful wife anxiously awaited the coming of "The Little Mouse."

Finally the day arrived.

Outside the glistening white hospital door the famous jester paced nervously. Imperturbable nurses glided in and out with neither a word nor a glance. Slowly the minutes ticked off the hours.

At last the door opened. A nurse nodded a summons to the bedside of the wife.

"A boy!" she smiled.

Chaplin thrilled with happiness. The tragedies he had known and lived only served to make his joy the more intense by comparison. His own childhood had been woefully lacking. In fact, he never had been a boy. He had faced the stern realities of an adult world since his earliest memories. His son's life would be vastly different. Every advantage and care that money could provide would be his. The thought enhanced Charlie's happiness.

He peered down at the tiny bundle of life snuggled in Mildred's arms and smiled proudly. The young mother met his gaze with radiant eyes.

"Our little mouse!" she whispered.

Thus "The Little Mouse" came into the world. It was planned to christen him Charles Spencer Chaplin Jr.

But the comedian's happy hour was a short one. Tragedy stalked back into its dominant place. The cinema clown's dream turned to bitter nightmare.

After three days of life "The Little Mouse" was dead.

IN HIS Hollywood home Chaplin shut the world out from his sorrow. His grief was not for others. To the public he was Charlie Chaplin, the funny man. In his own heart he was once more Charles Chaplin, the tragedian.

The home that Mildred returned to was not a happy one. The shades in the nursery were drawn. The once joyful jest of "the little mice" was now but a painful memory. The empty crib and the figures that appeared to gaze down upon it seemed to widen the breach that came between the sorrowing husband and wife.

Perhaps Charlie, bereft of his brief moment of happiness, blamed Mildred. At any rate, he lost much of his former tenderness. Before long the Chaplin home became the tomb of a sweet romance. The doors of the nursery were locked—never to be used.

There were separations and reconciliations, but the romance had died with the Chaplin baby. Divorce soon followed.

Mildred went her way. Charlie closed up the house and later sold it. That was nearly 10 years ago, years that have brought many changes in the lives of both of them. Mildred has since remarried and been divorced.

MEXICO'S STRONG MAN GOES IN for ROMANCE

General Plutarco Elias Calles, Former President of the Republic and Mainstay of Its Government, Woos and Wins a Senorita, 30 Years His Junior.

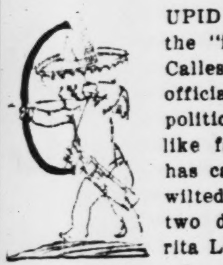
MEXICO CITY.



CUPID has found a mark in what is termed the "iron heart" of General Plutarco Elias Calles, former President of Mexico, and unofficially still a tower of strength in the political affairs of his country. The mask-like face that has scowled at danger, that has caused his subordinates to tremble, has wilted and softened to the steady gaze of two deep brown eyes, whose owner, Senorita Leonor Llorente, is to be Senora Leonor Llorente y Calles. In all respects the wedding will follow a betrothal and courtship conducted strictly along the lines laid down by generations of Mexican social life. Although in many ways, political and industrial, the country is becoming Americanized, the social customs are those of old Spanish America. Just when the marriage will be no one knows. They may be married by the time this article comes off the press.

The marriage will be the "democratic dictator's" second venture. His first wife was a true and loyal lifemate, a woman without pretension. She did not appear at official functions during the entire time she was first lady of the land. She was a housewife in the full sense of the word, and did not like the brilliance of diplomatic receptions.

Senora Natalia Chacon de Calles, first wife of Calles, and the mother of five daughters and four sons, died in a Los Angeles clinic three years ago, before her husband had voluntarily left the presidential office.

He was sincerely and deeply grieved at his loss of a faithful life companion and also, in observance of the Mexican custom, was in deep mourning. But about two years ago a young and happy light came into his life in the form of Senorita Llorente, the members of whose family had been his associates and friends for many years. Her father, until the time of his death, six years ago, was General Calles' sympathizing partisan, in the important role that the General has played since 1910.

At least four of General Calles' children are older than their step-mother-to-be. She is only 21; he is 51.

"I have always admired General Calles," is the only comment Senorita Llorente has made. Her future husband had been a sort of uncle to her until recently. For Calles and his fiancee's father were steadfast friends for some 20 years. One of Calles' characteristics has been to prohibit power and fame from interfering in friendships that date back to the time when as a young man he was first a school teacher and then a small-town merchant in his native State of Sonora.

BUT it was shortly after the death of his first wife that at a private party in Mexico City Calles was observed by his friends to have shown more than a fatherly affection towards Senorita Llorente.

An astonishing lack of knowledge of details surrounding the entire Calles-Llorente romance is shown by the ex-President's immediate relatives and his intimate friends. Calles never distinguished himself as a confiding person in politics, and his masked face has remained as stern toward all his friends and relatives in this affair of his heart as during his tenure of office. He is sphinx-like on the subject, and no one, seemingly, dares to inquire.

General Calles has not considered it necessary to satisfy the curious. The Mexican newspapers have so far failed to print a line on the engagement. The betrothal gradually "dawned on us," one of the Mexican leader's friends explained. He is as close as anyone is to Calles, but could not say whether Senorita Llorente was from the State of Vera Cruz or Yucatan. It has been ascertained, however, that the Llorente family is from Merida, Yucatan. Nor could this friend of General Calles give Senorita Llorente's father's given name.

This is indicative of the veil of secrecy that the couple have thrown about an affair which they consider their own business. This particular friend sees General Calles almost daily, and has free entrance through the soldier guard that stands on watch at the ex-President's home. In the past two years, he said, he has seen Senorita Llorente not more than half a dozen times. He could not give the name of her married sister, who acts as chaperon to the couple.

General Plutarco Elias Calles.

About the middle of February Calles told his friends bluntly that he intended to marry. To an anxious "When?" he explained as curtly, "Soon." And there the matter has rested, except for repeated confirmation of their intentions from Calles and Senorita Llorente. When he made the announcement, Calles reiterated his expressed intention of going to Europe again either this spring or in the summer, indicating that his marriage would precede the trip, which would be in the nature of a honeymoon. And that is all he has told even his friends about it.

Senorita Llorente is equally uncommunicative. She is not the flapper type. She is a brunette, has bobbed hair and dresses stylishly with short or long skirts, but is not flashy. Small in stature, she contrasts physically with the huge frame of her suitor, who is broad-shouldered, has a square jaw and a more than unusually masculine physique.

The late Senora Natalia Calles, the General's first wife.

She sings, having completed a full course in vocal training at the Ministry of Education, and has appeared in amateur concerts at events of a purely social nature.

The couple have already been seen in public in Mexico City. They slip away to more secluded retreats, with the married sister as chaperon. Cuautla, in the State of Morelos, a pleasure and bathing resort frequented by residents of Mexico City for week-end stays, is their favored trysting place.

When at Cuautla, it is noted that Calles and his fiancee make no pretense of avoiding public observation. They lunch together, under the protecting presence of the married sister. Senorita Llorente smiles openly, frankly, and is not wont to conceal her admiration for her chosen knight. The stern and hard features of the iron man can be seen to soften, and he may be observed to smile slightly but pleasingly beneath his short-cropped mustache.

They have one diversion in common, which takes up much of their time. It is horseback riding, both being devoted equestrians. Either at Cuautla, which is reached in a three-hour drive by automobile from Mexico City, or at the Calles ranch at Santa Barbara, 20 miles from Mexico City, the couple have spent many hours riding over the fields. Senorita Llorente seems to prefer horses even to her music, her art studies and her other sports.

Senorita Llorente is an ardent tennis player and a good swimmer. She has several American friends, with whom she plays tennis regularly, generally early in the morning. Even to one intimate girl companion of the courts she has rarely spoken of her approaching marriage, and this friend, like those of the ex-President, has not deemed it necessary to make any inquiries.

Although retiring by nature, says this girl, Leonor is not bashful or shy. She is just a girl who does not talk of her engagement.

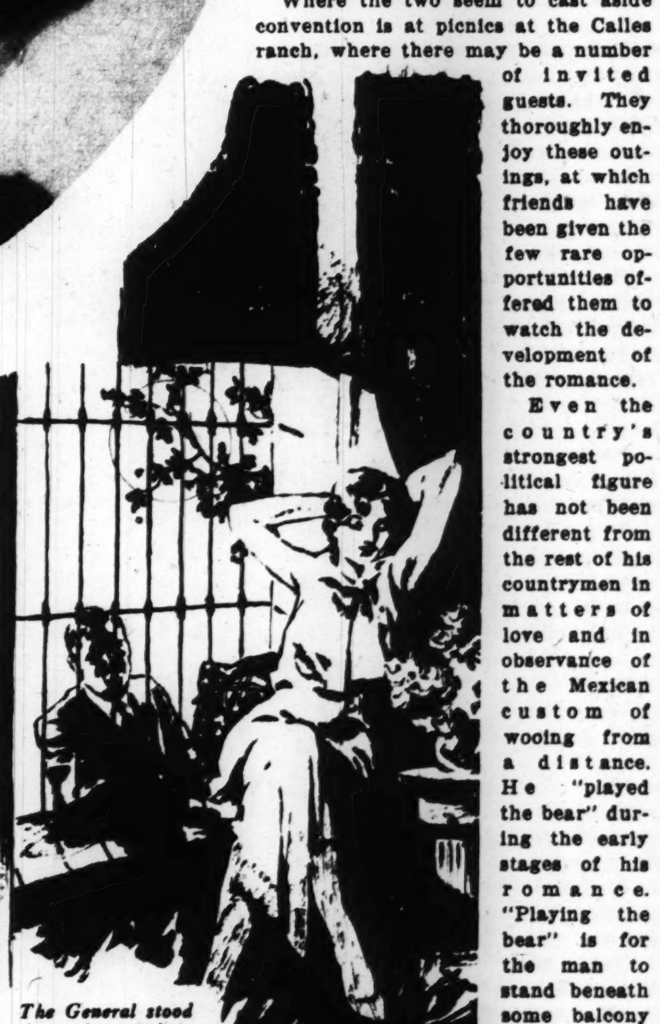
Senorita Llorente speaks English quite fluently. She learned it in Mexico. She is a frequent, almost daily, visitor at some of the leading stores, tearooms and gathering places of the younger set of Mexico City. Her conversation hinges chiefly upon sport and music. The head of her family is her uncle, Don Enrique Llorente, who, as her father used to be, is a close friend of General Calles.

Because of the former President's stand in opposition to the Catholic Church, which culminated in the religious crisis during his administration, much interest is manifested as to whether the marriage will be a civil one or whether a priest will officiate. Calles was born Catholic, and so was Senorita Llorente. Later in life, Calles left the church. His first wife, to the day of her death, always stoutly remained a Catholic.

In all likelihood the marriage will be a civil one. Nor is it at all likely that it will be other than the most quiet affair. It is felt that as bluntly as he announced his intention to wed, General Calles will suddenly announce the date. It would be in keeping for him to give his intimate friends not more than 24 hours' notice. Some think that his wedding will be so quiet that only one or two people will know about it, and that the couple may say nothing until it is all over.

SENORITA LLORENTE lives with her mother in Mexico City, not more than eight blocks from the magnificent residence the ex-President occupies in the outskirts of the city, under the shade of the century-old cypress trees from Chapultepec Park.

Where the two seem to cast aside convention is at picnics at the Calles ranch, where there may be a number of invited guests. They thoroughly enjoy these outings, at which friends have been given the few rare opportunities offered them to watch the development of the romance.



The General stood beneath a window wooing his love, "playing the bear," in approved Mexican fashion.

Even the country's strongest political figure has not been different from the rest of his countrymen in matters of love and in observance of the Mexican custom of wooing from a distance. He "played the bear" during the early stages of his romance. "Playing the bear" is for the man to stand beneath some balcony where, from behind a lace curtain, the figure of his beloved appears, silhouetted against a dim light. Playing the bear always takes place at night. When the couple first met, Senorita Llorente lived in an old-fashioned, walled-in Mexican home, with its attractive garden in the suburb of Tacubaya. Her suitor would slip away nights in his car, accompanied by a single trusted friend. The car would remain parked at a respectful distance from the house.

There, beneath a Mexican balcony, with its low-hanging vines and forbidding bars, the man who has led armies, overcome a half-dozen revolutions, swayed the scepter of might over the country, submitted to surrender, pressed close into the shadows of a distant light against the massive walls of the house, exchanging sentimental murmurs with the girl of his heart.

THIS type of love making is the Mexican fashion, and is observed throughout the country, from the lowest to the highest. It is also known as "eating iron," and both this phrase and the other, "playing the bear," are obviously drawn from the position of the suitor on the outside of a row of heavy iron bars which guard the windows of all Latin America.

All the ex-President needed was a guitar or a singing voice with which to serenade the girl who had won his heart. But she had to dispense with this romantic thrill, for Calles is neither musically inclined, nor can he sing.

A NEGRO PREACHER'S PART in the Year's Prize Play

NEW ORLEANS.

FOUR years ago Roark Bradford was a rather obscure New Orleans reporter. Today he is what the world calls famous. Thirty-four years old, he has won the O. Henry award for the "best short story" of its year. He inspired Marc Connelly, the New York dramatist, to write his play, "The Green Pastures," which is not only packing them in on Broadway, but has just received the Pulitzer Prize as the play of the year. It is the first play in many a day in which the Lord walks the stage and speaks His lines. Bradford, besides his many short stories, is the author of books the public reads with great delight. He is one of the few men who have taken up the tale of the American Negro where Joel Chandler Harris laid it down. He has done great things with it. And a Negro preacher helped him on his road to fame.

How did Bradford get that way?

Those of us who knew Roark Bradford before the outer world hailed him as great, we know how he got that way. He was that way all the time. If ever a writer won lasting fame telling the tales in print to millions as once he told them in spoken words to friends, because he knew and loved the life of which he spoke and was to write—that man is Roark Bradford.

ROARK BRADFORD knows the Negro in America. He knows him when that African is the "colored gentleman"; when he is the plain Negro. He knows him at his work and play, at his worship and his love-making, in cornfield and cottonfield, chapel and hot-cat restaurant, fish fry and in jail. He knows him. He was born among Negroes. He grew up among them. He played with Negro babies when he was a baby himself. Negro lads and Negro girls were his playmates when he got into short pants. He admits with a chuckle that he was "[illegible] nigger." In his scrap-book is a clipping from a great Eastern newspaper in which a reviewer commends Roark Bradford for having "interpreted his race so well." Roark and his friends have howled with laughter over that clipping many times.

Roark Bradford is the son of one of the oldest and most distinguished white families in the South. He was born August 21, 1896, in Lauderdale County, Tennessee, on his father's plantation. It was "about half-way between Tiger Tail and Key Corner," explains Roark, when you press him for geographical details. His father, Judge Richard Bradford, lawyer, justice of the peace, judge, was a cotton planter on some 300 acres that were farmed by about 20 Negro tenant families. Winters, Judge Bradford also conducted lumbering operations. Some 150 mules also decorated the scene of Roark's earliest memories.

From the time Roark could crawl he had a playmate—Aigie, a Negro boy two years older than he. Aigie was the son of Caledonia, who was one of the house Negroes, who did the washing and the rough work around the Bradford home. She had two other sons, Ed and Sweet. These three were young Roark's inseparable companions. He had a dog, too. Just plain yaller cur-dog, named Rattler. When Roark could barely toddle, Rattler used to lead him around amid the hooves of the Bradford mules, Aigie, Ed and Sweet trailing along. They went fishing for catfish in Knob Creek. They went paddling in Knob Creek. They played in the mud of its banks. They learned to swim there, naked as jaybirds. They said, "Good mawnin', suh," respectfully to every jay-bird they saw, for all good children in the South know the jay-bird visits the Devil in Hell every Friday and it doesn't pay to get reported for discourtesy. Roark Bradford's first schooling was at Mitchell School House, a one-room country school. Readin', writin' and cipherin' made up the curriculum.

Roark didn't spend all his time with Aigie and Ed and Sweet and Rattler. There were hours with Wes Henning and Jim. Both were Negroes. Both were averse to manual labor. Wes got by through being a kind of spiritual adviser who kept the Bradford Negroes contented at their work. He preached and counselled. Jim just got by.

Roark spent hours listening to them. It was mostly about women. Wes Henning maintained this love business, unless sanctified by holy matrimony in a proper church, was just plain sin. Jim was plain pagan. Jim said the only sin about this love business was gettin' found out. Jim said folks just naturally didn't know how to make love no more, these days. That's why they felt shame about it and said it was all a sin anyway.

Thus Roark Bradford absorbed the plantation Negro's ideas of religion and paganism when most white boys were being fed on Little Rollo.

When Roark was about 11 the family moved into town. It was a real town, a town on a railroad. Its name was Halls. There he went to high school. English poets and Shakespeare's plays and Caesar and Cicero and algebra and geometry couldn't submerge the memories of Wes Henning, that natural story teller, of Jim and Aigie and Ed and Sweet and Rattler. The boy's brain was filled with Negro lore; filled brimming over. But he managed to graduate from high school. He managed to enter college and study law. And then his wanderings began.

He was out in California when the United States entered the World War. He went to the first officers' training camp at the Presidio in San Francisco. He emerged with his commission, a lieutenant of Coast Artillery. He was ordered to the canal defenses at Panama.

THERE in the Canal Zone, where you walk across a street and leave the United States for a republic that believes in strongly-spiced amusements, Roark Bradford served and reveled. And here he received war-time wounds, though no official enemy inflicted them.

There was a Panamanian senorita——

Over the table in a cafe in old Panama, she learned that Roark had a diamond ring in his pocket and that it wasn't for her. From some mysterious hiding place, she flashed a keen and tiny knife, and went to work. Roark went to the hospital. The diamond went with him.

At last he was assigned to an outfit ordered to France. He sailed for New York. He got there November 6, 1918, eager for a sight of Paris. The next day came the false armistice report. New York went crazy over the false armistice. Along with a few million others, Lieutenant Roark Bradford got drunk.

Lordly, he rolled into the Hotel McAlpin and registered for a room, when that historic [illegible] was at its peak. He summoned a bell boy.

"I can't buy liquor in this uniform," he said, "and it's all the clothes I've got. Here——"

He thrust a roll of banknotes into the bellboy's hand.

"You look honest. You bring me a quart of good whisky every four hours, and a square meal of human vittles every eight hours."

"Yes, sir," said the bell boy. He made good.

ROARK slept and woke, ate and drank to drown his sorrow at that lost fling in Paris. Day followed day. Then the motherly woman in charge of that floor entered his room with a pass-key and remonstrated with him.

"You're too young and too nice to ruin your life with liquor," she pleaded.

Roark agreed that was reasonable. He put his right hand on the Gideon Bible, and swore off. He took a flock of cold showers, shaved and dressed, and emerged into the outer world. The date was November 11, 1918.

"They'd gone and ended the war again," he said.

He reported back for army duty. They stationed him at Sandy Hook awhile, at Fortress Monroe in Virginia awhile. Then he was sent to College Station, Mississippi, as military instructor at Mississippi Agricultural and Mechanical College.

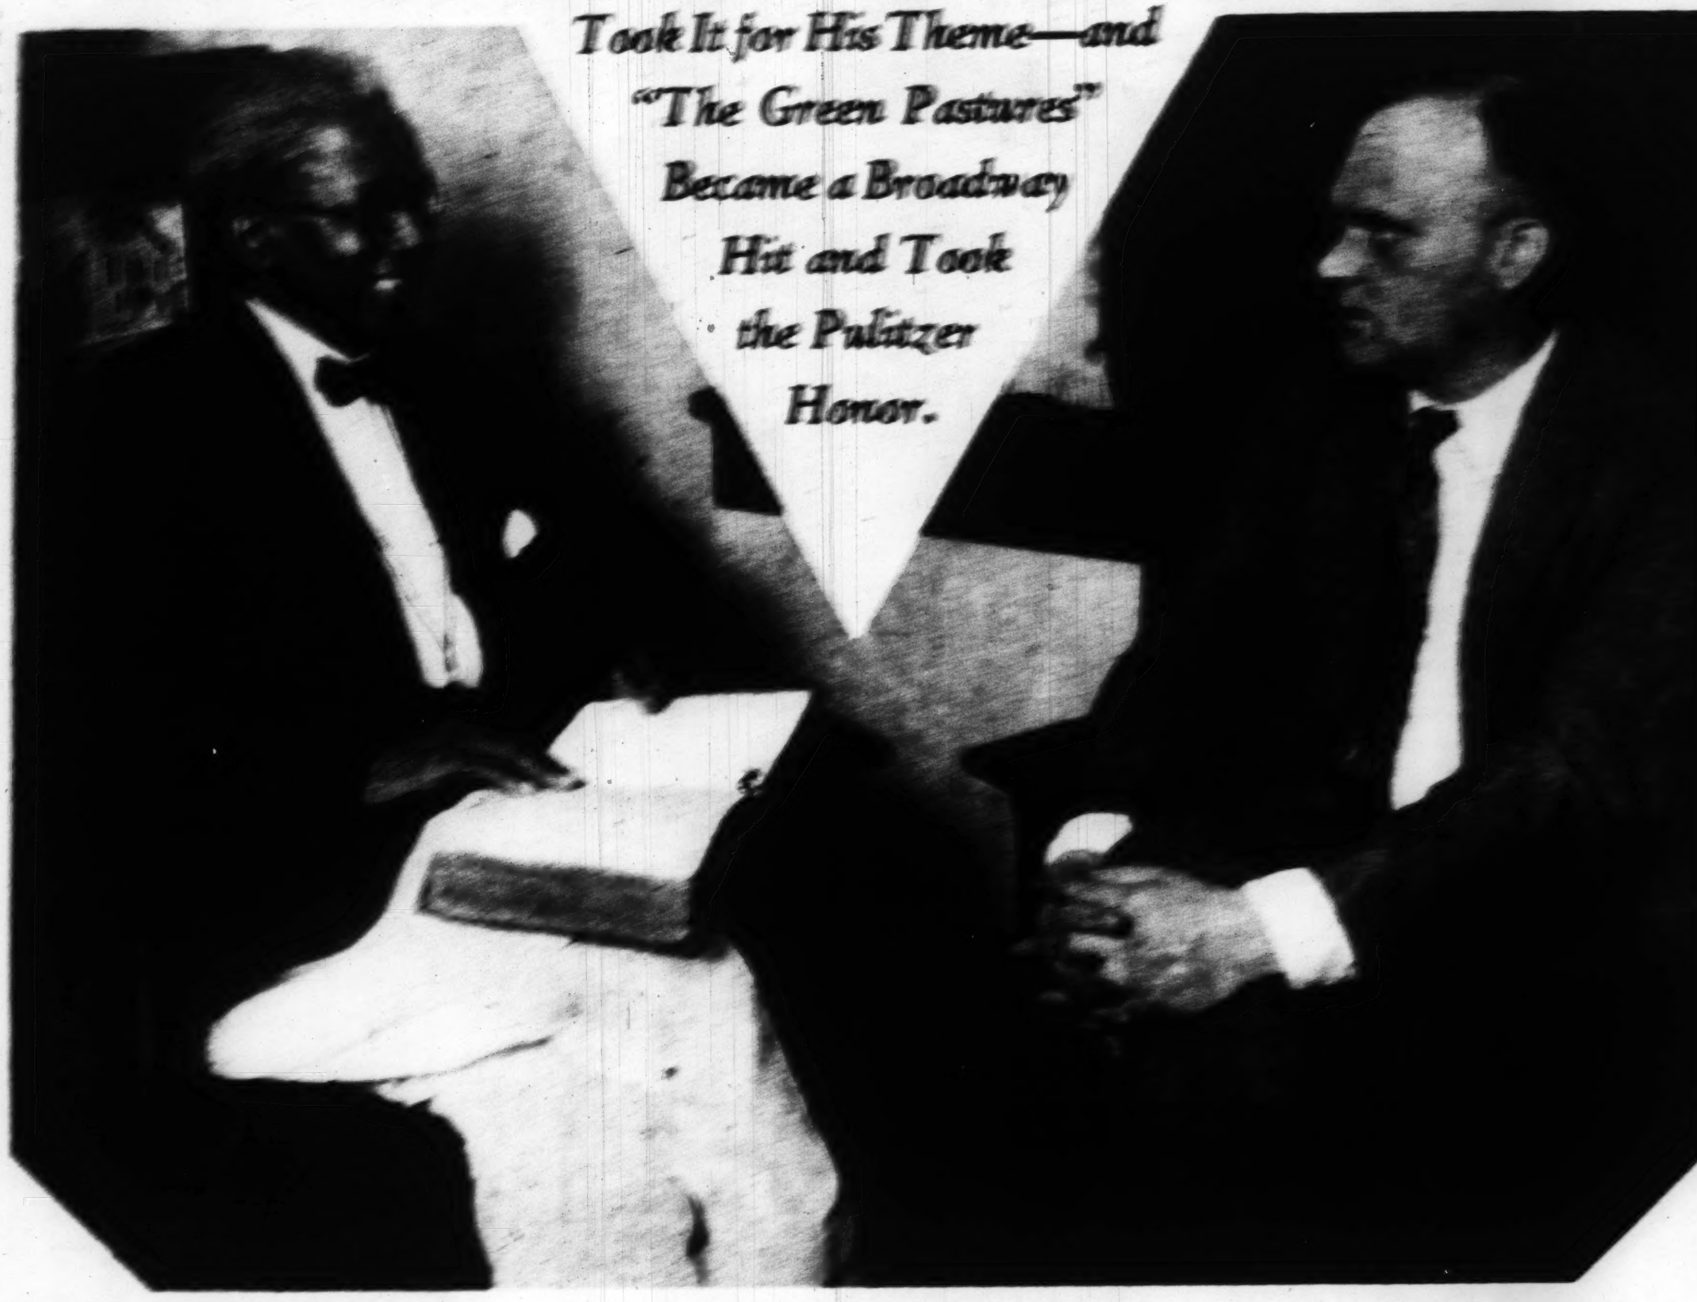
In Jackson, Mississippi, he met Miss Lydia Sehorn, a young and beautiful daughter of an old Mississippi family of Columbia. They became engaged. They were married. Then Lieutenant Roark Bradford received his honorable discharge from the army. Out of uniform and back in civvies, he headed for Atlanta. Now, by George, he would write.

He got a job as reporter on the Atlanta Georgian. From there he went as reporter to the Macon (Georgia) Telegraph. He found that he could write. But while Georgia was South, it wasn't South enough. He bought a ticket for New Orleans.

BRADFORD walked into the office of the New Orleans Times-Picayune. No job was open then, but there would be one in a few months. Meanwhile Roark heard of an opening as managing editor on the Lafayette (Louisiana) Advertiser. He headed down into the Louisiana rice belt.

He got the job. He was managing editor. He was also city editor, telegraph editor, reporter, make-up editor, and copy boy. He was the whole paper, more or less—principally more.

There it was that I first found him. Roark Bradford's genius for uncovering side-splitting characters had come out.



Rev. J. Gordon McPherson and Roark Bradford.

Marc Connelly.

In Lafayette he discovered Emil Chopin, the "fish siren." Emil could walk into the water of a bayou up to his neck. He would spread his arms wide, palms up, fingers outstretched, some six or eight inches under the surface. Silently, Emil would make strange, luring, wiggling motions with his fingers. Curious vibrations went through the water. And—believe it or not—into Emil's open palms would swim fat catfish, gaspergou, sac-au-lait, perch, green trout. He would flip them from palm through air out on the bank and then lure more. They skittered from his hands to the bank in a steady, silvery, glittering stream. Emil was a riot at a fish-fry. The late United States Senator Robert Broussard once brought a delegation from the United States Senate to Lafayette to see Emil Chopin perform—and Emil delivered. Down there, too, Roark Bradford discovered Judge J. G. Martin of the City Court—who went about his daily affairs in high black silk hat and black alpaca coat. They became bosom friends.

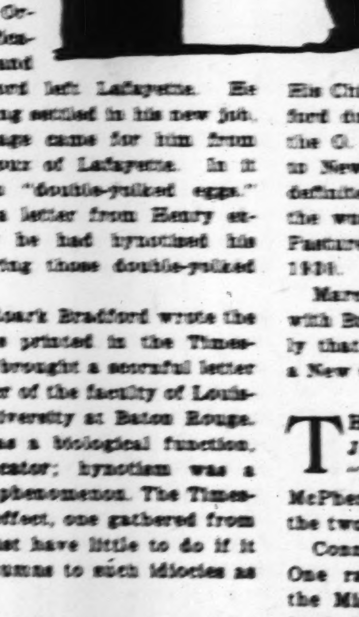
One day Bradford walked into Judge Martin's court. From the bench the Judge greeted him with a genial wave of the hand.

"Any story today, Judge?" asked Roark, as he shook hands with the Court, including "Cash," the bailiff.

"Well, we just finished tryin' one Negro and his case was mighty funny," admitted Judge Martin. "Looks like you could get a story out of him. Cash—go get him. We'll try him again."

And they did.

Down there in the Lafayette country Bradford discovered Henry Boudroux. Henry, concedes Roark, would do about anything but hard work. Henry was a hypnotist. He was a hunter of pirate treasure. He was a weather prophet. They became as blood brothers.



Then the opening on the staff of the New Orleans Times-Picayune came, and Roark Bradford left Lafayette. He was just getting settled in his new job when a package came for him from Henry Boudroux of Lafayette. In it were a dozen "double-yolked eggs." With it was a letter from Henry explaining how he had hypnotized his hens into laying those double-yolked eggs.

Naturally Roark Bradford wrote the story. It was printed in the Times-Picayune. It brought a scornful letter from a member of the faculty of Louisiana State University at Baton Rouge. Egg-laying was a biological function, said the educator; hypnotism was a psychological phenomenon. The Times-Picayune, in effect, one gathered from the letter, must have little to do if it opened its columns to such idiocies as these.

NEXT time Henry Boudroux got to New Orleans, Roark told him about it, and showed him the letter. Henry gazed long and earnestly at "biological function" and "psychological phenomenon."

"What he mean?" asked Henry Boudroux.

"He means you can't do it," explained Bradford.

"Look!" exclaimed Henry indignantly. "I hypnotize him! I make HIM lay a double-yolked egg!"

"Ever since," mourns Bradford, "I've been trying to bring Henr the professor together. I did have any luck."

Outside his job, Roark Rampart street, which is the leans Negro's Broadway. He the river-front. He haunted Negro district.

It was from the river-front brought back the story of ringing catfish. On the wharf found a Negro asleep. Henry award was made, came to New Orleans with something very definite in his mind. It was the play the world now knows as "The Green Pastures," the Pulitzer prize play of 1930.

Marc Connelly went into a huddle with Bradford. Roark told him frankly that much of the stuff came from a New Orleans Negro preacher.

THAT preacher is the Reverend J. Gordon McPherson, known as "Black Billy Sunday." I think McPherson is the better preacher of the two.

Connelly was faintly incredulous. One rainy Sunday night he crossed the Mississippi to Algiers, that west-bank New Orleans suburb, and went to the Old Providence Baptist Church on Vallette street, where "Deacon" McPherson, as so many know him, was preaching. Sighting Connelly, McPherson came down from his pulpit and greeted the visitor cordially.

"I know what you want, sir," he said. "You want to hear us sing. We will endeavor to oblige you, sir. Serving our fellow men is one way of praising the Lord."

Connelly sat down. They sang the old Negro spirituals for him. "Blac

Edmund H. Wuerpel

Director of the St. Louis School of Fine Arts at Washington University, Artist and Critic, Prized Friend of Whistler, He Calls Modernism an Authentic Expression of the Age and Believes Beauty in a City Works for the Public Good

To our "rare" friend Wuerpel – with affection

By JULIUS KLYMAN

Of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine Staff

ONE day, when the calendar was still in the later 1800s, a young art student named Edmund Henry Wuerpel sat himself down in the famous Luxemburg gallery in Paris and engaged in that ancient practice of embryonic artists—he was copying a painting. The particular painting was a portrait of James McNeill Whistler's mother, painted by the woman's tremendous son. As young Mr. Wuerpel painted he noticed a man come into the gallery, peer at the original, peer at the copy, peer at the painter. He walked around Wuerpel and finally got between him and his subject. Wuerpel, quite naturally, didn't like it, and he announced that fact indignantly in French. The intruder apologized, complimented the young man on his copy and removed himself, much to the improvement of Wuerpel's peace of mind. Another one of those pests was gone. Wuerpel returned to Paris and it wasn't long after that that he was delegated by the American Art Association to wait upon the pungent, vitriolic Mr. Whistler at his home and borrow some of the great artist's paintings. Wuerpel had never met Whistler; he looked toward the meeting with considerable expectation. He entered the artist's study—and there was the fellow who had annoyed him so thoroughly in Luxemburg. Wuerpel had been complimented by Jimmie Whistler himself—and hadn't known it.

Wuerpel and his latest painting. The reproduction of the landscape, in this contracted form, does not, of course, exhibit its full values.

This young American became one of the closest friends Whistler ever had. Whistler, who was old enough to have been his father, became an elder brother to him. Wuerpel, now the director of the St. Louis School of Fine Arts of Washington University, a widely recognized critic and teacher, who can say with authority that Whistler ranks next to Rembrandt as an etcher—this same Wuerpel who in Paris so many years ago was just another art student, became almost a member of Whistler's family. He was a continual visitor at Whistler's home, he ate with the artist and his wife, he had a special signal so Whistler might know who was knocking on his studio door. Whistler, in turn, often trudged up the long flights of stairs that took him to Wuerpel's sixth-floor quarters. The fastidious Jimmie, calling upon his protege when Wuerpel was preparing his lunch, always shook his head in answer to the young man's invitation to join him at table. Whistler was entirely too meticulous about what he put into his stomach. He would stretch out and rest while Wuerpel ate, and the meal over, grab Wuerpel by the arm and make for a restaurant. "You can eat some more," he'd say. "You haven't had anything yet."

JIMMIE WHISTLER'S reputation as a brilliant and painful opponent in verbal encounters is almost as great as his reputation as an artist. An individualist in his work, he was bitterly assailed by the conservatives of the art world. Ruskin accused him of "flinging a pot of paint in the public's face," and there is good reason to believe Ruskin was sorry he spoke. Whistler took him into court. When an attorney, cross-examining Whistler, pretended to be amazed that Whistler asked $1000 for a painting that took but two days' work, Whistler pertly told the lawyer that he didn't ask $1000 for two days' labor; "I ask it for the knowledge of a lifetime." Whistler, an American, was made president of the Royal Society of British Artists. Two years later, when he failed at re-election, he remarked: "The artists have come out, the British remain." That was the pungent Whistler, the Whistler who is remembered as a personality, the Whistler who told a London art critic that the critic had no right to say that a painting was "good or bad"—it was enough to say that he liked it or he didn't like it. And when the brilliant young Oscar Wilde heard the remark and said to Whistler, "I wish I had said that," Whistler swiftly replied "You will, Oscar."

"Whistler was not a pugnacious man or a bitter one," Wuerpel explains. "As well as I knew him and as long as I knew him, he never said an unkind or unpleasant word to me. But he would not stand for unfair attack. Then he was ready to defend himself and defend himself thoroughly. He did not mind just criticism. I remember once going into his studio when he was working. I looked at the painting and shook my head. 'I don't think your sky goes with your foreground,' I told him. A few days later a messenger came to my place with a note from Whistler. He wanted to see me at once. I hurried over. 'You remember that painting I was working on the other day?' he asked. I nodded. 'You've spoiled it,' he said. 'Spoiled it?' I asked. 'How could I spoil it?'

"'You said the sky didn't go with the foreground,' he replied. 'I know it,' I answered. 'And I still don't think it does.' Whistler was quiet for a moment. 'All right,' he replied. And that was the end of it.

"When the time came for me to leave Paris, he tried to dissuade me. He wanted to know if it was money. Partly, I told him. He told me not to worry. He'd take care of me. He was continually trying to help some student. He helped many of them, though they didn't know where the aid came from. And he was never prosperous. Mrs. Whistler told me more than once that she didn't know how they were going to get along.

"He felt very badly when I finally left for America. I was to get my train at the Gare Montparnasse. He told me he would be there to see me off. Now, in the garden of his home was a rose bush. It was a favorite of his; no one could touch it, not even Mrs. Whistler. Well, I got to the station and Whistler didn't arrive. I was terribly disappointed. But presently a friend of ours came in and gave me a package. 'Jimmie doesn't want you to open this until you are on your way,' he told me. 'He couldn't come to see you off. He said he couldn't stand it.'

"WHEN I was on my way I opened the package. It was a copy of his book, 'The Gentle Art of Making Enemies.' The printed dedication, you may remember, reads: 'To The rare Few, who, early in Life, have rid Themselves of the Friendship of the Many, these pathetic Papers are inscribed.' On another page he had written, 'To our "rare" friend Wuerpel—with affection.' And in the pages of the book, a rose from his bush was pressed. Of course, I still have it.

"I never saw Whistler again. I corresponded with him, and he was going to pay a visit to Mrs. Wuerpel and me during the World's Fair here. But he died the year before.

"After I returned to America I sent a painting to Paris for an exhibition. It was accepted. Whistler was one of the judges, and each judge was allowed one request. Whistler's was that my painting should be hung next to one of his.

"What was the chief thing I learned from Whistler? Tolerance for everybody's honest effort."

Today Wuerpel looks at modernism in art. He does not particularly like it. But he is tolerant. His whole background, I should think, breeds tolerance. His early days were not sequestered or of plush. He did not even know he wanted to be an artist until young manhood was upon him.

Wuerpel was born in St. Louis in 1866. When he was five years old, his family moved to Mexico, going to a place near Monterey. His father, rather the dreamer, took a ranch and hoped to make a fortune raising horses. It wasn't long before his small son, Edmund, went to work. When he was eight he was timekeeper in a nearby silver mine. Before long he was helping his father on the ranch, his job tending horses. There were 200 of the animals.

But his father's dreams were not to be fulfilled. Horse raising was not profitable. With high enthusiasm his father turned to hogs, and Edmund likewise turned to hog herder. He roamed about the countryside, watching his charges, and he is convinced that a mule is a passive, good-tempered creature compared to a hog. Hogs, he thinks, are just about the most cantankerous beasts on the earth. For companionship the boy joined forces with a Mexican lad who had an equally lofty job, goat herder. They kept each other company, these two lads, as they went about their work.

When Edmund Wuerpel came of high school age he returned to St. Louis, taking up his residence with an uncle, the late William Taussig, one of the men responsible for the building of Eads Bridge. Wuerpel attended the old Manual Training School. In his last year he was ill and the illness left him temporarily blind. He could not attend classes, but some of his friends tried to keep him familiar with his work. He took his examinations verbally, and was told to appear at graduation. He heard it said that two boys were close competitors for highest honors. One boy had made an average of 96 per cent, the other was a tenth per cent better. He thought he knew who one of the boys must be; he wondered who might be the other. He found that he himself was the boy who ranked the class.

HE RECOVERED his sight and entered the mechanical engineering school of Washington University. He completed his first year. Summer arrived and vacation time. He went, one day, with his aunt to purchase some groceries. The day was a scorcher and one of the horses pulling the car they were on suffered a sunstroke. It meant that Wuerpel and his aunt would have to walk the rest of the way to their home. He picked up the bundles. They began crossing Lafayette Park. And young Wuerpel, too, had sunstroke.

It was impossible for him to continue his work in engineering. He suffered terrible headaches—they have never altogether left him. His uncle sent him off upon a sea voyage. He visited Australia, the South Sea Islands, New Zealand, Hawaii. He returned to St. Louis and it was decided he would go to Harvard for a time and take a classical course. The work still was too much for him. He returned and made a journey to Mexico. For a time he worked in an engineering camp. Then back to St. Louis again.

He came to the conclusion he would give up engineering; he wanted to be an architect. That was all right, his uncle said; architecture was akin to engineering. But it was suggested that he go to art school for a year. After that time his health would permit him to start his architect's work.

He entered art school. He has never

NOBODY IN THE EAST

Problem of the Fourth for Bridge.

IF YOU should spot Diogenes strolling about these days and ask him what he is doing with himself, he would probably say that he has quit the honest-man racket and is now searching for a fourth for bridge.

The hunt for original fourths is never a cinch, but the quest for substitute fourths is the hardest and accounts for most of the bridge-player trade booked by the various hair-restoring companies.

Statistics furnished by the telephone company show that the majority of the calls from 8:15 to 9:30 each night are frenzied entreaties for substitutes to take the place of people who have backed out owing to fatigue, sudden headaches, visiting buyers or history examinations the next morning, where there are children in the family. The percentage of fourths obtained is quite small, ranging from 16 per cent around 8:15 to 6 per cent at 8:40 and 2 per cent after 9 o'clock.

A society woman, disappointed at the last minute, calls up a number of friends, but they either have prior engagements or are out of town for the thermal period. Since she can't get a first-string player, she looks outside of the set for a relief player who has been riding the davenport all season. She wouldn't feel more humiliated if she were to be discovered in a bargain basement buying a curling iron, but she must find somebody to play North.

"Hello, Mrs. Gribble," she begins. "This is Winona Whiffley of Dividend Heights. . . . Say, kid, Grace Pennywhacker's dealing arm has gone back on her all of a sudden and now's your chance to go in there and show us what you can do. How's the old bidding eye?"

"So, the proud Mrs. Whiffley wants humble little me for a fourth," chuckles Mrs. Gribble. "Isn't it rather strange that you should be calling on me when I wasn't good enough for you at the beginning of the season?" Here her tone changes and she rasps: "I'm going to hold out for invitations to your lawn fete next month and your Venetian ball next autumn, and you'll have to agree to those terms or I won't lift a card for you. Savvy?"

Of course, if people are aware that fourths are going to be scarce, they might get results with a three-time want ad something like this:

"Wanted—Bridge fourth, Tuesday night. Society trio with Mayflower ancestry would be interested in hearing from neat, even-tempered gentleman with fair knowledge of game who is not afraid of long hours. Call at 18 Petroleum Terrace, from 10 to 11 a. m. and ask for Mr. Muchupper."

SOME day an enterprising business man will come along and open up a kind of employment bureau where extra players may be obtained on short notice. The establishment will be centrally located and have a name something like the Acme Bridge and Ping-Pong Supply Company.

The company's large reception room is crowded with waiting fourths. Over in the corner a cool, efficient-looking woman is seated at a switchboard, which is sparkling on every facet.

"I'm sorry, Mrs. Toprank," she is telling the transmitter in conciliatory tones. "The two Arabic-speaking players were sent to an address on the other side of the street and came to your home by mistake. . . . I told them distinctly to watch out for the stone lion with the match scratches on the ear. . . . Yes, madam, I'll send over two English-speaking players immediately. . . . Thank you and good-by. . . . Huddo, huddo. . . . Acme Bridge and Ping!"

"This is Mrs. Stanford Bondclipper of 16 Copper Grove," says an imperious voice. "What have you in bridge players, please?"

"We have some very desirable players this evening, Mrs. Bondclipper. We just received a fresh shipment of the new contract models, and they're going like hot cakes. Was it a gentleman or a lady player you desired, madam?"

"A gentleman. My husband and myself are entertaining my sister, who is here from Milwaukee, and we need a man to fill out our table. I'd like you to select a nice, refined type—not too good a player, mind you—and send him right over."

"With pleasure. Of course, you understand, madam, that we rent these people out on a sliding scale, based on their merits as players and their ability to mix cocktails and tell stories. I have a few of the choicest grades left, madam, if that will be satisfactory."

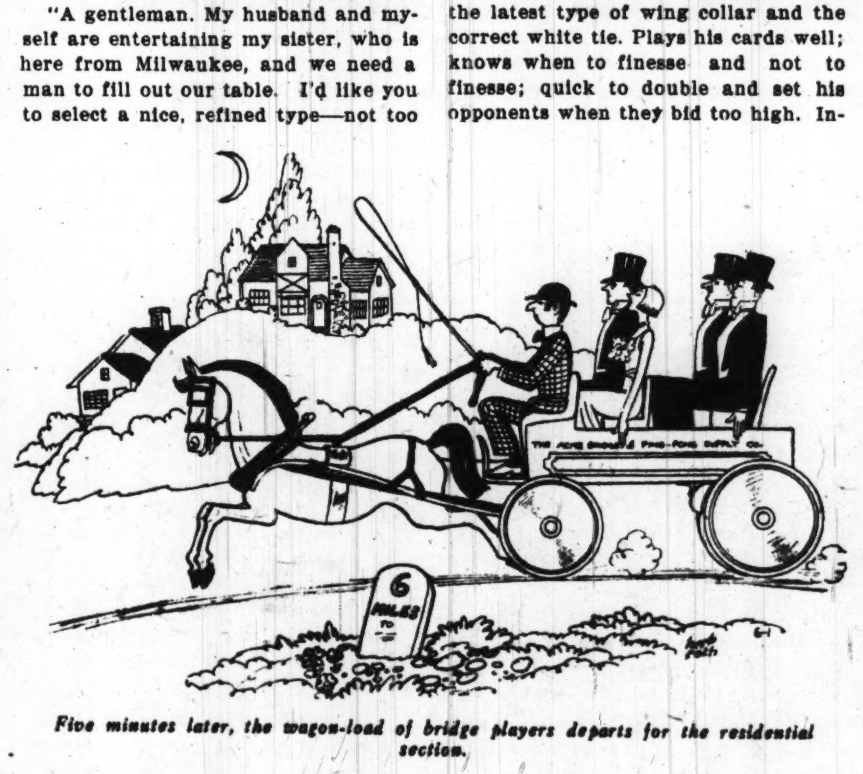
"Quite. Price is no object. Please remember we are the Stanford Bondclippers."

"Yes, madam. I think I have just the player for you. He is dressed in evening attire and wears one of the new pique shirts with the single stud; the latest type of wing collar and the correct white tie. Plays his cards well; knows when to finesse and not to finesse; quick to double and set his opponents when they bid too high. Interesting character; spent boyhood on coal barge plying between Barcelona and Marseilles; has nice line of Scotch dialect stories; careful of cigarette ashes."

"Very well, I suppose he'll do. But Mr. Bondclipper insists on prompt delivery."

"Oh, certainly. All orders taken before 9:30 are delivered that same evening. The wagon will be leaving any minute now. Thank you and good-by, Mrs. Bondclipper. . . . Huddo, huddo. Acme Bridge and Ping!"

The operator beckons the young man she has described, scribbles the address on a sheet of scratch paper and hands it to him. He thanks her, folds the paper carefully and puts it inside of his hat.



THE ACME BRIDGE & PING-PONG SUPPLY CO.

Five minutes later, the wagon-load of bridge players departs for the residential section.

FIVE minutes later, the wagon-load of bridge players departs for the residential section. Upon arriving at 16 Copper Grove, the driver pulls up the horse with a lusty "Whoa, Jack!" Then he runs around to the rear of the wagon, yanks out the young man, puts him under his arm and bounds up the front steps three at a time. He pushes the doorbell violently, yells, "Acme Bridge!" and drops the player on the doormat. Then he rushes back to the wagon, checks off the call on his route list, cracks the whip and clatters away for 32 Merger Lane.

The young man is escorted into the hall, where the lady of the house inspects him critically through her lorgnette.

"A likely-looking player," she murmurs. "What is your name, young man?"

"Ferdinand Glimp, mom."

"I shall call you William," says the hostess, after a moment's reflection. "Please follow me into the drawing room. I trust a tenth of a cent will be all right?"

"My usual game, mom. If I win, I keep it; if I lose, you deduct the amount from your gross bill. I think I shall like this place, mom, if I may say so."

Just before the game starts, William removes a small meter from his coat pocket and sets it running on the floor beside him. He explains that the rates are $25 for the first hour and $10 for each half-hour thereafter or fraction thereof, with no credit allowance for pauses to hear radio programs or indulge in guerilla warfare.

Every time the situation gets tense William narrates one of his inimitable Scotch stories. When his partner makes a dumb play he says nothing at all, but smiles sweetly.

Along about 10:30 the refreshments are brought in and there is an embarrassing pause. The host and the visitor cough uneasily, twiddle their thumbs and gaze at the ceiling. Then Mrs. Bondclipper gives William a plate of cake and sandwiches and tells him to take it out to the pantry. He does so, but fails to come back when the players are ready to continue. The buzzer bringing no response, Mrs. Bondclipper repairs to the kitchen and discovers William engrossed in a game with the maid, the butler and the night watchman. They, too, needed a fourth.

At any rate, the bureau might help some toward solving a problem that is baffling the best minds in America. It is becoming as hard to find the bridge fourth as it is to find the fourth dimension.

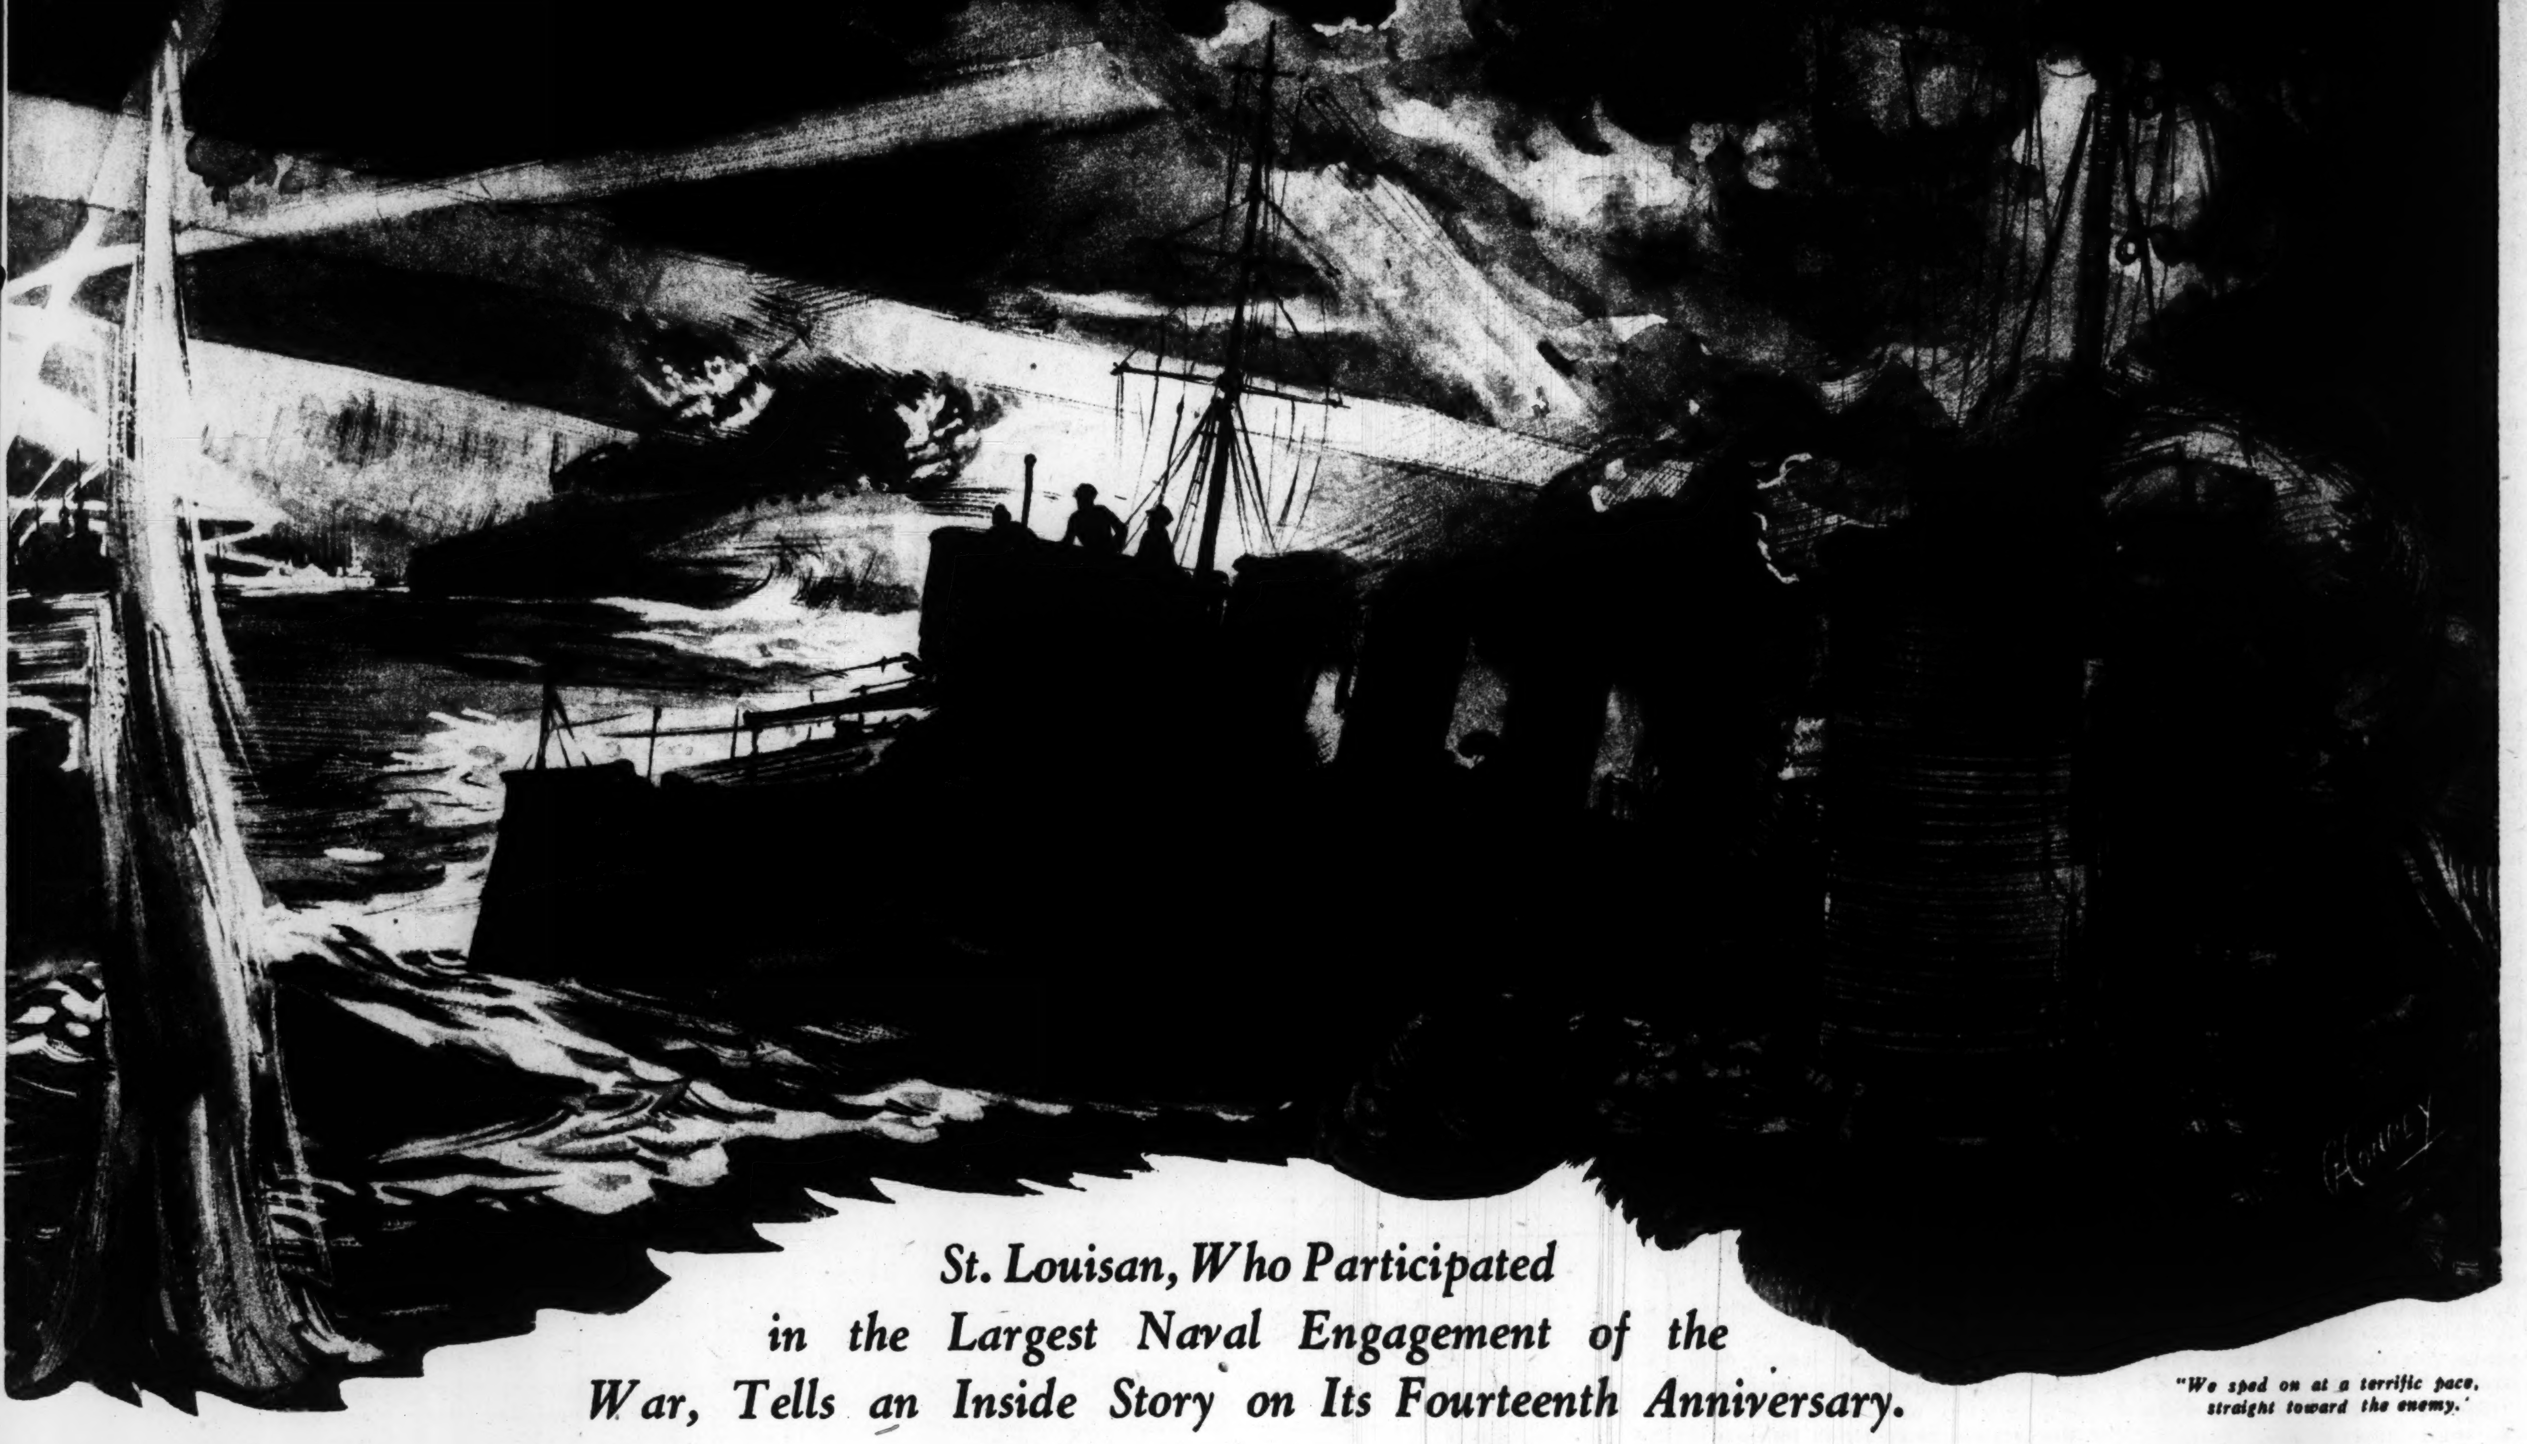
The "REAL HEROES" on the GERMAN SIDE in the BATTLE of JUTLAND



"We sped on at a terrific pace, straight toward the enemy."

St. Louisan, Who Participated in the Largest Naval Engagement of the War, Tells an Inside Story on Its Fourteenth Anniversary.

Frank Weishaupt served in the German Navy throughout the World War. After the war he came to America and since 1922 has made his home in St. Louis, where he is in the advertising business.

By FRANK WEISHAUPT

FOURTEEN years ago yesterday the greatest naval battle in the history of the world was fought just off the coast of Jutland of Northern Denmark. Versions, stories and works of history have since been printed and published which generally credit Admiral Scheer, then Commander in Chief of the German Navy, for the heroic stand the latter had made in this battle between the two biggest competitors for the naval supremacy of the world.

As a participant in this event, I feel a sense of obligation to two modest and unassuming officers of the German Navy who deserve to go down in history as the real leaders and true heroes on the German side of the struggle. They are among the few truly beloved leaders of the former imperial navy and, to my knowledge, have never received full credit for their exemplary heroism. They are Admirals Behnke and Hipper. The former was my superior officer, leading the crack squadron of German battleships, and Hipper was the veteran commander of the battle cruisers and scouting fleet.

ON MAY 31, about 4 p. m., Hipper's scouting fleet fired the first gun upon meeting the British light cruisers. About 75 miles away from the nucleus of the German fleet, he unhesitatingly sacrificed the advantage of retreating towards it. Instead, he relentlessly tore after the British, who were the wiser and retreated due northwest, towards their own battle fleet, under Admirals Jellicoe and Beatty. With only his five battle cruisers, a number of light cruisers and torpedo boats, he fearlessly picked and plunged into a murderous battle with what then turned out to be almost the entire British fleet. For about two hours his heroic cruiser squadron stood the brunt of this fierce encounter with unflinching courage. A piece of bad luck eliminated his best ship, the then brand-new S. M. S. Luetzow, which was sunk by its own crew after the torpedo nets had hopelessly ensnared its propellers so that the big man-o'-war was unable to move and became an easy target for the British. This, however, gave Hipper's other four ships a short breathing spell, during which he changed flagships. Although lying completely still, the Luetzow's guns never stopped firing, repulsing several fierce torpedo attacks made in an attempt by the English fleet to quickly finish the Luetzow. Some of the latter's five-inch guns, overheated and too rapidly cooled by turning a fire hose on them, split wide open at the mouth. Torpedo boats finally succeeded in throwing a heavy smoke screen around this ship and all of its crew (as far as they were able to walk) were taken off by light cruisers. A heavy charge of dynamite slowly turned the big man-o'-war over on its side, in which position she kept floating for several days.

THIS was the most critical moment of the encounter. Hipper's few ships, with their dead tired and exhausted crews, could not last very much longer, the odds being more than four to one against them. Standing on the bridge of our speedy destroyer, the B-98, I observed all the signals given by Hipper's flagship. The English fleet came threateningly near closing in on us. Never once was there a thought of retreating in this fearless man's mind. I knew our crucial moment had come when flag Z went half-mast aboard the flagship with an accompanying signal addressed to all light cruisers and destroyers: Ready to attack. Flag Z went up and our destroyers made for the gaps between Hipper's cruisers in a rush. Bidding the rest of the world good-by, we literally flew past the big ships on towards the enemy, our little boat trembling and shaking under the terrific force of its engines and propellers, two of our torpedoes in readiness. Hipper's next signal ordered his big ships to maintain as rapid a gunfire as possible to discourage an English counter-attack. The thick, brown powder-smoke of Hipper's big guns around and in back of us and the enemy's heavy artillery belching terrible, big clouds in front of us, we sped on at a terrific pace, straight towards the enemy's lines, the ghastly powder smoke somewhat concealing our movement. Our rear mast went overboard—nobody paid much attention to it. Half of one of our smokestacks went the same way. Getting closer and closer to the enemy, I kept my eyes glued on the mast of our flotilla chief for signals, our torpedo gunners tensely in readiness. The hellish roar of both the English and Hipper's artillery was such that I stuffed the last piece of cotton in my ears. Then the flotilla commander signaled: Turn, and at almost right angles we changed course, each of our boats discharging two shiny torpedoes. Completing our turn about, we sped back as fast as we came, taking our position again opposite Hipper's cruisers.

Photograph of the German battle cruiser, Seydlitz, on fire.

Meanwhile, however, the much slower dreadnaughts had been running a furious race against time, knowing of our plight. Admiral Behnke appeared with his crack squadron of four of the latest type German battleships, his firemen working to exhaustion to provide their ships with every inch of speed they could muster. The British opened fire on them at a distance of about 18 miles.

BEHNKE, however, held on to his ammunition until he came within about 10 miles, a short range, affording accurate aim for his 11-inch guns. Behnke himself, a quiet-mannered man of few words, refused the protection of his flagship's 15-inch steel tower, walking around the outside of it. He gave his orders through the narrow observation slits from the outside, probably the only man aboard without the protection of heavy armor plates. Drawing his ships up alongside of Hipper's, he opened up on the British with deliberate, devastating swiftness and terrific effect.

There was not the minutest interruption in the terrific roar of hundreds of big-caliber guns. In the veritable hailstorm of big shells, Admiral Behnke was wounded by a fragment slashing open his back and thigh. Sitting down, he grimly ordered and directed the torpedo boats' attack which broke the British lines and was the turning point of the battle. The continuous, ear-splitting roar of big-caliber guns shook the windows of houses scores of miles away in Denmark. The British battleship, Queen Mary, went down almost entirely ablaze. Our cruiser, Weisbaden, leading our torpedo boats in a death-defying, furious attack on the British lines, just had disappeared in a watery grave amid a shower of shells. Several of our brave little torpedo boats, hit in the bow beneath the water line by British shells, went down somersaulting like rabbits. Behnke's dreadnaughts now gallantly bore the brunt of another furious attempt by the enemy to finish the battle before the rest of our big ships arrived. By clever maneuvering, rapid changes of speed and course, he made it as hard as possible for the British gunners to get or retain accurate aim.

Admiral Hipper's remaining four battle cruisers, after a short breathing spell, again entered the battle and together with another older squadron of battleships now arriving on the scene united in the heroic effort of Behnke's four ships to conquer the tremendous odds against them, and it was in their terrific onslaught that H. M. SS. Invincible and Indefatigable sank and the H. M. S. Warspite was near sinking. Both Behnke and Hipper, the former in high fever from his wound, reinforced by more newly-arrived battleships now made their joint final attack on the British lines. Purplish-yellow, belching glares continually illuminated the night, accompanied by uninterrupted, deafening roars. A co-ordinated formation was impossible to maintain and the struggle developed into a free-lance fight, our ships acting singly or in pairs, as they happened to meet. This was a trying period for us, the signal personnel, for a few dots and dashes, with small, colored signal lamps, meant friend or foe, either death and destruction or immunity. Our big reflectors, as far as they were not destroyed, were only used where instantaneous and definite identification was necessary. The chief of the imperial fleet, Admiral Scheer, had also appeared with the rest of his ships, opening fire, and the enemy assembled and retreated, with heavy losses of totally and partially disabled men-o'-war.

AFTER rescuing scores of British sailors, our fleet slowly and wearily made its way home. Radio communication during the engagement had been impossible because of deliberate interference, and none of us knew our definite losses. We now commenced to take stock of the situation and found our own boat without serious damage except for a badly-battered upper deck, mast, etc. Radio signals told us of the heavily-damaged S. M. S. Seydlitz, which had been Hipper's flagship for a long time and had been partially disabled several times before in engagements with parts of the British fleet. Several of our small cruisers and torpedo boats were loaded to capacity with survivors of our own and British ships. Clad only in a pair of greasy pants and wooden slippers, our rescued enemies were mostly firemen, who told us of the destruction aboard their ships before they sank. Some of their comrades, they told us, had literally burned to death swimming in the cold sea, surrounded by burning oil which flowed out of the battered oil

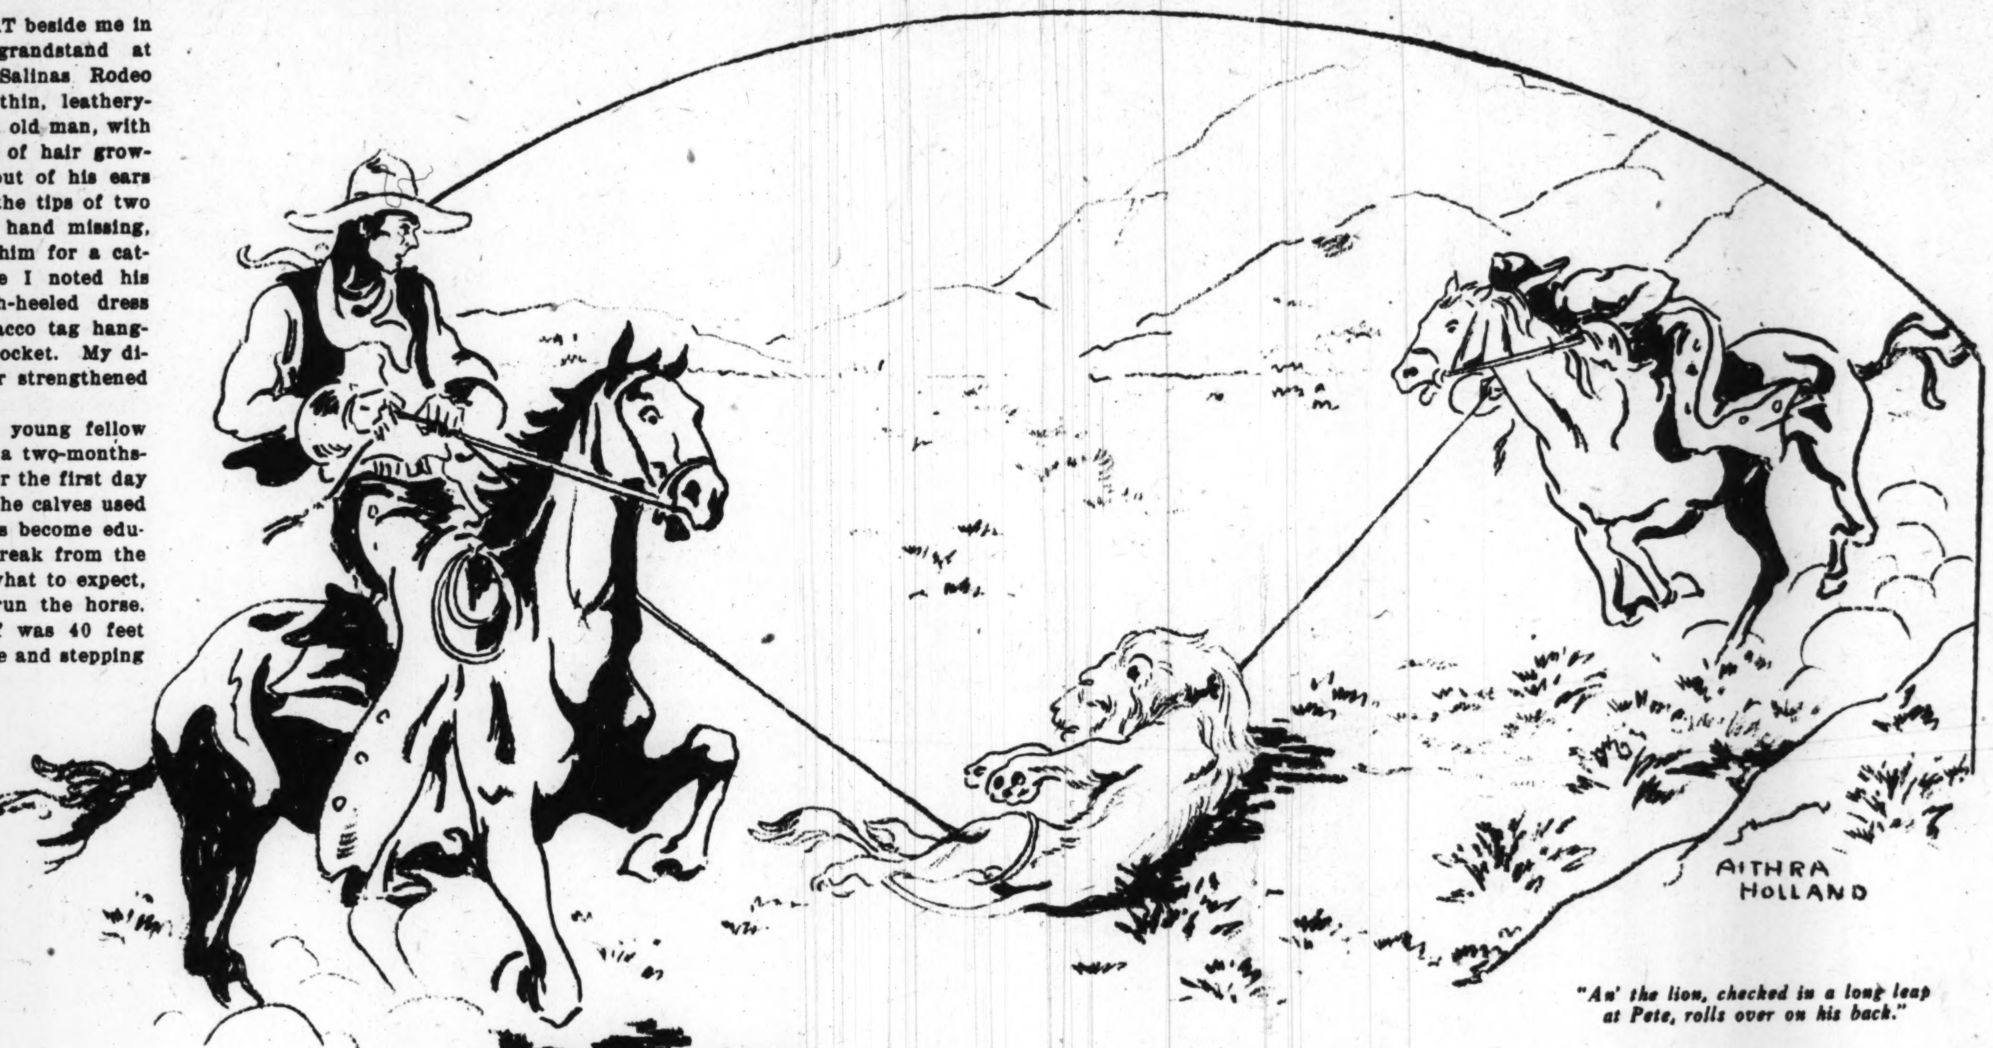
LIONIZED

By
PETER B. KYNE



"An' the lion, checked in a long leap at Pete, rolls over on his back."

HE SAT beside me in the grandstand at the Salinas Rodeo—a thin, leathery-faced old man, with tufts of hair growing out of his ears and the tips of two fingers on his left hand missing, wherefore I knew him for a cattleman even before I noted his hat, his $30, high-heeled dress boots, and the tobacco tag hanging from his vest pocket. My diagnosis was further strengthened presently.

Some half-baked young fellow was trying to rope a two-months-old calf. Now, after the first day or two at a rodeo, the calves used in the roping events become educated; when they break from the chutes they know what to expect, so they try to outrun the horse. This particular calf was 40 feet beyond the dead line and stepping at the rate of a quarter in about 25 seconds, when the roper made his cast at 15 feet—and missed

"Arggh!" snarled the old gentleman with the tufts of hair in his ears. But the cowboy had another rope, and far down the field he managed to stop his calf. As he came crawling up the rope and endeavored to "flank" the little animal, preparatory to tying it, the calf butted him and knocked him back on his haunches. The cowboy recovered, grasped the calf again, slipped and went down with the animal on top of him. And it was then that I knew my neighbor for the old cowboy he was.

"Hi!" he shouted in a high, thin voice, like a lobo wolf, "somebody give that calf a rope and he'll tie that cowboy yet!"

His witticism drew a laugh from the crowd, and in the democracy of the moment I dared start a conversation with the cynic.

"I see you know something about roping, yourself," I remarked.

He glanced guiltily at his fingers. "If I'd ever been a first-class roper I wouldn't have had the tips of them fingers tore off, mister," he replied candidly. "Come of letting the left hand stray over the pommel as you throw your dally and give your steer the bust. No, I ain't never been a star roper, although when I was that feller's age I could come home from town drunk, fork my pony backward and do better roping than the majority of these so-called experts we're asked to pay a dollar to see."

I gave him a cigar, which he commenced to chew immediately. After a while he smiled reminiscently, and said: "Pete Ballantyne an' Mart Gandy was the last two of the great ropers. In their prime them two cow-waddies didn't bar lions, which is a fact, because I seen 'em take on a lion that'd escaped from a circus at Tucson.

"THE critter hits for the hills straight off; he's about 25 miles up country when he runs across a Lazy Z yearling. With a glad roar he comes boundin' down the hillside an' nails the critter just as Pete Ballantyne an' Mart Gandy an' me comes down the trail headed for town to see the circus.

"Me, I'm foreman of the Lazy Z at the time. Our ponies, scentin' this here lion, go high, wide an' handsome for a couple of minutes before we get 'em under control, when we manage to ride up close enough for a look.

"'Which this here's the biggest panther I ever did see,' says Pete, who's never laid eye on an African lion heretofore, although he's seen pictures of them. 'I don't like the deep bass note in his meow, and I'd just as soon we hadn't met up with him, but seein' as how he's wrappin' himself around one of the boss' yearlin's, I reckon it's up to us to see he don't repeat the performance.' An' Pete sorts out his six-shooter.

"'You tarnation eediot, Pete,' I says, 'this here's an African lion, which the African lion is the king of beasts. And as this ain't Africa, I reckon this here anamile has escaped from that circus we're headed for to see in Tucson.'

"Mart Gandy slaps Pete's pistol down. 'Which we ain't goin' to kill no valuable piece of property like a circus lion, Pete,' he says. 'In all probability the circus wants him back, and if we capture an' turn him over to them in good order, maybe they'll give us three a free pass into the circus, includin' the sideshows.'

"'MART, you're just a-bustin' with bright ideas,' says Pete. 'There's merit in your contention, in addition to which most likely we bluff the circus people into paying four prices for this here yearlin' their lion has killed. While, if we succeed, we'll each take a price and give one to the boss.'

"And Pete gets out his riata.

"'Wait a minute, Pete,' says Mart Gandy. 'Let's lay this here job out a little before we tackle it. We both seen this lion kill that there yearlin' with one pat of his paw. Don't it stand to reason he could do the same to a cowboy? An' with two pats of his paw ain't he liable to smack all the good out of a cow pony?'

"'You got a head on you, Mart. We'll have to make long casts—and, thank the Lord, we come from California, where sensible cowmen use 60-foot rawhide riatas. This sucker won't chew a rawhide riata in two half as fast as he masticates a mangey rope. Which will you take, Mart, heads or tails?'

"'Seein' as how he ain't got but one of each, I'll take his head. You snaffle him by the hind legs, Pete, an' you'—turnin' to me—'put your twine around his middle. You ain't an expert roper, but it don't take an expert roper to do that. Pullin' him in three directions all to onct that-a-way, I figure we can hold him.'

"'Not much, Mart,' I says. 'I got to be paid a lot of Amercian money to get familiar with a lion on short acquaintance. My advice is to leave this critter alone. You two watch him and see which way he heads, whilst I gallop into Tucson and notify the circus people.'

"'What?' says Pete. 'An' lose our free tickets to all three rings, not to mention the sideshows? Not for Pete Ballantyne.'

"'Hold everything,' says Mart. 'I don't figger this varmint any heavier than a two-year-old, but I've heard they've muscles like the late Senor Samson, an'll sure win over anything they get into a clinch with. I don't figger we can give him the bust. Understand, Pete, I ain't settin' up as an authority on lions, but me an' you've run an' roped many a big panther, an' we know a panther ain't a runner. If he was he wouldn't tree at the first opportunity. We know, too, Pete, that a panther gets winded in a fast half-mile dash, that he tires easy. Mebbe this imported cousin o' his is built along similar lines—so what do you say if we haze him around until he's plumb weary before we put our ropes on him?'

"'Which you're a scholar an' a philosopher, Mart,' says Pete, an' plants a bullet under the lion's nose, thus throwin' dirt into his face in a most insultin' manner. Immediately the lion roars an' charges, but we're mounted on the fastest an' best-reined cow ponies on earth, so we whirl an' dash off through the low sage. The lion chases Pete about a hundred yards, but seein' he can't outrun Pete's horse, he transfers his attentions to me. Which he gives me the thrill of my life before I'm out of his reach.

"FAILIN' to make connections, the lion sits down to think it over, but as it's no part of our program to let him rest, Mart makes a run at him an' the lion comes to meet him. Lordy me, boy, I can still see them long leaps of his'n; he seemed to travel over the tops of the sage. However, Pete evades him, an' when he stops, Mart puts another shot under his nose an' starts him ag'in. So, by one means or another, we keep that fool lion runnin' in circles for mebbe an hour, an' by that time he's leg-weary an' winded. So he sets down ag'in, an' nothin' we can do will induce him to give us another run.

"'Now is the time,' says Mart, 'for all good men an' true to come to the aid of their party. Pop, stand by with your pistol to stop him if the hair slips.' An' Mart makes a fast run about 40 feet west of the lion, an' with a backhand throw ropes the brute nice an' neat around the neck, throws his dally an' gives Mr. African Lion a jerk that stifles his very best roar in its infancy.

"So the lion, bein' grossly offended, takes out after Mart, an' his horse, realizin' he's bein' asked to hold a tornado, lets out a scream of unadulterated terror an' allows he has business callin' him to Tucson in a hurry. He flattens out to the ground like a snake and keeps the rope taut, so Mart knows the lion ain't gainin' none on him a-tall, which even if the lion was, I doubt if the fool would have cut him loose, on account of thinkin' a lot of his pet riata, not to mention his standin' as a roper bein' at stake.

"'Hold him, cowboy,' yells Pete, and takes after the lion, whilst I get out my gun an' take after Pete, who rides up alongside that there lion, makes a quick, snappy down-cast and draws his loop half snug around Leo's loins. When he throws his dally and gives the lion the bust, the rope slides down around the brute's hocks and holds!

"And then the tug o' war starts. First the lion makes a dive at Mart, and before Mart can take up his slack, the lion reverses an' makes a dive at Pete.

"'It's ag'in' the California custom,' Pete yells, 'but we can't hold him on no dally. The horses is too wild an' scared. Tie hard an' fast, Mart, like a Texan, an' let 'em roll if they have to!'

"So they tied hard an' fast, an' with both horses rearin' an' plungin' ag'in' the riatas, that there lion finds himself torn between two desires. For 20 minutes the battle rages across the mesa; then they come to a side-hill an' the lion, checked in a long leap at Pete, rolls over on his back. Mart's rope is stretched along the lion's neck an' between his ears, and once off his feet, with his hind legs stretched out behind him, old Leo gives a coughing grunt—a half-sob—an' lies still, lookin' up into the sky.

"Both Mart's Baldy an' Pete's Moocher are settin' down on their hocks, holdin' on for dear life, an' snortin' an' screamin', but them saddles has been cinched on to stay on, so Mart an' Pete flop off an' approach the lion with their tie ropes. Mart makes a small loop an' snaffles one front paw as the lion dabs at him; then he snugs it up on the lion's wrist, or fetlock, or whatever you call it, makes a half-hitch and holds on. Meanwhile, Pete has done the same from his side; then they walk around his head an' exchange tie ropes an' drag the lion's front paws crosswise in a prayin' attitude; then, while I hold one paw, Pete makes the tie with my tie rope.

"THEN Mart an' Pete remove their tie ropes an' lace his hind legs together with one of 'em, after which they use the other to tie his forelegs and hind legs together. Which he's surely hog-tied then. An' all the time them terrified horses, unable to escape, is keepin' him stretched so flat he don't get his head up to bite us.

"'We ought to gag the critter,' says Pete. 'If we can tie his jaws up, he won't be able to bite the tie ropes off'n his feet when we slack up on him.'

"So Pete takes his macarte and manages to get a small loop over the lion's muzzle at a moment when he ain't spittin' an' cussin' at him, an' they draw that taut, make three half-hitches around his muzzle, three around his neck, an' the deed is done.

"'I never hearn tell that African lions is elastic,' Pete puffs, 'but this one has to be or git pulled apart. Mount up, Mart, back your horse in an' I'll cast off your riata.'

"Which Mart does the same, when upon Pete's horse, discoverin' he lost a lot o' strain on his riata, starts draggin' that lion around somethin' scandalous. We have quite a time to separate them two, but finally we done it, an' sat down to have a smoke an' talk things over. The lion, meanwhile, sobs softly; pitches an' twists, but finally gives it all up for a bad job an' lies quiet. Which us an' our ponies are all sweaty an' more or less tuckered, too.

"'Pop,' says Pete, addressin' me by my familiar appellation, in deference to my bald head an' my job as foreman, 'you know so dog-gone much about African lions, tell us how much one of 'em is worth, F. O. B. circus.'

"'Well, now, that depends. A lion that's bred an' whelped in captivity ain't so expensive, neither is he so desirable, on account the domestic lion never achieves the size of a lion that's captured wild.'

"'This one's wilder'n hell,' says Mart. 'It stands to reason he is, or he wouldn't have run away from home. An' we're discussin' this particular lion.'

"'WELL, by the time a wild lion is captured in Africa, shipped to the United States, trained, groomed, fed an' insured, I reckon he must stand the circus about $1500.' (I don't know a thing about it, but never let it be said I wouldn't make a guess.)

"'Then, in addition to the free pass to the circus an' the sideshows,' Pete opines, 'we'd ought to get a liberal reward, oughtn't we?'

"'Which that's a question that ought to be answered right soon, son,' says I, 'for down the trail I see a cloud o' dust, about 40 horsemen, an' a fancy-painted circus wagon, if I ever saw one—an' I seen four, to my personal recollection.'

"'Likewise,' says Pete, 'I hear the subdued bayin' o' foxhounds off on a flank. It's them circus folks trailin' their lion or I'm a Chinaman.'

"'Which we don't give him up until our claims is settled in cash,' says Mart. 'The members o' the Lazy Z Lion Hunt will now go into executive conference as a committee of the whole. Quick, Pop. What do we ask 'em for our lion?'

"Now, I'm a man who's always prided himself on bein' a good trader. I'd bought an' sold thousands of cows an' nobody ever swindled me in a deal yet—an' Pete an' Mart knew this.

"'We'll ask more'n we expect to git,' I announced, 'an' come down if we have to.'

"'Which I wouldn't rope another lion to please my own mother,' Pete avers. 'Ask enough, Pop.'

"'Person'lly,' says Mart, 'I expect to grow wrinkles an' gray hairs an' mutter in my sleep for a month to come. You do the talkin' for the outfit, Pop, an' we'll split our winnin' three ways. An' don't forget to collect heavy for that yearlin'.'

"Havin' the issue put to me that-a-way, of course, I have to make good. When the lion hunters catch sight of us, an' hear the subdued roars of the king o' beasts, they come swarmin' down on us like a stampede; when they get close enough to see everything, they just stand still an' stare. The circus manager's first to sound off.

"'Who the dickens,' he says, 'roped my lion?'

"'I DON'T see no brand or earmarks on the critter, mister,' I announced with becomin' coldness. 'How do we know he's your lion?'

"'He's got to be my lion. My lion's the only loose lion in the whole State of Arizona.'

"'The thunder he is,' Mart butts in. 'We breed lions right here on the Lazy Z. This is lion-brandin' time with us; as soon as we can start a fire we're goin' to run the Lazy Z iron on this critter an' ear-mark him—underslope the right ear an' swallow-fork the left.'

"'But who in hell roped him?' the manager persists.

"'We did—if you don't believe in fairies,' says Pete. 'An' permit me to state, mister, that while a-doin' of the same, we're closer to hell than usual.'

"'Boys, it ain't done,' says the circus manager.

"'Any time a lion starts killin' Lazy Z yearlin's it's done, mister,' says Mart. 'This here panther—or lion, as some folks calls 'em—being older'n bigger than any we've roped previous, we have more or less of a fuss with him, but—there he be.'

"'An' at that,' says the circus manager, 'Duke ain't reached his full growth by a hundred pound—mebbe more. You boys sure had your nerve with you, tyin' onto him. Well'—turnin' to his retainers—'our lion's gagged an' tied so he's helpless to bite or claw, so somebody cut down a young willow for a pole so we can pass it between his bound legs, fore an' aft, an' lift him into the wagon.'

"'My friend,' says I, 'one moment, if you please. That's not your lion. It's ours.'

"'Perhaps you'll tell me why,' says the circus man, a mite haughty.

"'You bet I will, mister. A lion's a predatory anamile, an' in the sovereign State of Arizona they ain't no closed season on a predatory anamile, which this here lion's been predatatin' on the Lazy Z range and killed one valuable, pure-bred, prize-winnin' Hereford heifer the boss wouldn't have took $500 for. There's her carcass yonder. Take a look. You can tell she's a Hereford by her white face.'

"One of the circus fellers laughed. 'Boss,' he says, 'don't be misled. She ain't a pure-bred. As long as there's a pin prick o' Hereford blood in a cow she'll drop a white-faced calf.'

"Pete gets up an 'walks over to this here informer. 'Which yo a-misdoubtin' the word o' friend,' he says, an' smacks feller down. Then Mart gets an' stretches himself. 'Who- a-goin' to move this here lion the wagon?' he inquires carel like.

" 'Mister,' I says, plaintive-like, 'would you rope, throw, hog-tie, an' gag this lion for $35?'

have to search the range for further evidence, an' this here's a big range.'

"The circus manager smiled. 'Brother,' he says, 'we've trailed this here lion with dogs every foot o' the way from Tucson, an' we're prepared to prove in court this is the only cow he's killed. If there'd been others we'd have seed the carcasses.'

" 'Well, we'll take your word for that,' I says, wishin' to appear fair, for I see they had a passel o' foxhounds on leash. 'You give us $500 for that heifer an' we'll call it square.'

" 'Not a cent over a hundred,' he comes back at me, 'or we'll argy it in court.'

" 'Sold,' says I.

" 'Gimme the owner's name.'

"I give him the boss' name, an' he took out a checkbook an' wrote a check for a hundred; then he wrote across the back of the check:

" 'The indorsement of this check is acknowledgement of the receipt in full, by the payee hereof, of all claims of any nature whatsoever to date against the Babcock & Grady Circus, Inc.'

"'NOW, then,' he continues, takin' out his wallet an' beginnin' to count out a mess o' yaller backs, 'I have here the sum of $1000, which I hereby hand to you, mister, with this understanding: You an' your friends turn my lion loose, safe an' sound an' unable to bite or claw any man here, you can keep the thousand dollars; otherwise you give it back to me. I'm makin' a bet, an' the bet nullifies all previous offers. This is a sportin' proposition. You win a thousand dollars, or you don't get a cent, an' you forthwith abandon any an' all claims of any an' all nature whatsoever ag'in the Babcock & Grady Circus, Incorporated.'

"Pete looked at Mart, Mart looked at Pete, an' the two of 'em looked at me. They nod, for there ain't a sportin' chance on earth them two won't take.

" 'Sold,' says I, and Pete and Mart nod their confirmation, for they was both men of few words. 'With this proviso,' I says, thinkin' a thought that maybe ain't occurred to Pete an' Mart. 'It's one thing to rope an' hog-tie an African lion, but it's another thing to stand over him an' cut the varmint loose.'

" 'Ah,' says the circus manager, lookin' disapp'inted, 'I knew you boys wasn't as game as that.'

" 'We're game enough,' says I, 'but we're too smart to jump into a proposition without giving it some thought. Some slight consideration is due our families; we'd ought to have a doctor on the ground in case o' accident, an', inasmuch as this here unbindin' of the beast is sure goin' to be the sportiest an' most technical job ever pulled off in Arizona, naturally we'd like to have all the boys down from the Lazy Z to view the spectacle.'

" 'I can readily understand your feelings in this regard, mister,' says the circus manager. 'State your proviso.'

"'YOU an' your gang retire one mile to yonder flat. Meanwhile, I will ride back to the ranch an' fetch the boys. When the lion is ready to be turned over to you, you will be given due notice and permitted to approach within 100 yards of the critter, while we retire 100 yards. This'll leave the lion in neutral territory. When both sides are set I'll fire my pistol, an' then you boys close in on him an' do your stuff in five minutes or we keep the thousand dollars.'

" 'We'll just reduce that to writin,' says the circus manager, an' he done the same in his notebook. I read it to Mart an' Pete an' we're all three satisfied, so we sign it. Then they retire an' I ride back to the ranch for the boys.

" 'Well,' says Pete, when we rejoin him an' Mart some two hours later, 'we've been doin' a lot o' thinkin' on this here problem an' we're free to confess we don't quite see our way clear to cuttin' this here lion loose an' vamoose in time to escape funeral expenses. So we've come to the conclusion we're licked an' had better acknowledge it.'

" 'We'll throw ourselves on the mercy o' that circus manager,' says Mart, 'tell him we've just been havin' our little joke, an' if he gives us each a 10-year pass, includin' the sideshows, he can have his danged old lion, with our compliments.'

" 'We've signed a contract,' says I firmly, 'an' we got to go through with it. I admit I'm kind o' old an' have to gum my grub, but nobody ever accused me o' layin' down on a contract.' An' with that I produce my credentials in the shape of a large surgical cone and a can of ether I've had the forethought to telephone to Tucson for, instructin' the druggist to send both by automobile an' break all speed records gettin' out with it. This messenger I'd met on the road as we jogged back to the lion. 'Now, then, boys,' I says, 'who gives this here king of beasts the anesthetic?'

"Pete was game, the lion bein' gagged, so Mart breaks a large limb off a cottonwood, strips it with his knife an' lays it crosswise over the unfortunate lion's throat. Then I kneel on one side of it, Mart kneels on the other, an' Pete holds the handful of ether-soaked waste to the lion's nose with one hand an' pours with the other, the way I told him.

"'AS YOU probably know, mister, if you've ever been in an operatin' room, there's a period, just before the patient begins to go under the ether, when he fights it somethin' awful. It's what doctors call the hi-sterical period, and the lion sure was hi-sterical. We stay with him, an' pretty soon he relaxes an' we get off'n him. Pete rolls him over a couple of times, but he's as limp as a dishrag, so we signal the circus people to approach. When they're a hundred yards off I halt 'em. Then our boys retire a hundred yards. Pete an' Mart untie the lion, an' we all three mount up an' jine our friends.

"Immediately all them circus people fade back a couple of hundred yards more, with the exception of some fellers with rifles an' one little feller, who now proceeds to strip off his clothes an' change into a fancy suit, which the britches are red silk, knee length, an' he's wearing socks like a gal. His coat is bright blue, with brass buttons, an' he wears a plug hat. . . . Then, with a whip in one hand an' a pistol in the other, he stands beside a red an' yaller wagon with a steel cage on it, which has druv up and swung into position, with the rear end toward the lion. The lion tamer opens the back door of the cage and awaits our signal.

"Pretty soon I see the lion quiver. Presently he rolls over an' for a couple of minutes lies on his belly an' thinks things over. Evidently arrivin' at a decision, he gets up on his feet, stretches, an' lets out a roar that echoes through the canons for 50 miles.

" 'He's hungry,' says Pete. 'We never did give him no chance at that heifer, an' now he's wilder'n a prairie fire. He'll eat the first thing he can jump on, an' I hope I may never see the back o' my neck if that feller in the trick suit ain't a-goin' to offer himself for the banquet.'

"'IT WAS all too true. That star-spangled eediot walks up nice an' calm to the lion, hits him a crack on the rump with the whip, an' yells: 'Alley opp.' The lion prances around like a flash, lets out another roar, an' bares his teeth, whereupon the man in the fancy dress suit fires a couple of shots in his face an' gives him another flick o' the whip.

" 'Back to your cage, Duke,' he yells, 'or these bad cowboys'll eat you alive!'

"Well, sir, that dog-gone lion took his advice in the speerit in which it was offered. Although still groggy on his pins an' achin' in every jint, he ain't so blind he can't see that wagon cage with the back door open. He's had enough man-handlin' for the day, an', as far as he knows, it's the only refuge in all that country, so he staggers over to it, an' hops inside, whereupon a feller on the front seat casts loose a rope an' the door closes. The feller in the trick suit bows low an' kisses both hands to us; the circus manager crooks his finger to me an' I ride over an' hand him back his thousand dollars. All is over — almost.

"He bows low. 'As one crook to another,' he says kindly, 'I'd advise you boys to stick to the business you know.'

" 'Mister,' I says, doffin' my sombrero an' bendin' low in the saddle, 'what us three know about lion tamin' now would fill a book. You sure took us into camp, an' I congratulate you. Am I correct in my assumption that your naturally sunny disposition inclines you to give me an' Pete an' Mart each a free pass to your circus, includin' the sideshows?'

" 'Considerin' the high price of yearlin's an' the fact that I can get real American money for the space you three outlaws would occupy, I must state, with real regret, that the application's denied.'

"'SAYIN' the which him an' his satellites move off with the lion in the general direction of Tucson. Pete an' Mart stare after their dust an' Pete says: 'Well, if that city slicker thinks I'm goin' to pay out good money to see his rotten circus, he's got another think comin'.'

" 'Same here,' says Mart.

" 'Have you two,' I says, 'by any chance, unloaded to our fellow employes of the Lazy Z the intimate details of our deal with this bandit?'

" 'Thank heaven, no!' says both in chorus, for they was always close-mouthed in money matters, an' I never was no calliope myself. So we're not entirely devoid o' comfort.

" 'Well,' says I, 'seein' as how all is lost save honor, let's go home an' see what the boss has to say about it.' Which we done the same, an' the boss complimented us highly on our business perception an' loyalty to the payroll, after which he tucks the check in the safe an' tells us if we ain't got nothin' better to do we might take a few staples, some hammers an' wire stretchers, an' mend the fence in the horse pasture."

The old gentleman with the tufts of hair in his ears sighed. "Son," he concluded, "this is sure one Ethiopian world for a white man to dwell in!"

of that union are well known, but the love of his first-born lies in that tiny grave only a few miles from Hollywood where the comedian mimics before the whirring camera that the world may laugh.

He once reflected his philosophy of life when he said:

"Charlie Chaplin is not an individual to the children. He is just an illusion to them, a funny-looking man who does stunts that amuse them. I must not spoil that illusion. You know how it was when you learned there was no Santa Claus. That's just how the youngsters would feel to know that Charles Chaplin is really a human being with sorrows and cares like anyone else and not the character they know on the screen."

To safeguard that illusion Charlie Chaplin does not discuss the tragic phases of his life. He is known as a man of dual personality; at times vivacious, entertaining, "the life of the party"; again, morose, introspective, the tragedian.

So it is that Chaplin, if asked about "The Little Mouse," has nothing to say. His is a personal grief.

But Mildred Harris has told the story of the odd tombstone.

"Charlie and I always spoke of the baby as 'The Little Mouse,' even long before he was born," she said. "We planned to christen him Charles Spencer Chaplin Jr.

"I was still in the hospital when the baby was buried. Charlie ordered the stone and had that inscription put on it purely for sentimental reasons.

"Charlie is very sensitive about things that concern his personal affairs. 'The Little Mouse' had been an affectionate name that meant a lot to both of us and Charlie thought it better to put that on the grave marker than the name of Chaplin.

"He always said he couldn't stand it to have his private life dragged out before the public. He knew that there always would be curious people looking at the grave if it had his name on it."

But Chaplin was only partially successful in seeing his wish fulfilled. The curious still pause beside the drooping pepper tree that shades the little grave and wonder, but only those who know the story of "The Little Mouse" associate it with the name of Chaplin.

A Negro Preacher's Part in the Year's Prize Play

Billy Sunday" preached. And when he preaches his sermon on The Valley of Dry Bones it is worth traveling to hear.

Connelly went back across the ferry convinced. His conviction has carried through to audiences and critics alike in New York by way of "The Green Pastures." A company is being organized to present the play in London.

And if the negotiations already tentatively entered go through, this New Orleans Negro preacher, who Roark Bradford says gave him much of the stuff that has aroused enthusiasm in "The Green Pastures," is likely to go to London to take the part of The Lord in that play.

I ACCOMPANIED Bradford on a visit to McPherson the other day. This Rev. McPherson is very much a man. In his lapel is the bronze button of a Spanish-American War veteran. On his wall hangs his United States Army warrant as a non-commissioned officer. He was a corporal in Company G, Twenty-fourth United States Infantry, back in 1898. He enlisted in New Orleans for that regiment which had Negroes in the ranks. He is 61 years old now.

"Yes, sir," he told me. "I was there. I was in the second set of fours that marched to the foot of San Juan Hill and we charged clean to the top, sir, and stayed there till we were ordered back. I was a sinful man in those days, sir. But the Lord spared me. Men dropped to the right of me and to the left of me, shot dead and wounded, but I never got a scratch, sir.

"And after the battle of San Juan Hill, sir, in my regiment they asked for fifty volunteers to go into the yellow-fever hospital at Siboney, and nurse soldiers down with the yellow fever. I am proud to say, sir, that I was one of the fifty. There are just two of us left alive, sir, today. One other and myself."

Gravely, smilingly, as the talk is grave or smiling, he sits with The Good Book on his knee, talking with his friends.

To him the Lord God is as real as the Mayor of New Orleans, and the Throne as real as City Hall. Out of his talk you see the simple, human faith that has made "The Green Pastures" the success it is; that has enabled a playwright to put the Lord God on a stage behind footlights in the person of a frock-coated Negro—and without irreverence or blasphemy or even poor taste.

McPherson expounds his faith, simply, feelingly. Roark Bradford listens.

Then "Deacon" McPherson asks simply: "Would you like to hear my children sing, sir?"

Of course. They are ushered in by their mother. Very bright-eyed. The least bit timid. What shall they sing? "Great Day in the Mawnin' "? Fine.

JEANETTE, Dolly Amy, James Gordon Jr. and Stephen Everett, they stand side by side, a perfect flight of stairs. Their voices rise suddenly, richly.

Bradford's eyes gleam. His face is alight with sympathy and interest. All the way back to his home he talks about his Negro friends.

"They've got a real God," he says. "And Lord, the comfort they get out of Him!"

You begin to understand now, if you didn't before, just why Roark Bradford is the writer he is about the American Negro.

Interesting St. Louisans—Edmund H. Wuerpel

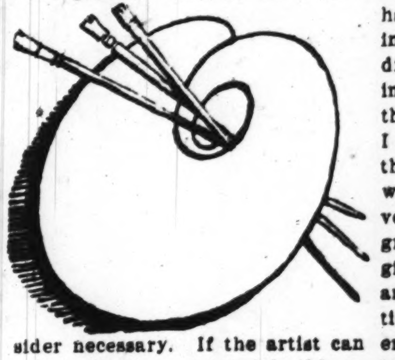
since left off being an artist. He found that was the one thing he wanted to do.

He completed his St. Louis training and then he went to Europe. When he returned here he was made an instructor at the School of Fine Arts. There he has remained, holding the title of its director since 1909, but actually doing the director's work since about 1903.

WUERPEL has made a national reputation for himself as an artist. He has achieved added recognition, recognition as teacher and critic and art historian.

Modernism and its geometric manifestations do not confound him.

"It is not artificial," he contends. "It is honest. It is honest because it expresses the age we live in. It is what these young people feel, and if they feel it they have the privilege of expressing it. I try to remain as young in spirit as they are, for in that way I can help them. I hope that I succeed. When I paint I do not produce stark realism. For years I have not painted subjects as they lay before me. I have looked at them and then gone home and done my work. I have attempted to catch the mood, a feeling, an atmosphere. That is all I consider necessary. If the artist can only reproduce material things, then, of course, he may well leave the job to the camera."



He believes that a community lives to an extent in accordance with its environment. He believes that bringing beauty to a city finds direct response in the lives of its citizenry. He thinks that a city rich in beautiful buildings and boulevards, in statues and museums, will find less anti-social qualities in its general population. He believes that beauty, seen and appreciated, brings practical results.

"Several years ago," he said, "I had a class, each Saturday morning, of urchins from the tenement districts. I had paintings brought in and let the children look at them. I didn't tell them anything. I made them tell me. What did they see in this picture? And what about it? At first it was very hard, like pulling teeth. But gradually these little boys and girls began to understand. The answers became interesting, sometimes surprising. They discovered something they had never known existed."

He spoke of a recent statue erected in a public place in this city. He considers it very bad. "I am very sorry to have to say so," he continued. "It isn't that I dislike the manner in which it is done. It is only because it is bad work. No city is safe from such things unless there is a competent body, lawfully established, to pass judgment upon them."

AS AN artist Wuerpel has exhibited in many places, in America, in Europe, in South America. He has won awards. He has served on many juries. He is best known as a painter of landscapes. He brings to these a delicate, sometimes eerie, quality that tells it own tale. He catches a mood and reflects it, sends it seeping under the onlooker's skin.

There is delicacy, but not weakness; there is sentiment, but a restraint that banishes sentimentality. If few colors are employed, those colors have richness, and depth and distance are achieved by deft manipulation of the subject.

If his paintings are not realistic in the meaning of the mechanical engineer he once set out to be, they catch a more abundant realism by virtue of their ability to inform the brain as well as tell the eye.

Wuerpel the artist is not disassociated from Wuerpel the humanitarian. He desires to push the community onward, by virtue of environment, to a richer life and a better.

"If I was sure I had moved this community ahead but one inch," he says, "I would feel rewarded."

tanks of their sinking ship. Beyond the tragic end of the Luetzow, our losses, considering the intensity and fierceness of the battle and the odds against us, were surprisingly small, compared with the British death toll. This was largely due to the almost complete failure to ignite of the British shells. S. M. S. Derfflinger, one of our battle cruisers, later was found to harbor eight 800-pound British 13-inch shells unexploded in its coal bunkers. Only a construction method far superior to the English made our ships survive the battle with so few losses.

AT 3 a. m. (June 1), dropping to the bare floor, fully clothed, I got the first sleep in 30 hours, after snatching a few pieces of bread, the first nourishment in 15 hours.

Late in the afternoon Admiral Hipper's ships slowly made their way up the Jade to Wilhelmshaven, their upper structures smoke-blackened and full of shell holes. For the first time we saw our own ships in daylight and in detail noticed their battered appearance. Naval engineers were desperately busy now trying to save the still-floating Luetzow. The distance, however, was too great. Our Admiralty finally admitted its loss. The badly-damaged Seydlitz was brought into drydock after three days of almost superhuman effort.

Behnke's modern battleships had surprisingly small damage with the exception of his flagship, the S. M. S. Koenig, the unarmored superstructure of which was literally shot to pieces. Our dead at that time amounted to more than 2000, scores of mortally wounded dying in hospitals later and considerably increasing the number.

When the Kaiser came and sentimentally congratulated Admiral Scheer on his "victory" he decorated him with the "Pour le Merite," the highest war medal. Although under Scheer's command, Behnke and Hipper were the two ablest naval officers in our fleet. They were not of the autocratic military type and only their crews knew what splendid and courageous leaders they were, highly respected and beloved by the last sailor under their command. Behnke was critically ill for weeks. However, beyond their official reports, neither he nor Hipper ever published or said anything. Every inch of them a soldier—and a man.

Editor's note.—Of this engagement between the British Grand Fleet and the German High Seas Fleet, the Encyclopedia Britannica says:

"THE encounter is memorable as being the only occasion throughout the World War on which the rival battle fleets met, also for the fact that it left the British fleet undisputed master of the German one up to the day of the latter's surrender. As a test of modern naval material it was prolific in lessons for both sides."

The British loss in ships was larger than that of the German force, and the British had a total of 6097 officers and men killed, as compared with 2545 officers and men killed on the German side. The Encyclopedia states that "these figures would appear to leave the balance of Jutland in favor of Germany, so far as destruction of men and ships is concerned, but the value of the battle must be measured in its after effects and not in its momentary losses."

Renunciation of the Prince and Princess Paterno

Quietly the Mother Superior, followed by the wife who was about to renounce her husband, appeared at the altar railing. Other shrouded, black-veiled figures stood near. The woman who had been rich and now was poor chanted a canticle which begins: "With this ring the Lord has bound me and adorned me with great riches."

A moment's pause and the Mother Superior took off her white veil. All present strained their eyes to see the face of her they would never see again. She was very white, but calm. Father Ignazio slowly moved toward his wife who would never be his wife or companion again. A large black veil was in his hands. He gazed at her, then quickly covered her face forever, throwing the black veil over it.

In a halting voice, the new nun again chanted. Her heavily-veiled figure now faced the congregation. The nuns from behind the black curtain intoned the response. More silence, as Sister Mary of Jesus prostrated herself on the floor, her arms thrown out in the form of a cross. Father Ignazio chanted the Te Deum.

As he finished Sister Mary stood by the altar rail once more. A priest gave Father Ignazio a small crown of roses. This he placed upon her head. The Bishop gave the benediction, the Mother Superior led the new nun away. Slowly the chapel emptied.

And that was the last the world saw, or will see, of Princess Angelica Paterno.

"This Common Ailment leaves its mark on body, face and mind"

". . Yeast checks it," says Germany's most colorful physician

PROFESSOR DR. MARTIN MENDELSOHN of Berlin—no more colorful figure exists in German medicine today! No more authoritative voice than his could bring you this message of warning—and hope:—

"Constipation is the insidious enemy of our time. It affects all classes, all ages. It undermines the system, making it an easy prey to disease. Often it mars a whole life, stealing vigor and strength, clouding the mind, leaving its mark on body and face.

"Yeast prevents constipation. It stimulates the wave-like motion of the intestines necessary to effect regular elimination.

"With the cleansing of the intestines and the toning up of the system, skin blemishes such as acne and boils disappear.

"Now fresh yeast contains the increased value of the 'sunshine' vitamin D, which counteracts the pronounced ill effects of lack of sunshine."

Let 3 cakes a day of Fleischmann's Yeast keep you "regular," energetic, fit! Every cake is rich in two vitamins indispensable to health—vitamin B and the "sunshine" vitamin D. At grocers', restaurants and soda fountains. Just follow the directions on the label.

DR. MENDELSOHN was physician to the great Eleonora Duse and to the sister of Kaiser Wilhelm I. As medical adviser of the Russian Government, he reported periodically to the Czar. The entire German press recently acclaimed his latest medical book.

"My doctor advised Fleischmann's Yeast"

"I was old before my time," writes Mrs. Mabel Kinneer, Staten Island, N. Y. "As long as I can remember I had suffered from constipation. As I grew worse and worse, I visited a stomach specialist. He advised eating Fleischmann's Yeast every day. Half-heartedly I began. But very soon I noticed improvement. Now I am well. Yeast keeps me in wonderful trim."

Leading doctors of 3 countries say:—

Geheimrat Dr. Carl von Noorden, founder of Europe's most exclusive clinic, at Frankfort, Germany, states: "The use of yeast can bring about normal functioning of the bowels. It is used constantly in my clinic."

Dr. Georges Caussade, physician of the world-famous Paris Hospital, "l'Hôtel-Dieu," says: "Yeast has a real effect on constipation and nutrition."

Dr. Paolo Alessandrini, head of the hospitals of Rome, says: "Yeast has long been famous for its ability to keep the intestines active, clean."

THE PRESIDENT INSPECTS THE ATLANTIC BATTLE FLEET

Praise be for Calumet's DOUBLE-ACTION

What beautiful cake it makes!

WHAT light cake . . . so fluffy and tender! And Calumet biscuits and muffins are wonderful, too. Baking success is easy when you've discovered Calumet—the Double-Acting Baking Powder.

Calumet's first action takes place in the mixing bowl. This gets the leavening properly started. Then in the oven, the second action occurs—a new, full, steady rising that literally props up the batter until your cake is perfectly baked—even though you may not be able to regulate your oven temperature perfectly.

All baking powders are required by law to be made of pure, wholesome ingredients. But not all are alike in their action. Not all will give you equally fine results in your baking. Calumet is scientifically made of exactly the right ingredients, in exactly the right proportions to produce perfect leavening action—double-action—your assurance of baking success.

Bake a Calumet cake today. See for yourself why Calumet's Double-Action has made it the most popular baking powder in the world! The cake below is made by a new method and takes only five minutes to measure and two minutes to mix. Notice it calls for only one level teaspoon of Calumet to a cup of sifted flour. This is the usual Calumet proportion and should be followed for best results—a real economy, too.

MAKE THIS TEST—Naturally, when baking, you can't see how Calumet's Double-Action works inside the dough or batter to make it rise. But, by making this simple demonstration with only baking powder and water in a glass, you can see clearly how baking powder acts—and how Calumet acts twice to make your baking better.

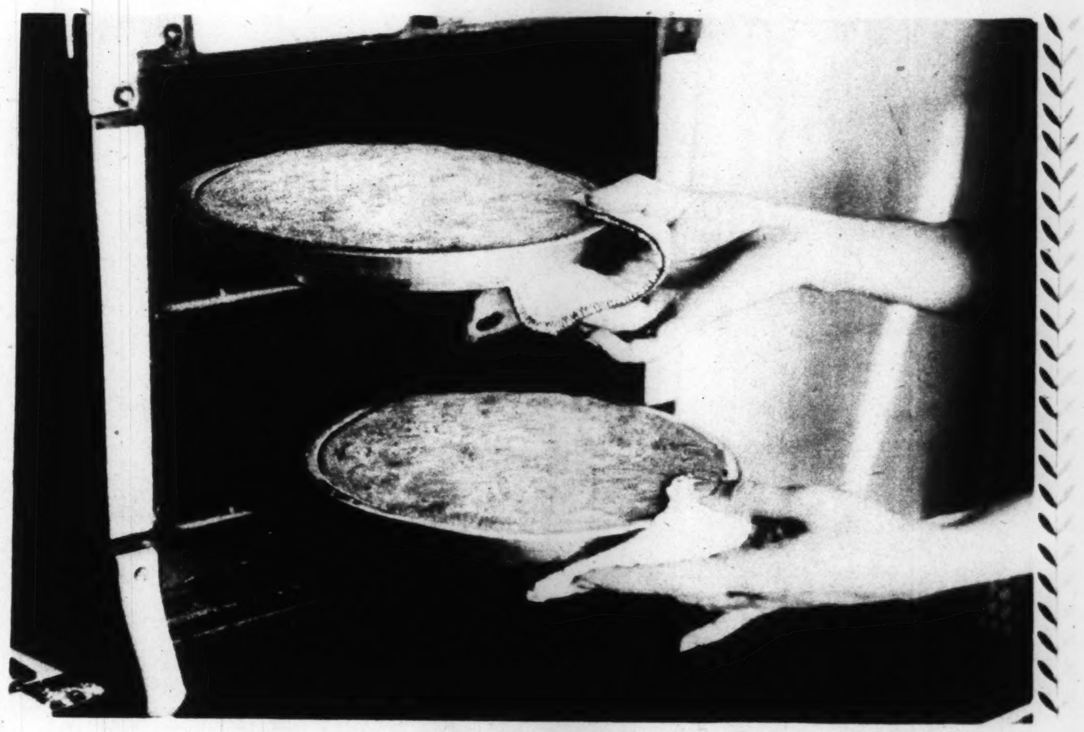
Put two level teaspoons of Calumet into a glass, add two teaspoons of water, stir rapidly five times and remove the spoon. The tiny, fine bubbles will rise slowly, half filling the glass. This is Calumet's first action—the action that takes place in the mixing bowl when you add liquid to your dry ingredients.

After the mixture has entirely stopped rising, stand the glass in a pan of hot water on the stove. In a moment, a second rising will start and continue until the mixture rises to the top of the glass. This is Calumet's second action—the action that takes place in the heat of your oven.

Make this test today. See Calumet's Double-Action which protects your baking from failure.



CALUMET QUICK CAKE (2 egg whites)

2 cups sifted Swans Down Cake Flour
2 teaspoons Calumet Baking Powder
1 cup sugar
½ teaspoon salt
2 egg whites, unbeaten
Soft butter or other shortening as needed
½ cup milk
½ teaspoon vanilla

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder, sugar and salt and sift together three times. To egg whites in cup, add enough shortening to half fill cup; add enough milk to completely fill it. Turn into flour, add vanilla, and beat vigorously 2 minutes. Bake in two greased 8-inch layer pans in moderate oven (375°F.) 25 minutes. Spread mocha frosting between layers and on top and sides of cake when cool. Double recipe to make three 10-inch layers.

MERELY MARGY

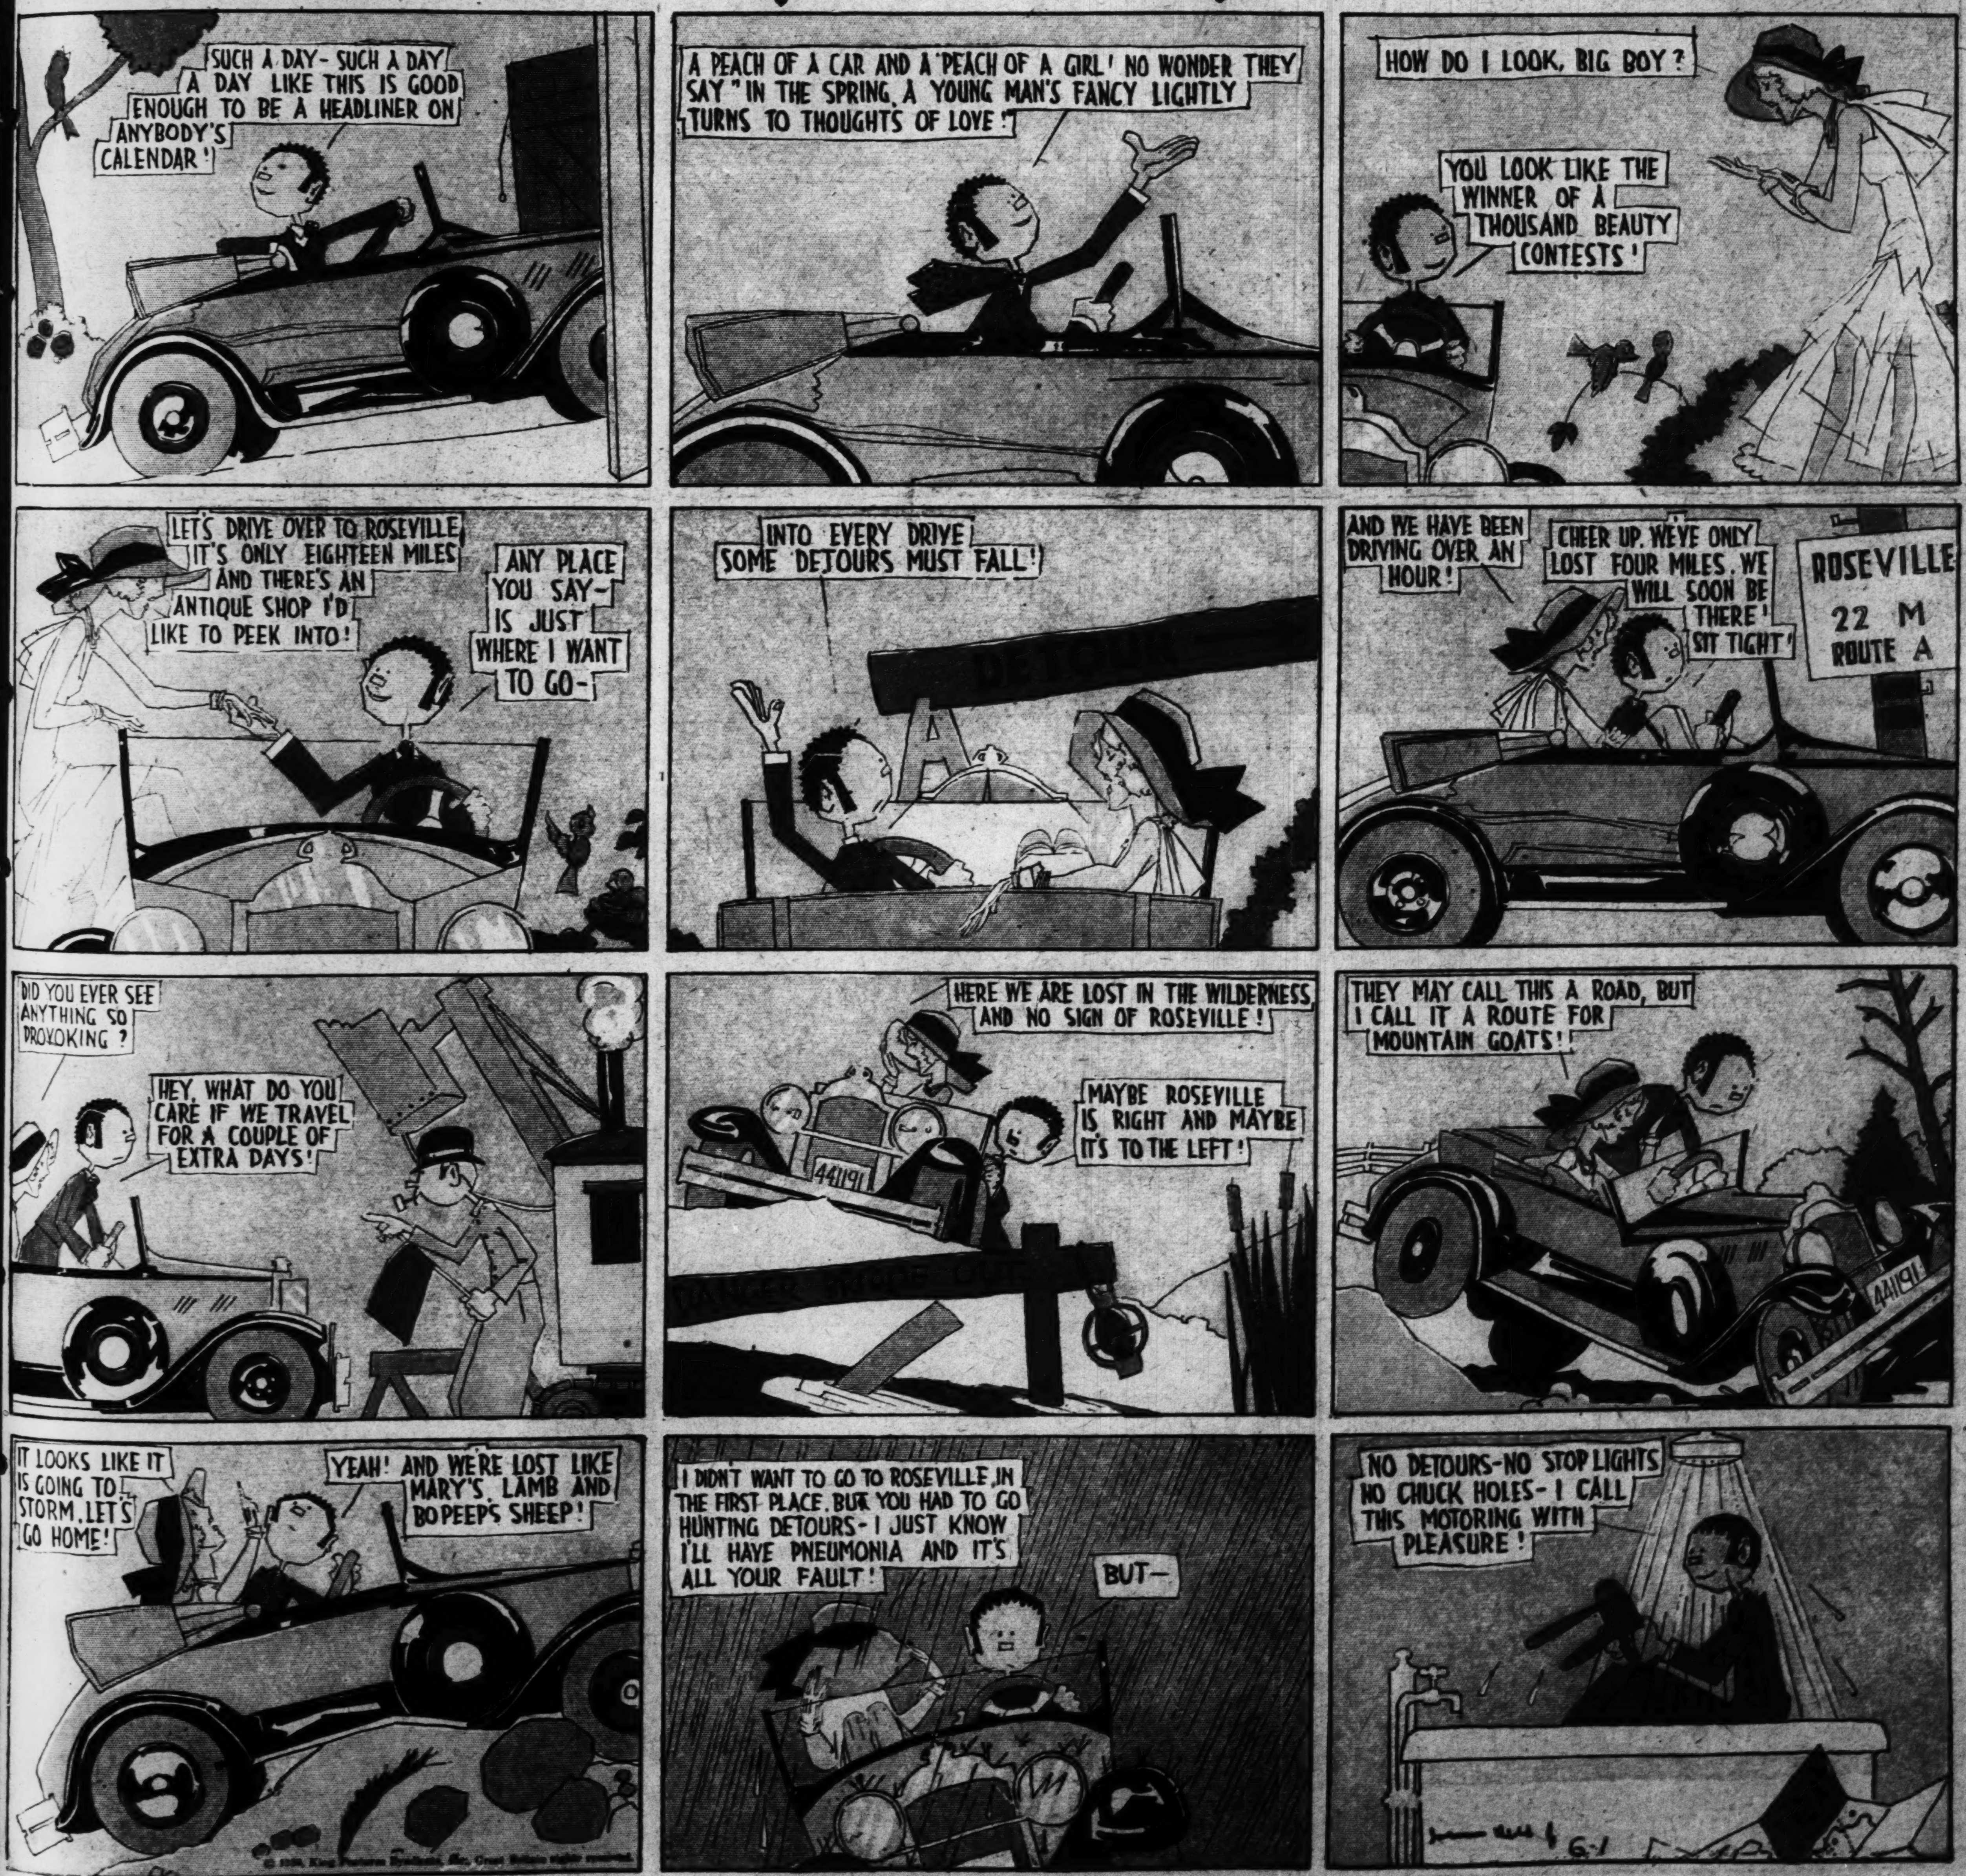
By John Held Jr.



SUCH A DAY - SUCH A DAY A DAY LIKE THIS IS GOOD ENOUGH TO BE A HEADLINER ON ANYBODY'S CALENDAR!
A PEACH OF A CAR AND A PEACH OF A GIRL! NO WONDER THEY SAY "IN THE SPRING, A YOUNG MAN'S FANCY LIGHTLY TURNS TO THOUGHTS OF LOVE!"
HOW DO I LOOK, BIG BOY?
YOU LOOK LIKE THE WINNER OF A THOUSAND BEAUTY CONTESTS!
LET'S DRIVE OVER TO ROSEVILLE IT'S ONLY EIGHTEEN MILES AND THERE'S AN ANTIQUE SHOP I'D LIKE TO PEEK INTO!
ANY PLACE YOU SAY - IS JUST WHERE I WANT TO GO - INTO EVERY DRIVE SOME DETOURS MUST FALL!
DETOUR
AND WE HAVE BEEN DRIVING OVER AN HOUR!
CHEER UP. WE'VE ONLY LOST FOUR MILES. WE WILL SOON BE THERE! SIT TIGHT!
ROSEVILLE 22 M ROUTE A
DID YOU EVER SEE ANYTHING SO PROVOKING?
HEY, WHAT DO YOU CARE IF WE TRAVEL FOR A COUPLE OF EXTRA DAYS!
HERE WE ARE LOST IN THE WILDERNESS AND NO SIGN OF ROSEVILLE!
441191
DANGER BRIDGE OUT
THEY MAY CALL THIS A ROAD, BUT I CALL IT A ROUTE FOR MOUNTAIN GOATS!
441191
IT LOOKS LIKE IT IS GOING TO STORM. LET'S GO HOME!
YEAH! AND WE'RE LOST LIKE MARY'S LAMB AND BO PEEP'S SHEEP!
I DIDN'T WANT TO GO TO ROSEVILLE IN THE FIRST PLACE. BUT YOU HAD TO GO HUNTING DETOURS - I JUST KNOW I'LL HAVE PNEUMONIA AND IT'S ALL YOUR FAULT!
BUT -
NO DETOURS - NO STOP LIGHTS NO CHUCK HOLES - I CALL THIS MOTORING WITH PLEASURE!
